¶ The yeare hath .xii. monethes .lii. wekes, and one daye:
And it hath in all, thꝛe hundꝛed and .lxvi. dayes,
and ſyxe houres.

¶ A prologue or preface made by the mooſt reuerende father in God, Thomas Archbyſhop of Canturbury Metropolytan and Prymate of Englande.

FOr two ſondrye ſortes of people, it ſemeth moche neceſſary ẏ ſomthynge be ſayde in the entrye of thys booke, by the waye of a preface or prologue wherby herafter it maye be both ẏ better accepted of them which hitherto coulde not well beare it: and alſo the better vſed of them, which hertofore haue myſuſed it. For truly, ſome there are that be to ſlowe, and nede the ſpurre: ſome other ſeme to quycke, and nede more of the brydell. Some looſe theyr game by ſhorte ſhotynge, ſome by, ouer ſhotynge. Some walke to moche on the lefte hande, ſome to moche on the ryght. In the former ſorte be all they that refuſe to reade, or to heare redde ẏ ſcripture in theyr vulgar tõges, moch worſe they ẏ alſo let, or diſcourage the other from the readynge or hearinge therof. In the latter ſorte be they, whiche by theyr inordinate readyng, vndiſcrete ſpeakyng, contẽtions diſputyng, or otherwyſe, by theyr litẽcyous lyuynge, ſlaunder & hynder the worde of God, mooſte of al other, wherof they wolde ſeme to be greateſt furtherers. Theſe two ſortes albeit they be mooſt farre vnlyke ẏ one to ẏ other, yet they both deſerue in effecte lyke reproche. Neyther can I well tell whyther of them I maye iudge ẏ more offender, hym ẏ doth obſtinately refuſe ſo godlye & goodly knowledge: or hym ẏ ſo vngodly & ſo vngoodly doth abuſe ẏ ſame. And as touchynge the former I wolde maruayle moche ẏ any man ſhulde be ſo madd, as to refuſe in darcknes, lyght: in honger, foode: in colde, fyer: for the worde of God is lyght: * Lucerna pedibus meis, uerbum tuum. Foode, ‡ Non in ſolo pane uiuit homo: ſed in omni uerbo dei. Fyer, * Ignem ueni mittere in terram: & quid uolo niſi ut ardeat? I wolde maruayle (I ſaye at thys) ſaue that I conſyder, howe moche cuſtome and vſage maye do. So that yf there were a people as ſome wryte, de Cymeriis, which neuer ſawe ẏ Sunne, by reaſon that they be ſituated farre towarde the north pole, and be encloſed and ouerſhadowed with hygh mountaynes: it is credyble and lyke ynough, that yf, by the power and wyll of God, the mountaynes ſhulde ſynke downe, and geue place, that the lyght of the Sunne myght haue enteraunce to thẽ: at the fyrſt, ſome of them wolde be offended therwyth. And the olde prouerbe affermeth, that after tyllage of corne was fyrſt founde: many delyted more to feade of maſte and acornes, wherwyth they had bene accuſtomed, then to eate breed made of good corne. Soche is the nature of cuſtome that it cauſeth vs to beare all thynges well and eaſelye, wherwyth we haue bene accuſtomed, and to be offended with al thynges ther vnto contrary. And therfore, I can well thynke them worthy pardon, whych at the commynge abroad of ſcripture doubted and drewe backe. But soch as wyll perſyſte ſtyl in theyr wylfulnes, I muſte nedes iudge, not onely foolyſhe, frowarde and obſtinate: but alſo peuyſhe, peruerſe and indurate. And yet, yf the matter ſhulde be tryed by cuſtome, we myght alſo allege cuſtome for the readynge of the ſcrypture in the vulgare tonge, and preſcrybe the more auncient cuſtome. For it is not moch aboue one hundreth yeare ago, ſens ſcripture hath not bene accuſtomed to be redde in the vulgar tunge within this realme, and many hundred yeares before that, it was tranſlated and redde in the Saxones tonge, whych at that tyme was oure mothers tonge. Wherof there remayneth yet diuers copyes foũde lately in olde abbeis, of ſoch antique maners of wrytynge and ſpeaking, that fewe men nowe ben able to reade and vnderſtande thẽ. And when this language waxed olde and out of comẽ vſage, becauſe folke ſhulde not lacke the frute of reading, it was agayne tranſlated in ẏ newer language. Wherof yet alſo many copies remayne and be dayly founde. But nowe to let paſſe cuſtome, and to weye as wyſe men euer ſhulde, the thyng in hys awne nature. Let vs here diſcuſſe. What it auayleth ſcripture to be had and redde of the laye and vulgare people? And to this queſtion I entẽde here to ſaye nothyng: but that was ſpoken and wrytten by the noble doctoure and moſt morall diuine ſaynt John Chriſoſtome, in hys thyrde ſermon de lazaro, albeit, I wyl be ſomthynge ſhorter, and gether the matter into feawer wordes and leſſe rowme thẽ he doth there: becauſe I wolde not be tedious. He exorteth there hys audyence, that euery man ſhulde reade by hym ſelfe at home in the meane dayes and tyme, betwene ſermon and ſermon: to the entent they myght both more profoũdely fyxe in their myndes and memories that he had ſayde before vpon ſoch textes, wher vpon he had alreadye preached: and alſo that they myght haue theyr myndes the more ready and better prepared to receaue and perceaue that whyche he ſhulde ſey from thensforth in hys ſermones, vpõ ſoche textes, as he had not yet declared and preached vpon: therfore ſayth he there: My comen vſage is to geue you warnynge before, what matter J intende after to entreate vpon, yͭ you youre ſelues in yͤ meane dayes maye take the boke in hande, reade, weye, and perceyue the ſumme and effect of the mattier: and marke what hath bene declared, and what remayneth yet to be declared: ſo yͭ therby youre mynde maye be the more furnyſhed, to heare the reſte, that ſhalbe ſayd. And that J exhorte you (ſayth he) ⁊ euer haue ⁊ wyll exhorte you, yͭ ye (not only here in the churche) geue eare to that, that is ſayde by the preacher: but that alſo, when ye be at home in youre houſes, ye applye youre ſelues from tyme to tyme to the readyng of the holy ſcriptures: which thyng alſo J neuer lynne to beate into the eares of them that bene my famyliers, and with whom J haue pryuate aquayntaunce ⁊ cõuerſacyon. Let no man make excuſe and ſaye: (ſayeth he) J am buſyed aboute mattiers of the cõmon welth, J beare this office or yͭ, J am a craftes man, J muſt applye myne occupacyon, J haue a wyfe, my chyldren muſt be fedde, my houſeholde muſt J prouyde for. Breifly J am a man of yͤ world, it is not for me to reade the ſcriptures, yͭ belongeth to them yͭ hath bydden yͤ world fare well, which lyue in ſolitarenes and contẽplacyon, that hath bene brought vp, and contynually noſylled in learnynge and religyon. To thys anſweryng: what ſayeſt thou man (ſayeth he) is it not for the to ſtudye and to reade the ſcripture, becauſe thou art encombred ⁊ diſtracte with cures ⁊ buſynes? So moch the more it is behouefull for the to haue defence of ſcriptures, howe moche yͧ art the more diſtreſſed in worldly daungers. They that bene free ⁊ farre from trouble and entremedlyng of worldly thynges, lyueth in ſauegarde and tranquilyte, and in the calme or within a ſure hauen. Thou art in the myddeſt of the ſee of worldly wyckedneſſe, and therfore thou nedeſt the more of ghoſtlye ſuccoure ⁊ comfort: they ſytte farre from the ſtrokes of battayl, ⁊ farre out of gonneſhote, and therfore they be but ſeldome wõuded: thou that ſtandeſt in the forefrounte of the hooſt, ⁊ nyeſt to thyne enemyes, muſte nedes take nowe and then many ſtrokes, and be greuouſly wounded. And therfore yͧ haſt more nede to haue thy remedyes ãd medecynes at hande. Thy wyfe prouoketh yͤ to anger, thy chylde gyueth yͤ occaſion to take ſorowe ⁊ pẽſyuenes, thyne enemyes lyeth in wayte for yͤ, thy frende (as yͧ takeſt him) ſomtyme enuieth yͤ, thy neyghboure myſreporteth the, or pycketh quarels agaynſt yͤ, thy mate or partyner vndermyneth yͤ, thy lorde iudge, or iuſtice threteneth the, pouerty is payneful to yͤ, the loſſe of thy deare ⁊ welbeloued cauſeth yͤ to mourne. Proſperite exalteth yͤ, aduerſite bryngeth yͤ lowe. Breflye, ſo diuerſe ⁊ ſo manyfolde occaſyõs of cares, tribulacyõs ⁊ tẽptacyõs beſetteth yͤ ⁊ beſegeth the rõude aboute. Where canſt yͧ haue armoure or fortereſſe agaynſt thyne aſſautes? Where canſt yͧ haue ſalue for thy ſores, but of holy ſcripture? Thy fleſhe muſt nedes be prone and ſubiect to fleſhly luſtes, which dayly walkeſt ⁊ art cõuerſaunte amongeſt women, ſeyſt their bewtyes, ſet forth to yͤ eye, heareſt their nyſe ⁊ wãton wordes, ſmelleſt their balme, cyuet ⁊ muſke, wͭ many other lyke prouocacyõs ⁊ ſterynges, except yͧ haſt in a redynes wherwith to ſuppreſſe ⁊ auoyde them, which cannot elles where be had, but onely out of the holy ſcryptures. Let vs reade ⁊ ſeke all remedyes yͭ we can, ⁊ all ſhalbe lytell ynough. Howe ſhall we then do, yf we ſuffer and take dayly wõudes, ⁊ whan we haue done, wyll ſytte ſtill ⁊ ſerche for no medecines? Doeſt thou not marke ⁊ conſider, howe yͤ ſmyth, maſon, or carpenter, or any other hãdy crafteſman, what neade ſoeuer he be in, what other ſhyfte ſoeuer he make, he wyll not ſell or laye to pledge yͤ toles of his occupacyon, for then howe ſhulde he worke his feate or get his lyuynge therby? Of lyke mynde and affeccyon ought we to be towardes holye ſcripture, for as mallettes, hãmars, ſawes, cheſylles, axes, and hatchettes be yͤ tooles of their occupacyon. So bene yͤ bokes of the prophetes, ⁊ apoſtelles, ⁊ all holye wryte inſpired by yͤ holy ghoſt, the inſtrumẽtes of oure ſaluacyon. Wherfore let vs not ſtycke to bye ⁊ prouyde vs the Byble, that is to ſaye, the bookes of holy ſcripture. And let vs thynke yͭ to be a better Juell in our houſe then eyther golde or ſyluer. For lyke as theues bene lothe to aſſaute an houſe, where they knowe to be good armoure ⁊ artillary, ſo where ſoeuer theſe holy and ghoſtly bookes bene occupied, there nether the deuel, nor none of his angelles dare come neare. And they that occupye them bene in moche ſauegarde, and hauen greate conſolacyon, ⁊ bene the readyer vnto all goodnes, the ſlower to all euyll, and yf they haue done any thyng amyſſe, anone euen by the ſyght of yͤ bookes theyr conſciẽces bene admoniſhed, ⁊ they waxen ſory ⁊ aſhamed of yͤ facte. Paraduẽture, they wyll ſaye vnto me: howe ⁊ yf we vnderſtande not that we reade, that is cõteyned in the bokes. What then? Suppoſe, thou vnderſtande not the depe ⁊ profounde myſteryes of ſcriptures, yet can it not be, but that moche frute ⁊ holynes muſt come and growe vnto the by the readyng: for it cannot be that thou ſhuldeſt be ignoraunte in all thynges a lyke. For the holye ghoſt hath ſo ordered ⁊ attẽpered the ſcryptures, that in them aſwell publicanes, fyſſhers, ⁊ ſhepherders maye fynde theyr edifycacion, as greate doctoures their erudicion: for thoſe bookes were not made to vayne glorie, lyke as were the wryttinges of the gentyle philoſophers ⁊ rethoricyans, to the entent the [illegible] holy prologue [illegible] it is known by the [illegible] of the [illegible] letter [illegible]

makers ſhulde be had in admiracion for their hye ſtyles and obſcure maner of wrytynge, wherof nothyng can be vnderſtāde without a maſter or an expoſitoure. But yͤ apoſtelles and prophetes wrote theyr bokes ſo, that theyr ſpeciall entēt ⁊ purpoſe myght be vnderſtanded ⁊ perceaued of euery reader, which was nothyng but the edificacyon ⁊ amendemēte of the lyfe of them that readeth or heareth it. Who is it, that readyng or hearyng reade in the goſpell, Bleſſed are they that bene meke. Bleſſed are they yͭ bene mercyfull. Bleſſed are they yͭ bene of cleane herte: ⁊ ſoch other lyke places, can perceyue nothyng excepte he haue a maſter to teache hym what it meaneth? Lykewyſe, the ſignes ⁊ myracles with all other hyſtoryes of yͤ doynges of Chriſt or his apoſtelles, who is ther, of ſo ſimple witte ād capacyte, but he maye be able to perceaue ⁊ vnderſtande them? Theſe be but excuſes and clokes for the rayne, ⁊ keuerynges of theyr awne ydell ſlouthfulnes, I cannot vnderſtāde it. What maruaylle? Howe ſhuldeſt yͧ vnderſtande, yf thou wylt not reade, nor loke vpon it? take the bookes into thyne hādes, reade the hole ſtorye, and that yͧ vnderſtandeſt kepe it well in memorye: that thou vnderſtādeſt not, reade it agayne, ⁊ agayne: yf thou can nether ſo come by it, coūſaylle with ſome other that is better learned. Go to thy curate and preacher, ſhewe thy ſelfe to be deſirous to knowe and learne. And I doubte not, but God ſeinge thy diligence ⁊ redyneſſe (yf no man elles teache yͤ) wyll hym ſelfe vouchſaffe with his holy ſprete to illuminate the, and to open vnto the that which was locked from the.

Remēber the Eunuchus of Candace quene of Ethioppe, which albeit he was a man of a wylde ⁊ barbarous countrye, and one occupyed with worldly cures ⁊ buſyneſſes, yet rydyng in his charet, he was readynge the ſcripture. Now cōſider, yf this man paſſyng in his iorney, was ſo diligent as to reade yͤ ſcripture, what thynkeſt thou of lyke was he wonte to do ſittyng at home? Agayne, he that letted not to reade, albeit he dyd not vnderſtande, What dyd he then, troweſt thou after that when he had learned and had gotten vnderſtādyng? For that yͧ mayeſt well knowe that he vnderſtode not what he reade: herken what Philippe there ſayth vnto him. Vnderſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt? And he nothynge aſhamed to confeſſe his ignoraunce, anſwereth: Howe ſhulde I vnderſtāde hauyng no body to ſhewe me the wey? Lo when he lacked one to ſhewe hym the weye and to expounde to hym the ſcriptures, yet dyd he reade: ⁊ therfore God the rather prouyded for hym a gyde of the wey, that taught hym to vnderſtande it. God perceyued his wyllynge and towarde mynde: and therfore he ſent him a teacher by ⁊ by. Therfore, let no man be negligēt about his awne health and ſaluacyon: though thou haue not Philippe alwayes when thou woldeſt, the holy ghoſt, which then moued ⁊ ſtered vp Philippe, wyl be ready and not fayle the yf thou do thy diligence accordingly. All theſe thynges bene written for vs to oure edifycacyon ⁊ amendemēt, which be borne towardes the latter ende of the worlde. The readyng of ſcriptures is a greate ⁊ ſtrong bulwarke or forteresſe agaynſt ſynne, yͤ ignorance of the ſame is the greater ruyne ⁊ deſtruccyon of them that wyll not knowe it. That is yͤ thyng that bryngeth in hereſie, that is it, that cauſeth all corrupte ⁊ peruerſe lyuing, yͭ is it, that bryngeth all thinges out of good order. Hetherto, all that I haue ſayde, I haue taken ⁊ gathered out of the forſayde ſermon of thys holy doctour ſaynt John Chriſoſtome. Nowe yf I ſhulde in lyke maner bryng forth, what the ſelfe ſame doctour ſpeaketh in other places, and what other doctoures ⁊ wrytters ſaye, cōcernyng yͤ ſame purpoſe, I myght ſeme to you to wryte another Byble, rather then to make a preface to the Byble. Wherfore in feaw wordes to cōprehende the largenes ⁊ vtilytie of the ſcripture, howe it cōteyneth frutefull inſtruccyon ⁊ erudicyon for euery man, yf any thynge be neceſſarye to be learned: of yͤ holye ſcripture we maye learne it. Yf falſhed ſhall be reproued, therof we maye gather wherwith all. Yf any thynge be to be corrected ⁊ amended, yf there nede any exhortacyon or conſolacyon, of the ſcripture we maye well learne. In the ſcriptures be yͤ fatte paſtures of the ſoule, therin is no venymouſe meate, no vnholſome thynge, they be yͤ very dayntie ⁊ pure fedynge. He that is ignoraunte, ſhall fynde there what he ſholde learne. He that is a peruerſe ſynner, ſhall there fynde his dānacyon to make hym to tremble for feare. He that laboureth to ſerue God ſhall fynde ther his glorye, ⁊ the promiſſions of eternall lyfe, exhortyng him more diligētly to laboure. Herin maye princes learne howe to gouerne their ſubiectes: Subiectes obediēce, loue ⁊ dreade to their princes. Huſbandes, howe they ſhuld behaue them vnto their wyfes: howe to educate their chyldren ⁊ ſeruaūtes. And cōtrary the wyfes, chyldren, ⁊ ſeruaūtes maye knowe theyr dutye to their huſbandes, parentes ⁊ maſters. Here maye all maner of perſons, men, wemen, yonge, olde, learned, vnlerned, ryche, poore, preſtes, laymen, Lordes, Ladyes, officers, tenaūtes, ⁊ meane men, virgyns, wyfes, wedowes, lawers, marchauntes, artifycers, huſbande men, ⁊ almaner of perſons of what eſtate or cōdicyon ſoeuer they be, maye ī thys booke learne all thynges what they ought to beleue, what they ought to do, ⁊ what they ſhulde not do, aſwell concernyng almyghtye

The concluſion.

The kynges hyghnes hath alowed ẏ ſcripture as neceſſarye for vs.

There is nothynge but it maye be abuſed.

God as alſo cõcernynge themſelues ⁊ all other. Brieſle to ẏ readyng of the ſcripture none can be enemye, but that eyther be ſo ſycke, that they loue not to heare of any medecyne: or els that be ſo ignoraunte, that they knowe not ſcripture to be ẏ moſt helthfull medecyne. Therfore as touchynge this former parte. I wyll here conclude ⁊ take it as a concluſion ſuffycientlye determyned ⁊ approued, that it is cõuenient ⁊ good, the ſcripture to be red of all ſortes ⁊ kyndes of people, and in the vulgare tonge without farther allegaciõs or probaciõs for the ſame, which ſhall not nede, ſyns that this one place of John Chryſoſtome is ynough ⁊ ſuffyciẽte to perſuade all them ẏ be not frowardly ⁊ peruerſlye ſet in their awne willful opinion, ſpecially nowe that ẏ kynges hyghnes beynge ſupreme heade next vnder Chriſt of this churche of Englande hath approued with his royal aſſente ẏ ſettyng furth herof, which onely to all true and obediẽt ſubiectes ought to be a ſuffyciẽte reaſon, for the alowãce of the ſame, without farther delaye, reclamacyon, or reſyſtaunce, allthough there were no preface nor other reaſon here in expreſſed. Therfore nowe to come to ẏ ſeconde ⁊ latter parte of my purpoſe: there is nothyng ſo good ĩ this worlde but it maye be abuſed, ⁊ turned from frutefull ⁊ holſome, to hurtfull and noyſome. What is there aboue, better then the ſunne, the moone, the ſtarres? Yet was ther that toke occaſion by ẏ great bewtye ⁊ vertue of them to dyſhonoure God, ⁊ to defyle them ſelues with ydolatrie, geuyng the honour of ẏ lyuyng God ⁊ creatour of all thynges, to ſuche thynges as he had created.

What is there here beneth, better then fyer, water, meates, drynckes, metalles of golde, ſyluer, yron ⁊ ſtele? Yet, we ſe daylie great harme and moch miſchefe, done by euery one of theſe, aſwell for lacke of wyſdome ⁊ prouydence of them that ſuffer euyll, as by the malice of them that worketh ẏ euyll. Thus to them that be euyll of them ſelues, euery thynge ſetteth forwarde ⁊ encreaſeth theyr euyll, be it of his awne nature a thyng neuer ſo good, lyke as cõtrarelye, to them that ſtudyeth ⁊ endeuoreth them ſelues to goodnes, euery thynge preuayleth them, ⁊ profyteth vnto good: be it of his awne nature a thĩg neuer ſo badde. As ſaynct Paul ſayde, Hiis qui diligunt deum, omnia cooperantur in bonum, euen as out of mooſt venemouſe wormes is made triacle, the mooſt ſouerayne medecyne for the preſeruacyon of mans helth in tyme of daunger. Wherfore I wolde aduiſe you all, that cometh to the readyng or hearyng of this boke, which is the worde of God, the mooſte preciouſe Juell, and moſte holy relyque, that remayneth vpon earth, that ye bryng with you the feare of God, ⁊ that ye do it with all due reuerence, ⁊ vſe youre knowledge therof, not to vayne glorye ⁊ friuolouſe diſputacyon: but to the honour of God, encreaſe of vertu, ⁊ edifycacyon both of your ſelues and other. And to the entẽt that my wordes maye be the more regarded, I wyll vſe in this parte the auctorite of ſaynct Gregorye Nazianzene, lyke as in the other I dyd of S. John Chryſoſtome. It appereth ẏ in hys tyme there were ſome (as I feare me, there bene alſo nowe at theſe dayes a great nomber) which were ydell bablers, ⁊ talkers of ẏ ſcripture out of ceaſon, ⁊ all good order, ⁊ without any encreaſe of vertu, or example of good lyuyng, to thẽ he wrytteth all his fyrſt booke, de theologia. Wherof I ſhall breflye gather the hole effecte, ⁊ recyte it here vnto you. There bene ſome (ſayeth he) whoſe not onely eares and tonges, but alſo their fyſtes bene whetted ⁊ ready bent all to contencyon ⁊ vnprofitable diſputacyon, whom I wolde wyſſhe as they bene vehemẽte ⁊ erneſt to reaſon ẏ matter with tonge: ſo they were alſo ready ⁊ practiue to do good dedes. But for aſmoche as they, ſubuertyng the order of all godlynes, haue reſpecte onely to thys thynge. Howe they maye bynde and looſe ſubtile queſtions, ſo that nowe euery market place, euery alehouſe ⁊ tauerne, euery feaſthouſe: brefly euery company of men, euery aſſemblye of wemen is fylled with ſuch talke. Sens the matter is ſo (ſayth he) and that our fayth ⁊ holy relygyon of Chryſt begynneth to waxe nothyng els: but as it were a ſophyſtrye or a talkyng crafte, I can no leſſe do but ſaye ſomthyng therunto. It is not fitte (ſayth he) for euery man to diſpute the hygh queſtiõs of diuinite, nether is it to be done at all tymes: nether in euery audiẽce muſt we diſcuſſe euery doubte: but we muſt knowe whan, to whom, ⁊ how farre we ought to enter into ſoch matters. Fyrſt it is not for euery man: but it is for ſuche as be of exacte ⁊ exquiſite iudgemẽtes, and ſuche as haue ſpente theyr tyme before in ſtudye ⁊ contẽplacyon: and ſuche as before haue clenſed them ſelues aſwell in ſoule, as bodye: or at the leaſt, endeuored them ſelues to be made cleane. For it is daungerous (ſayth he) for the vncleane to touch that thynge, that is mooſte cleane: lyke as ẏ ſore eye taketh harme by lokynge vpõ the ſunne. Secondarelye, not at all tymes. but when we be repoſed: and at reſte frome all outwarde dregges and trouble, and when that oure headdes be not encombred with other worldelye and wanderynge ymaginacyons: as yf a man ſhulde myngle balme ⁊ dyrte together. For he that ſhall iudge ⁊ determyne ſuche matters ⁊ doubtes of ſcriptures, muſte take his tyme, when he maye applye his wittes therunto, that he maye thereby the better ſe, and diſcerne what is trueth.

S. Gregory Nazianzene.

Thyrdelye

Thyꝛdelye where, and in what audience. There and amonge thoſe that bene ſtudious to learne, and not amonge ſuche as haue pleaſure to tryfle wyth ſuche matters as wyth other thynges of paſtyme, whych repute foꝛ theyꝛ chyefe delicates the diſputacion of hygh queſtions, to ſhewe theyꝛ wittes, learnynge and eloquence in reaſonynge of hygh matters. Fourthlye, it is to be conſydered howe farre to wade in ſuche matters of diffycultye. No further (ſayeth he) but as euery mannes awne capacytie wyll ſerue him, and agayne no further thē the weakenes oꝛ intelligence of the other audiēce maye beare. Foꝛ lyke as to gret noyſe hurteth the eare, to moch meat hurteth the mannes body, to heuye burdens hurteth the bearers of them, to moche rayne doeth moꝛe hurte then good to the grounde, bꝛieflye in all thynges to moch is noyouſe, euē ſo weke wittes ⁊ weke conſciēces maye ſone be oppꝛeſſed with ouer harde queſtions, I ſaye not thys to dyſuade men from the knowledge of God, and readynge oꝛ ſtudyeng of the ſcripture. Foꝛ I ſaye, that it is as neceſſary foꝛ the lyfe of mannes ſoule, as foꝛ the bodye to bꝛeathe. And yf it were poſſyble ſo to lyue, I wolde thynke it good foꝛ a man to ſpende all hys lyfe in that, and to do no other thynge, I commende the lawe whiche byddeth to meditate and ſtudye the ſcriptures alwayes both nyght ād daye, and Sermons and pꝛeachinges to be made both moꝛnyng noone ād euentyde. And God to be lauded and bleſſed in all tymes, to bedwarde, from bedde, in oure ioꝛneyes, and all oure other woꝛkes I foꝛbydde not to reade, but I foꝛbydde to reaſon. Nether foꝛbydde I to reaſon ſo farre as is good and godlye. But I alowe not that is done out of ſeaſon, and out of meaſure ⁊ good oꝛder. A man maye eate to moche of honey be it neuer ſo ſwete, and ther is tyme foꝛ euery thynge, and that thynge that is good is not good, yf it be vngoodly done. Euen as a flower in wynter is out of ſeaſon, and as womans apparel becometh not a man, nether contrarily, the mannes, the woman: nether is weppynge cōuenient at a bꝛydeale, nether laughynge at a beryall. Nowe yf we can obſerue and kepe that is comely and tymely in all other thynges, ſhal not we then ỹ rather do ỹ ſame in the holy ſcriptures? Let vs not runne furth as it were wylde hoꝛſes ỹ can ſuffre nether bꝛydell in theyꝛ mouthes, noꝛ ſytter on theyꝛ backes. Let vs kepe vs in our boundes, and nether let vs go to farre on thoneſyde, leſte we retoꝛne into Egypt, nether to farre ouer ỹ other, leſt we be caryed awaye to Babylon. Let vs not ſynge the ſonge of oure Loꝛde in a ſtraunge lande, that is to ſaye, let vs not diſpute the woꝛde of God at all auentures, aſwell where it is not to be reaſoned, as where it is, and aſwell in the eares of them ỹ be not fytte therfoꝛe, as of thē that be. Yf we cā in no wyſe foꝛbeare, but ỹ we muſt nedes diſpute, let vs foꝛbeare thus moche at the leaſte, to do it oute of tyme, and place conuenient. And let vs entreate of thoſe thynges which be Holye, Holylie, and vpon thoſe thynges ỹ bene myſticall myſtically, and not to vtter the dyuine miſteryes in the eares vnwoꝛthy to heare thē, but let vs knowe what is comely aſwell in our ſylence: and talkyng, as in oure garmentes werynge, in oure fedynge, in oure geſture, in oure goynges, and all oure other behauynge. Thys contention and debate aboute ſcryptures, and doubtes therof (ſpecyally whan ſuche as pꝛetende to be the fauourers ād ſtudentes therof cannot agre wythin thē ſelfes) doth moſte hurte to our ſelues, and to the furtherynge of the cauſe and quarels ỹ we wolde haue foꝛthered aboue all other thynges. And we in this (ſayeth he) be not vnlyke to them that beynge madde, ſet theyꝛ awne houſes on fyer, and that ſle there awne chyldꝛen, oꝛ beate theyꝛ awne parentes. I maruayle moche (ſayeth he) to recounte wherof cōmeth all this deſyꝛe of vayne gloꝛye, wherof cōmeth all this tounge itche, ỹ we haue ſo moch delight to talke ād clatter. And wherin is our cōmunicacion? Not in the cōmendations of vertuous and good dedes of hoſpitalytie, of loue betwene chꝛiſtian bꝛother ⁊ bꝛother, of loue betwene man ⁊ wife, of virginitye and chaſtitie, and of almoſe towardes the pooꝛe. Not in Pſalmes and godly ſonges, not in lamentynge foꝛ oure ſynnes, not in repꝛeſſyng the affections of the body, not in pꝛayers to God. We talke of ſcripture, but in ỹ meane tyme we ſubdue not our fleſhe, by faſtynge, wakynge, and weppyng, we make not this lyfe a meditation of death, we do not ſtryue to be Loꝛdes of oure appetites ⁊ affections. We go not aboute to pull downe our pꝛoude ⁊ hygh myndes, to abate our fumyſh ād rancoꝛouſe ſtomackes, to reſtrayne our luſtes and bodely delectations, our vndyſcrete ſoꝛowes, our laſciuious myꝛthe, our inoꝛdinate lokynge, our vnſaciable hearyng of vanities, our ſpeakynge wythout meaſure, our inconuenient thoughtes, and bꝛiefly, to refoꝛme our lyfe and maners: but all our holynes conſyſteth in talkynge. And we pardon eche other from all good lyuynge, ſo that we may ſtyck faſte together in argumentacion, as though there were no mo wayes to heauen, but thys alone, the waye of ſpeculatiō and knowledge (as they take it) but in very dede, it is rather the waye of ſuperfluous contention and ſophiſtication. Hytherto haue I recyted the mynde of Gꝛegoꝛye Nazianzene in that booke whych I ſpake of befoꝛe. The ſame authour ſayeth alſo in another place, that the learnynge of a Chꝛiſten man ought to begynne of the feare of God, to ende in matters of hygh ſpeculatiō, ād not contrarily to begynne with ſpeculation and to ende in feare. For ſpeculation (ſaieth he) other hye connyng and knowledge, yf it be not ſtayed with the brydell of feare to offende God is daungerous, and ynough to tumble a man hedlynge downe the hyll. Therfore, ſayeth he, the feare of God muſt be the fyrſt begynnynge and as it were an A.B.C. or an introduction to all them that ſhall enter to the very trew and moſt frutefull knowledge of holy ſcriptures. Where as is the feare of God, there is (ſayeth he) the keping of the commaundementes, and where as is the kepyng of the commaundementes, there is the clenſynge of the fleſſhe, whych fleſſhe is a cloude before the ſoules eye, and ſuffereth it not puerlye to ſe the beame of the heauenly lyght. Where as is the clenſynge of the fleſſhe, there is the illumination of yͤ holy ghoſt, thende of al our deſyres and the very lyght wherby the verytie of ſcriptures is ſene and perceyued. Thys is the mynde and almooſt the wordes of Gregorie Nazianzene doctoure of the Greke churche of whom ſaynt Jerome ſayth, that vnto his tyme, the Laten churche had no writer able to be compared, and to make an euen matche wyth hym. Therfore to conclude thys latter parte, euery man that commeth to the readynge of thys holy booke ought to brynge wyth hym fyrſt and formoſte thys feare of almyghtye God, and then nexte a fyrme and ſtable purpoſe to reforme hys awne ſelfe accordyng ther vnto, and ſo to continue, procede, and proſpere frō tyme to tyme, ſhewynge hym ſelfe to be a ſober and frutefull hearer ād learner, whych yf he do, he ſhall proue at the length well able to teache, though not wyth his mouth, yet with his lyuynge and good example, whych is ſuer the mooſt lyuely, and effecteouſe forme and maner of teachyng. He that otherwyſe intermedeleth wyth this booke let hym be aſſured, that ones he ſhall make accompte therfore, when he ſhall haue ſayde to hym as it is wrytten in the Prophete Dauid, Peccatori dicit Deus, &c. Unto the vngodly ſayde God, why doeſt thou preache my lawes, and takeſt my teſtament in thy mouth? Where as thou hateſt to be reformed and haſt caſte my wordes behynde the. When thou ſaweſt a thefe, thou conſentydeſt vnto hym, and haſt bene partetaker wyth aduouterers. Thou haſt let thy mouth ſpeake wyckednes, and wyth thy tonge thou haſt ſet forth diſceyte. Thou ſatteſt and ſpakeſt agaynſt thy brother, and haſt ſklaundered thyne awne mothers ſonne. Theſe thinges haſt thou done, ād I helde my tonge and thou thoughteſt (wyckedly) that I am euen ſoche a one as thy ſelfe. But I wyl reproue the, and ſet before the, the thynges that thou haſt done. O conſyder this ye that forget God leſt I plucke you awaye, and ther be none to delyuer you. Who ſo offereth me thankes and prayſe, he honoureth me, and to hym that ordereth hys conuerſation ryght: wyll I ſhewe the ſaluation of God.

God ſaue the Kynge,

How heauen & erth, the light, the firmament, the ſonne, the mone, the ſterres, and all beaſtes, foules & fyſſhes in the ſee were made by the worde of God. And how man alſo was created.

A *Psal.cii.d. Iere.x.b. Eccle.xviii.a. iiii. Esd.vi.c. Heb.i.c.xi.a.

IN yͤ begynning *God created heauen & erth. The erth was voyde & emptie and darckneſſe was ⊶ vpō the face of the depe, ād yͤ ſprete of god moued ⊶ vpon the face of the waters.

And God ſayde: let there be made lyght, and there was lyght made. And God ſawe the lyght that it was good. And God made a diuiſyon betwene the lyght & darckneſſe. And God called the lyght, daye: & the darckneſſe called he, nyght. And yͤ euenyng ād the mornynge was made one daye.

And God ſayde: let there be a firmamēt betwene yͤ waters, & let it make a diuiſyon betwene waters & waters. And God made the firmamēt, & ſet a diuiſyon betwene the waters which were vnder yͤ firmamēt, and the waters that were aboue the firmamēt. And it was ſo. And God called the firmament, Heauen. The euenyng alſo & the mornyng was made the ſeconde daye.

*Pro.viii.d. Iob,xxvi.c.

And God ſayde: *let the waters vnder heauen be gathered together into one place, yͭ the drye lōde maye be ſene. And ſo it came to paſſe. And God called yͤ drye lōde Erth: and yͤ gatheringe together of waters called he the ſees. And God ſawe yͭ it was good.

B And God ſayd: let the erth brynge forth grene herbe, which maye engendre ſede: and frutefull tre, yeldynge frute after his kynde, whoſe ſede maye be in it ſelfe vpon the erth. And it came ſo to paſſe. And the erth brought forth grene herbe, makynge ſede after his kynde: & tre yeldynge frute, whoſe ſede was ī it ſelfe after his kynde. And God ſawe yͭ it was good. The euenyng alſo and the mornyng was made the thyrde daye.

*Pſalm. cxxxvi.a. iiii. Esd.vi.d.

And God ſayde: *let there be made lyghtes in the firmamēt of heauen, & let thē make a differēce betwene the daye & the nyght, ☞ and let them be ☞ vnto ſignes: & vnto appoynted ſeaſons, & vnto dayes, & vnto yeares. And let them be vnto lyghtes in the firmament of heauen: yͭ they maye geue lyght vpon the erth. And ſo it came to paſſe.

Iere.xxxi.f.

And God made *two greate lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule yͤ daye, & a leſſe lyght to rule yͤ nyght. (And he made) ſterres alſo. And God ſet thē in yͤ firmamēt of heauen, yͭ they myght geue light vpon yͤ erth, & yͭ they myght rule yͤ daye & the nyght, & to make a differēce betwene the lyght & the darkneſſe. And God ſawe yͭ it was good. The euenīg alſo & yͤ mornīge was made yͤ fourth daye.

C *iiii.Esd.vi.d.

And God ſayde: *let the waters brynge forth mouynge creature yͭ hath lyfe, & foule yͭ maye flye vpon yͤ erth in yͤ face of yͤ firmament of heauen. And God created greate whalles, & euery lyuīge & mouīge creature, which yͤ waters brought forth after theyr kynde: & euery fethred foule after their kynde. And God ſawe yͭ it was good. And God ☞ bleſſed thē, ſayinge: Growe & increace, & fyll yͤ waters of yͤ ſee: & let fethred foules be multiplied in the erth. The euenyng alſo & the mornynge was made the fifth daye. ☞

And God ſayd: let yͤ erth brynge forth lyuynge creature after his kynde: catell, worme & beaſt of the erth after his kynde, & ſo it came to paſſe. And God made yͤ beaſt of the erth after his kynde, & catell after their kynde, & euery thinge yͭ crepeth vpon yͤ erth after his kynde. And god ſawe yͭ it was good.

D And God ſayde: let vs make man ⊶ in oure ymage after oure lickeneſſe, & let thē haue rule of yͤ fiſh of yͤ ſee: & foule of yͤ ayre and catell, & all yͤ erth, & of euery crepynge thynge yͭ crepeth vpon yͤ erth. And ſo God created man in his awne ymage: in yͤ *☞ ymage of God created he hym, ‡male & female created he thē. And God bleſſed thē, & God ſayde vnto them: Growe & increace, & repleniſhe yͤ erth, & ſubdue it: & haue *dominyon of yͤ fyſh of yͤ ſee, & foule of yͤ ayre, & of euery lyuynge thynge that moueth vpon yͤ erth. ☞

*Sapie.ii.d. Eccle.xvii.a. ‡Mat.xix.a. Mar.x.a. *Sap.ix.a. Psal.viii.b.

And God ſayd: Beholde, I haue geuen you euery herbe ſowynge ſede, which is in yͤ vpper face of all yͤ erth: & euery tre in yͤ which is the frute of tre, & that ſoweth ſede, yͭ they maye be meat vnto you. To euery beaſt of the erth alſo, & to euery byrde of yͤ ayre, & to euery ſuch thynge as creapeth vpon yͤ erth (wherin is a lyuynge ☞ ſoule) I haue geuen all greneneſſe of herbe to be meate. Than ſayde Iacob to Rebecca hys mother: beholde, Eſau my brother is a rough man, ⁊ I am ſmooth. vnto theyr huſbāde: ⁊ they beare hym children.
Jacob deceaueth Laban in the conceyuinge of ẏ shepe
and kyddes. Jacobs rewarde for hys ſeruyce.

Rahel whan ſhe ſawe ẏ ſhe bare A Jacob no chyldren, ſhe enuyed hyr ſiſter, and ſayde vnto Jacob: Geue me children, or els I am but deed. And Jacob was wroth wyth Rahel ſayinge: Am I in Goddes ſteade, which kepeth from the ẏ frute of thy wōbe? Then ſhe ſayed: here is my mayde Bilha, go i vnto her, ⁊ ſhe ſhal beare vpō
my lappe, that I may be encreaſed by her.

And ſhe gaue hym Bilha hyr handmayde
to wyfe. And Jacob went in vnto her, ād Bilha conceaued and bare Jacob a ſonne.
Than ſayde Rahel. God hath geuen ſentēce
on my ſyde, and hath alſo hearde my voyce, and hath geuen me a ſonne. Therfore called ſhe hī Dan. And Bilha Rahels mayde conceaued agayne, and bare Jacob another ſonne. And Rahel ſayd: ⁂ wyth Godly ⁂ wreſtlinges haue I wreſtled with my ſyſter and haue gotten the vpper hand. And ſhe called hys name, Nepthali.

When Lea ſawe that ſhe had left bearīg, B
ſhe toke Silpha hyr mayde, and gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a ſōne. Than ſayde Lea, Good luck: and called hys name Gad. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob another ſonne.
Than ſayde Lea: happy am I, for the daughters wyll call me bleſſed. And called hys name Aſſer.

And Ruben went out in the dayes of the wheat harueſt ⁊ foūd mādragoras ī the feldes,
and brought thē vnto his mother Lea,
Than ſayde Rahel to Lea: geue me of thy ſonnes ☞ mandragoras. To whō Lea answered: ☞ Is it not ynough ẏ thou haſt taken awaye my huſbād, but woldeſt take awaye
my ſonnes mandragoras alſo? Than ſayde Rahel: well, let him ſlepe with ẏ this nyghte, for thy ſonnes mādragoras. And Jacob C came from the feldes at euen, and Lea went out to mete him, and ſayde: come ī to me, for
I haue bought ẏ wͭ my ſōnes mādragoras.
And he ſlepte wͭ her that nyght. And God
hearde Lea, that ſhe cōceaued and bare vnto Jacob the .v. ſonne. Thā ſayde Lea. God hath geuen me a rewarde, becauſe I gaue

my maydē to my houſband, ⁊ ſhe called him Iſachar. And Lea conceaued yet agayne, ⁊ bare Jacob ẏ .vi. ſonne. And Lea ſayd: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my huſband dwell with me, becauſe I haue borne him .vi. ſonnes: ⁊ called hys name zabulon. After that ſhe bare a daughter and called hyr name * Dina. *Ge.xxxiiii.a.

And God remembred Rahel, hearde her, D and made her frutefull: ſo that ſhe cōceaued ⁊ bare a ſōne, ⁊ ſayd: God hath takē awaye my rebuke. And ſhe called his name Joſeph ſaying: The Lorde geue me yet another ſonne. As ſoone as Rahel had borne Joſeph, Jacob ſayde to Laban: Sende me awaye ẏ I may go vnto myne awne place and contrey, geue me my wyues and my children for whom I haue ſerued the, and let me goo: for thou knoweſt what ſeruyce I haue done ẏ. To whom Laban anſwered: yf I haue founde fauour in thy ſyght (for I ſuppoſe that *Gen.xxix.a the Lorde hath * bleſſed me for thy ſake) appoynte what thy rewarde ſhall be, ⁊ I wyll geue it the. But he ſayde vnto hym: thou knoweſt what ſeruyce I haue done the, and in what takynge thy catell haue bene vnder me: For it was but lytle that thou haddeſt before I came, and now it is encreaſed into a multitude, and the Lorde hath bleſſed the for my ſake. But now whē ſhal I make prouiſyon for myne awne houſe alſo? And he ſayde: what ſhall I then geue the? And Jacob anſwered: E thou ſhalt geue me nothinge at all, yf thou wylt do thys one thynge for me: and then wyll I turne agayne and fede thy ſhepe and kepe them.

I wyll go aboute all thy ſhepe this daye and ſeparate from them all the ſhepe that are ſpotted and of dyuers colours, and all blacke ſhepe amonge the lambes, ⁊ the partye, and the ſpotted amōge the kyddes: and the ſame ſhalbe my rewarde. So ſhall my ☞ ☞ ☞ ryghtweſnes anſwere for me ☞ to morow, and ſhall come for my rewarde before thy face, and euery one that is not ſpeckled and partye amonge the goates and blacke amonge the ſhepe, ẏ ſame ſhalbe theft with me. And Laban ſayd: Go to, wolde God it myght be accordinge to thy ſayenge. Therfore he toke out ẏ ſame daye the he goates that were partye and of dyuerſe coloures, and all ẏ ſhe goates that were ſpotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in them, ⁊ all the blacke amonge the ſhepe, and F put them in the kepyng of hys ſonnes, ⁊ ſet thre dayes iourney betwixte hym ſelfe and Jacob. And ſo Jacob kepte the reſt of Labans ſhepe.

Jacob toke roddes of grene popular, haſell ⁊ of cheſt nut trees, ⁊ pylled whyte ſtrakes in thē, and made the whyte apere in the o* roddes. o*(But they that were whole: remayned grene: and thus was it made a variable coloure.) And put the roddes whyche he had pylled, euē before the ſhepe, in ẏ gutters ⁊ watring troughes, whē the ſhepe came to dryncke: ẏ they ſhulde cōceaue when they came to dryncke. And the ſhepe cōceaued before the roddes, ⁊ brought forth lambes ſtraked, ſpotted and partye. G And Jacob parted the lambes ⁊ turned the faces of the ſhepe toward ſpotted thingis, ⁊ toward al maner of blacke, that was amōge the ſhepe of Laban namely, puttīge hys awne flockes by them ſelfe, and not puttinge thē wyth Labans ſhepe. And it fortuned that in euery rāmynge tyme ☞ of the ſtrōger ☞ ſhepe, Jacob layed the roddes before the eyes of the ſhepe ī the gutters: namely, that he might make them conceaue before ẏ roddes. But when the ſhepe were feble, he put thē not in. And ſo the febler were Labans, ⁊ the ſtrōger Jacobs. And the man increaced exceadingly, ⁊ had a great flock, mayde ſeruauntes ⁊ man ſeruauntes, camels ⁊ aſſes.

¶ The .xxxi. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundement of God: Jacob departed frō Laban, ⁊ toke hys goodes wyth hym. Rahel ſtealeth hyr fathers ymages. Laban foloweth Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

BUt he heard the wordes of Labās A ſonnes ſayenge: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was oure fathers, and of oure fathers goodes hath he gotten al thys honoure. And Jacob behelde the countenaunce of Labā, ⁊ beholde, it was not ☞ as yeſterdaye and yeryeſter- ☞ daye. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne into the lande of thy fathers and to thy kynred, ⁊ I wyll be wyth the. Therfore Jacob ſent and called Rahell ⁊ Lea to the felde vnto hys flock, and ſayd vnto thē: I ſe your fathers countenaūce that it is not toward me as yeſterdaye ⁊ yeryeſterdaye. But the God of my father hath bene wyth me. And ye knowe how that I haue ſerued youre father with all my myght. But youre father hath diſceaued me, and chaunged my wages .x. tymes: but God ſuffred hym not to hurte me. When he ſayde, the ſpotted ſhall be thy wages, than all the ſhepe bare ſpotted. And whā he ſayd: the ſtraked ſhall be thy rewarde, than bare all the ſhepe ſtra- B ked: thus hath God taken awaye youre fathers ſhepe, and geuen them me. But in rāmyng tyme it happened, ẏ I lyfted vp myne eyes ⁊ ſawe in a dreame, ⁊ beholde the rāmes leaped vpon the ſhepe ẏ were ſtraked, ſpotted ⁊ partye. And the angel of God ſpake vnto me in a dreame, ſayīg: Jacob? And I anſwered: here am I. And he ſayde: lyfte vp now thyne eyes ⁊ ſe al the rāmes leappynge vpō the ſhepe that are ſtraked, ſpotted ⁊ partye: for I haue ſene all that Laban doth vnto the, I am the God of * Bethel, where *Ge.xxviii.b

C Than anſwered Rahel, and Lea, ⁊ ſayde
vnto hym: haue we a porcion ⁊ inheritaunce euen as ſtraūgers, for he hath ſolde vs, and hath euen eaten vp oure monye. But all the his father vnto the land of Canaā. But

* ge.xxxviii. ii.Reg.xiii.c Laban was gone to * ſhere his ſhepe, ⁊ Rahel had ſtolen hyr fathers ymages. And Jacob in that he tolde him not that he fled. So fled he ⁊ all that he had, and made hym ſelfe redy, ⁊ paſſed ouer the ryuer, ⁊ ſet hys face ſtreyght toward the mount Gilead.

D Vpō the thyrde day after, was it told Labā that Jacob fled. Thā he toke his brethrē with him and folowed after hym. vii. dayes

And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by night, ⁊ ſayd vnto him: take hede, that thou ſpeake not to Jacob ought ſaue good. And Labā ouer toke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched hys tente in the mounte.
And Laban with his brethren pitched their

ſayde, to Jacob: Why haſt thou thys done ☞ ☞ to ſteale awaye my herte, and carye awaye my doughters as though they had

* i.reg.xiii.c ii.Par.xvi.c Thou waſt * a fole now to do it, for I am able to do you euyll. But the God of thy waye, becauſe thou longeſt after thy fathers houſe, yet wherfore haſt thou ſtolen

my goddes?

E Jacob anſwered and ſayde to Laban: becauſe
I was afrayed, ⁊ thought that thou woldeſt haue taken awaye thy doughters ❧ frō me. But ❧ (where as thou laieſt theft to my charge)
with whome ſoeuer thou fyndeſt thy goddes,

Seke that thyne is by me, ⁊ take it to the.
But Jacob wyſt not that Rahel had ſtolen
thē. Than went Laban into Jacobs tente, and into Leas tēte, ⁊ into the. ii. maydēs tentes:
but founde them not. Than went he out of Leas tente, and entred into Rahels tēte.
And Rahel had taken the ymages ⁊ put thē
in the camels ſtrawe, ⁊ ſate downe vpō thē.
And Laban ſerched all the tente: but foūde them not. Than ſayde ſhe to hyr father: my

the, for yͤ cuſtome of womē is come vpō me.
So ſearched he but founde not thoſe ydols.

And Jacob was wrooth, and chode with Labā. Jacob alſo anſwered ⁊ ſayde to hym:
what haue I treſpaced or what haue I offended,
yͭ thou folowedeſt ſo after me? Thou haſt ſearched all my ſtuffe, ⁊ what haſt thou

Thus haue I bene. xx. yere in thy houſe,

Laban anſwered and ſayde vnto Jacob:
theſe daughters are my daughters, and theſe

And what can I do thys daye vnto theſe

And they toke ſtones, and made an heape, called it * Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob * The heape of witneſſe.

called it ☞ Gilead. ❧ (ether of them accordinge ❧ ☞

Than ſayde Laban: thys heape is * wytneſſe * Tumulus teſtificans.

or ſhalt take other wyues beſide my daughters.
Here is no man with vs: beholde, God

ſayde moreouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape and thys marke whych I haue ſet here, betwixte me and the: thys heape be wytneſſe and alſo this marke that I will not come ouer thys heape to the, and thou ſhalt not come ouer thys heape and thys marke vnto me: to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, ⁊ the God of theyr fathers be iudge betwyxte vs.

And Jacob ſware by the feare of hys father Iſahac. Then Jacob dyd ſacrifice vpō ẏ mounte, ⁊ called his brethrē to eate breed. And they dyd eate breed ⁊ taryed all nyght in the hyll. And early in the mornynge Laban roſe vp and kyſſed hys children and his daughters, and bleſſed them: and Laban departynge, went vnto his place agayne.

A Jacob lyftynge vp hys eyes, loked, and beholde Eſau came, hauynge wyth hym foure hundreth men. And he deuyded the chyldren vnto Lea and vnto Rahel, and vnto the two maydens. Ge.xxvii.g Eſau came to mete hym and enbraced hym and fell on hys necke and kyſſed hym, and they wepte. And he loued that damſell and ſpake kyndly vnto her, ād Sichem ſpake vnto hys father Hemor ſayinge, gett me thys mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herde ẏ he had defyled Dina his daughter, hys ſonnes beynge wyth their catell in the felde, and he helde hys peace, vntyll they were come. And Hemor ẏ father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to comen wyth hym. And whan the ſonnes of Jacob commynge out of the felde herde it, it greued them, and they were not a lytle wrooth, becauſe he had wrought folye in Iſraell, in that he had lyen wyth Jacobs daughter, whych thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor commened wyth them ſayinge: the ſoule of my ſonne Sichem longeth for youre daughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make maryages B wyth vs: and geue youre daughters vnto vs, and take oure daughters vnto you, and ye ſhall dwell wyth vs, and the lande ſhall be before you, dwell and do youre buſynes, and haue youre poſſeſſyons there in. But the ſonnes of Jacob anſwered to Sichem & Hemor his father talkynge amōge them ſelues deceptefully, becauſe he had defyled Dina theyr ſyſter. ¶The.xl.Chapter

¶Joſeph expoundeth the dꝛeames of the two pꝛeſoners.

AND it chaunced after thys, that A
the butteler of the kyng of Egipte
and hys baker had offended
theyꝛ Loꝛde the kynge of Egypte.
And Pharao was angrie agaynſt
hys two officers: agaynſt the chefe
butler ⁊ the chefe baker: ⁊ put them in warde in hys chefe ſtewardes houſe: euen in the pꝛeſon and place where Joſeph was bownd.
And ỷ chefe ſtewarde gaue Joſeph a charge with thẽ, and he ſerued thẽ. And they contynued a ceaſon in warde.

And they dꝛeamed ether of them in one night: both ỷ butteler and the baker of the kynge of Egypte which were bounde in the pꝛeſon houſe, ether of them his dꝛeame, and eache mãnes dꝛeame of a ſõdꝛie interpꝛetacion.
B Whẽ Joſeph came in vnto them in the moꝛnynge, and loked vpon them: beholde, they were ſad. And he aſked Pharaos officers that were wyth hym in hys maſters warde ſayinge: wherfoꝛe loke ye ſo ſadly to daye? They anſwered hym: we haue dꝛeamed
a dꝛeame, and haue no mã to declare it.
And Joſeph ſayd vnto them: Do not interpꝛetynges belonge to God: yet tell me? And the chefe butlar tolde his dꝛeame to Joſeph,
and ſayde vnto hym: In my dꝛeame me thought there ſtode a vyne befoꝛe me, and in the vyne were .iii. bꝛaunches, and it was as though it budded, and her bloſſoms ſhott
foꝛth: and the grapes thereof, waxed rype.
And

And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes, and wronge them into Pharaos cup, and delyuered Pharaos cuppe C into his hande. And Joſeph ſayde vnto hym: thys is the interpretacyon of it. The thre braunches ar thre dayes: for wythin thre dayes ſhall Pharao lyft vp thyne heade, and reſtore yͤ vnto thyne office agayne, and thou ſhalt delyuer Pharaos cup into his hande, after the old maner wherin thou waſt wōt to geue him drynke. But yf thou thynke on me with the, when yͧ art in good caſe, ſhewe mercye (I praye the) vnto me. And make mencyon of me to Pharao, and brynge me out of this houſe: for I was ſtollen out of the lande of the Hebrues, and here alſo haue I done nothynge at all, wherfore they ſhulde haue put me into thys dongeon. When the chefe baker ſawe that yͤ interpretacyon was good, he ſayde vnto Joſeph: me thought alſo in my dreame, that I had thre wyker baſkettes on my heade. And in the vppermoſt baſket there was of all maner bakemeates for Pharao. And the byrdes dyd eate them out of the baſket that was vpon my head.

D And Joſeph anſwered and ſayde: thys is the interpretacion therof. The thre baſkettes are thre dayes, for thys daye thre dayes ſhall Pharao take thy heade from the, and ſhall hange yͤ on a tree, and the byrdes ſhall eate thy fleſhe from of the.

And it came to paſſe yͤ thyrde daye which was Pharaos * byrth daye, that he made a feaſt vnto all his ſeruauntes. And he lyfted vp the head of the chefe buttelar ⁊ of the chefe baker amōge his ſeruauntes. And reſtored the chefe buttelar vnto his buttelarſhyppe agayne: whych alſo reched the cuppe into Pharaos hande, but he hanged yͤ chefe baker: euen as Joſeph had interpreted vnto them. Neyther dyd the chefe buttelar remēbre Joſeph, but forgat hym.

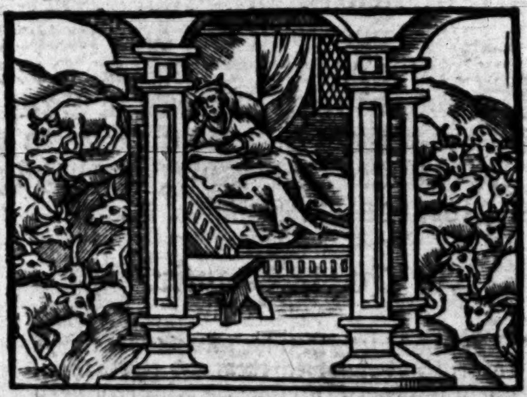
¶ The.xli. Chapter.

¶ Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joſeph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two ſonnes. Manaſſes ⁊ Ephraim. The derth begynneth in Egypt.



A AND it fortuned after two yeres, that Pharao dreamed, and beholde, he ſtode by a ryuers ſyde, ⁊ there came out of the ryuer ſeuen goodly kyne and fatt fleſſhed, and fedd in a medowe, and ſeuen other kyne came vp after them out of the ryuer, euel fauored, and leane fleſſhed, and ſtode by the other kyne vpon the brynke of yͤ ryuer. And the euyll fauored ⁊ leane fleſſhed kyne dyd eate vp the ſeuen well fauored and fatt kyne: and Pharao awoke. And he ſlepte agayne, and dreamed the ſeconde tyme. And beholde, ſeuen eares of corne grewe vpō one ſtalke, rancke ⁊ goodly. And agayne, ſeuen thynne eares blaſted with the eaſt wynde, ſprange vp after them: and yͤ ſeuen thynne eares deuoured the ſeuen rancke ⁊ full eares. And Pharao awaked: and ſe, it was a dreame. And when the mornynge came, B his ſprete was troubled. And he ſent ⁊ called for all the ſotheſayers of Egypte, ⁊ all the wyſe men therof, and Pharao tolde thē his dreame: but there was none of thē that coulde interpretate it vnto Pharao. Than ſpake yͤ chefe buttelar vnto Pharao ſayinge: I do remēbre my fawtes this daye. Pharao beynge angrie with hys ſeruaūtes, put in warde in yͤ chefe Stewardes houſe both me ⁊ the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche mānes dreame of a ſondrye interpretacyon.

And there was with vs a yonge man, an Hebrue borne, ſeruaunte vnto yͤ chefe Stewarde. To whom whan we tolde them, he declared oure dreames to vs accordynge to ether of oure dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs, euen ſo it came to paſſe. For he reſtored me to myne office agayne, ⁊ hāged hym.

Pharao ſent therfore, and called Joſeph. And they brought hym haſtely out of * preſon. And he ſhaued hym ſelfe, and chaunged hys rayment, and came into Pharao. And Pharao ſayde vnto Joſeph: I haue ſene a C dreame, ⁊ no man can interpretate it, and I haue hearde ſaye of the, that as ſoone as thou heareſt a dreame, thou canſt interpretate it. Joſeph anſwered Pharao, ſayinge: Not I, but God ſhall geue Pharao an anſwere of peace. And Pharao ſayde vnto Joſeph: in my dreame, me thought I ſtode by a ryuers ſyde, ⁊ there came out of the ryuer ſeuen fatt fleſſhed, ⁊ well fauored kyne, and fedd in the medowe. And then ſeuen other kyne came vp after them, poore and very euell fauored ⁊ leane fleſſhed: ſuch as I neuer ſawe in all the lande of Egypte, they were ſo euell fauored. And the ſeuen leane and euell fauored kyne dyd eate vp the firſt ſeuen fatt kyne. And when they had eaten thē vp, a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten them: but they were ſtyll as euell fauored as they were at the begynnynge. And I awoke. And I ſawe agayne in my dreame ⁊ beholde ſeuen eares ſprange out of one ſtalk, full and fayꝛe, and ſeuen other eares agayne, withered, thynne and blaſted with the eaſt wynde, ſpꝛãge vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the ſeuen good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto yͤ ſoth ſayers, but there was no man that coulde tell, what it meaneth. And Joſeph anſwered Pharao: both Pharaos dꝛeames are one. And God hath ſhewed Pharao what he is aboute to do. The ſeuen good kyne are ſeuen peares: and yͤ ſeuen good eares are ſeuen peares alſo, ⁊ it is but one dꝛeame. Lykewyſe, the ſeuen thynne and euell fauoꝛed D kyne yͭ came out after them, are ſeuen peares: and the ſeuen emptie, and blaſted eares ſhalbe ſeuen peares of hunger. Thys which I haue ſayde vnto Pharao, is it that God is aboute to do, ⁊ ſheweth it vnto Pharao.

Beholde there come ſeuen peare of great plenteouſnes thꝛough out all the lande of Egipte. And agayne, there ſhall aryſe after the ſeuen peares of hunger. And all the plenteouſnes ſhalbe foꝛgotten in yͤ lãde of Egypte. And the hunger ſhall conſume the lãde: nether ſhall the plenteouſnes be knowen in the lande. by reaſon of that hũger that ſhall come after, foꝛ it ſhalbe exceadynge great. And as concernynge that the dꝛeame was doubled vnto Pharao the ſeconde tyme, beholde, the thynge is certaynly pꝛepared of God, ⁊ God will ſhoꝛtly bꝛynge it to paſſe.

Nowe therfoꝛe, let Pharao pꝛouide foꝛ a man of vnderſtandynge ⁊ wyſdome, and ſett hym ouer the lande of Egypte. And let Pharao do thys alſo, that he make offycers ouer the lande, and take vp the fyfth parte of the lãde of Egypte in the ſeuen plẽteous peares, and let them gather all the foode of theſe good peres that come, ⁊ laye vp coꝛne vnder the hande of Pharao, that there maye be foode in the cyties, and there let them kepe it: that there maye be founde in ſtooꝛe in the lãde, agaynſt the ſeuen peares of hunger whych ſhall come in the lande of Egypte, that the lãde peryſhe not thoꝛowe hunger.

E And the ſayinge pleaſed Pharao and all his ſeruauntes. Then ſayde Pharao vnto his ſeruauntes: where ſhall we fynde ſoch a man as thys is, in whom is the ſpꝛete of God? And Pharao ſayde vnto Joſeph: foꝛ as moche as God hath ſhewed the all thys, there is no man of vnderſtãdynge oꝛ of wyſdome lyke vnto the. Thou therfoꝛe ſhalt be * ouer my houſe, and accoꝛdynge to thy woꝛde ſhall all my people be ruled, only in yͤ kynges ſeate will I be aboue the. And Pharao ſayde agayne vnto Joſeph: beholde, I haue ſet the ouer all the lande of Egypte. And he toke of hys rynge from hys hande, and put it vpon Joſephs hande, and arayed hym in cloth of raynes, and put a golden cheyne aboute hys necke, and ſet hym vpon the beſt charet that he had, ſaue one. And they cryed befoꝛe hym: Bowe the knee, and Pharao made hym ruler ouer all the lande of Egypte.

And Pharao ſayde vnto all the Egyptians, goo vnto Joſeph, ⁊ what he ſayth to you, that doo. And the derth was thoꝛow out all the land. There was no bread in all the lande, for C
the derth was exceadynge ſore: ſo that the

And Joſeph brought together all the mo-

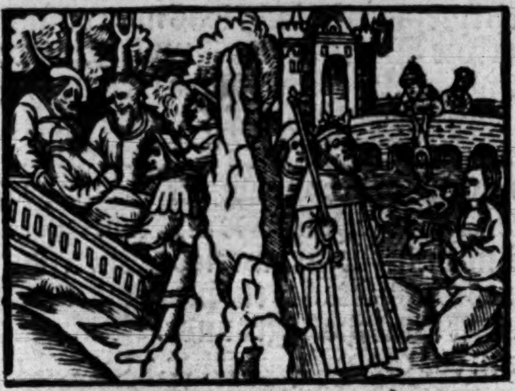
¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ The chyldrē of Iacob are nōbred. The newe Pharao oppreſſeth them. The acte of the godlye mydwyues.



A *Gen.xlvi.b

These are the names of yͤ chyldren of Iſrael, whiche came to Egipt with Iacob, euery mā came with his houſhold: Rubē Simeō, Leui, ād Iuda, Iſachar, zabulon, ād Beniamin, Dan, Nephtali, Gad, and Aſar. All the ſoules that came out of the loynes of Iacob were .lxx. But Ioſeph was in Egypte alreadye. And Ioſeph dyed and all his brethren and all that generaciō, *Act.vii.c Pſal.ciiii.c and the *chyldrē of Iſrael grewe, encreaſed, B multiplyed, ād waxed exceadinge myghty: and the lande was full of them.

But there roſe vp a newe kynge in Egypte whych knewe not Ioſeph. And he ſayde vnto his folke: beholde, the people of yͤ chyldrē of Iſrael are greater and myghtyer thā we. Come on, let vs playe wyſely with thē, leſt they multiplye, & leſt it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne thē ſelues vnto our enemyes and fyghte agaynſt vs, and ſo get them out of the lande.

Therfore dyd they ſet taſkemaſters ouer them, to kepe them vnder wͭ burthens. And they bylt vnto Pharao treaſure cities: C Phiton ād Rameſes. But the more they vexed thē, the more they multiplyed and grewe, ſo that they abhorred the chyldrē of Iſrael. And the Egyptiās helde the chyldren of Iſrael in bondage without mercye. Therfore was their lyfe bytter vnto thē in that cruell bondage, in claye & brycke, and all maner of worke in the feldes. For all theyr bondage which they ſerued thē, was ful of tyrannye.

And the kynge of Egypte ſayd vnto the mydwiues of the Hebrues women, of which the ones name was Sephora and the other Phua: when ye do the offyce of a mydwyfe D to the woman of the Hebrues and ſee in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, ye ſhal kyll it. But yf it be a daughter, it ſhall lyue. Notwithſtandynge the mydwyues feared God and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte cōmaunded them: but ſaued the menchyldren.

And the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwyues and ſayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on thys maner, and haue ſaued the menchyldren? And the mydwiues anſwered Pharao, that the Hebrues wemen are not as the wemē of Egypte: for they are ſturdie women, and are delyuered yer the mydwyues come at thē. And God therfore delt wel with the mydwyues. And the people multiplyed and waxed very myghtye. And it fortuned becauſe the mydwyues feared God, ☞ he made them houſes. ☜

And Pharao charged all hys people, ſayenge: All the menchyldrē that are borne caſt into the ryuer, and ſaue the maydechyldren alyue.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

¶ Moſes is borne and caſt into the flagges. He is taken vp of Pharaos daughter. He kylleth the Egyptian. He flyeth and maryeth a wyfe. The Iſraelytes crye vnto the Lorde.

A *Exod.vi.c i.Par.xxiii.b

And ther wente a mā of the houſe of Leui. And toke a daughter of Leui. And the wyfe conceaued and bare a ſonne. And when ſhe ſawe that it was a proper chylde, ſhe hyd him thre moneths. *Act.vii.c Hebr.xi.c And whē ſhe coulde no longer hyde him, ſhe toke a baſket of bulruſſhes & dawbed it with ſlyme and pytche, and layde the chyld therin, & put it in the flagges by the ryuers brynke. And his ſyſter ſtode a farre of to wete what wolde come of it. *And the daughter of Pharao came doune *to waſhe her ſelfe in the ryuer, ād hyr maydens walked alonge by the ryuers ſyde. *Act.vii.c xii.Reg.xi.a Dani.xiii.c. And when ſhe ſawe the baſket amōge yͤ flagges, ſhe ſent hir mayde to fetch it. And when ſhe had opened it, ſhe ſawe it was a chylde: and beholde the babe wepte. B And ſhe had compaſſyon on it, and ſayde: it is one of the Hebrues chyldren. Then ſayde hys ſyſter vnto Pharaos daughter: ſhall I go and call vnto the a nurſe of the Hebrues women, to nurſe the, the chylde? Pharaos daughter anſwered her: Go. And the mayde ranne and called the chyldes mother. To whom Pharaos daughter ſayd: Take thys chylde awaye, and nurſe it for me, I wyll rewarde the. And the woman toke the chylde, and nurſed it vp.

The chylde grewe, & ſhe brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, & it was made hyr ſōne & ſhe called yͤ name of it ☞ Moſes, becauſe ☜ (ſayd ſhe) I toke him out of yͤ water. And it happened in thoſe dayes, when Moſes was waxed great, that he wẽt out vnto his brethren and loked on their burdens, & ſpied an Egyptian ſmytynge an Hebrue which was one of hys brethren. And he loked rounde aboute, and when he ſawe no mã by, he ſlewe the Egyptiã, and hyd him in the ſande. And whã he was gone out another daye: beholde two Hebrues ſtroue to gether. And he ſayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: wherfore *Act. vii. b Gene. xix. b ſmyteſt ȳ thy felowe? He anſwered: *who C made the a man of auctoryte to iudge vs? Speakeſt thou to kyll me, as thou kylledſt the Egyptian? And Moſes feared & ſayd: of a ſuertie this thinge is knowne: And Pharao herde of it, and went about to ſlee Moſes: And Moſes flyenge frõ the face of Pharao, dwelt in the lande of Midian, ãd he ſat downe by a welles ſyde.

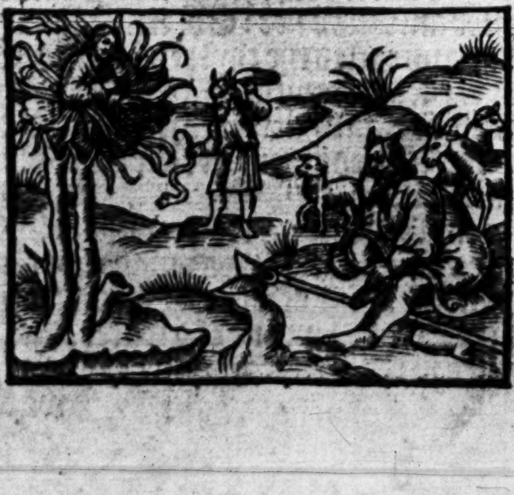
The preaſt of Midian had. vii. Daughters which came and drewe water, ãd fylled the troughes, for to water their fathers ſhepe. And the ſhephardes came and droue thẽ awaye: but Moſes ſtode vp and helped thẽ, and watered their ſhepe. And when they came to Raguell theyr father, he ſayde: howe happeneth it ȳ ye are come ſo ſoone to daye? And they anſwered: a man of Egypte delyuered vs frõ the hande of the ſhepardes, and ſo drewe vs water, & watered the ſhepe. He ſayde vnto hys daughters. And wher is he? why haue ye ſo left the man? Call hym that D he maye eate bread. And Moſes was cõtent to dwell with the man. And he gaue Moſes zephora his daughter, which whan ſhe bare *Exo. xviii. a a ſonne, *called hym Gerſon: for he ſayde: I haue bene a ſtraunger in a ſtraunge lande.

☙ ☙(And ſhe bare yet another ſonne, whom he called Elieſer, ſayenge: the God of my father is myne helper, and hath ryd me out of the handes of Pharao.)

And it chaunced in proceſſe of tyme, that the kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chyldrẽ of Iſrael ſyghed by the reaſon of bondage, & cryed. And their complaynt came vp vnto God frõ the bondage: and God hearde their mone. And God remembred hys promyſe with Abrahã, Iſahac and Iacob. And God ☞ ☞ loked vpon the chyldren of Iſrael, and God had reſpecte vnto them.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

¶ Moſes kepeth ſhepe. God appeareth vnto hym in a buſh, & ſendeth hym to the chyldren of Iſrael, and to Pharao that tyraunte.



A MOſes kepte the ſhepe of *Iethro *Ge. xviii. a hys father in lawe, preaſt of Midiã, and he droue the flocke to the backeſyde of the deſert, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. *And the *Exo. xiiii. a Actes. vii. d angell of the Lorde appeared vnto him in a flame of fyre out of the myddes of a buſh. A Moſes anſwered and ſayde: Se, they wyl not beleue me nor herkẽ vnto my voyce: but wil ſaye yͤ Lorde hath not apeared vnto the. And yͤ Lord ſaid vnto him: what is that which is in thyne hand? he anſwered a rodd. And he ſayd: caſt it on yͤ grounde. And he caſt it on the grounde, and it became a ſerpent. For this thinge (ſayeth he) ſhal they beleue the, that the Lorde God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Iſahac & the God of Iacob hath apeared vnto the.

B And the Lorde ſayde furthermore vnto hym: thruſt thyne hande in to thy boſome. And he thruſt hys hande in to hys boſome. ¶The tokens to knowe God. The rodd of Moſes is torned to a ſerpent. The ſorcerars do euen the ſame. The waters are turned into bloude.

B Moſes and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded thē, euen ſo dyd they. Moſes was lxxx. yere olde, and Aaron .lxxxiii. whē they ſpake vnto Pharao. And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron ſayenge: yf Pharao ſpeake vnto you ſayenge: ſhewe a wondre, thou ſhalt ſaye vnto Aaron: take thy rod and caſt it before Pharao, that it maye be a ſerpent. Than went Moſes and Aaron in vnto Pharao, and dyd euen as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aarō caſt forth hys rodd before Pharao and before his ſeruauntes * and it turned to a ſerpent. The.viii. Chapter.

The plage of frogges. Moſes prayeth for Pharao. The plage of the flyes.

A The Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes: Go vnto Pharao ād tel him, thus ſayeth the Lorde: *Exo.vii.e ix.a.x.a *let my people go that they maye ſerue me. Yf yͤ wylte not let them go: beholde, I wyl ſmyte al thy border with frogges. And the ryuer ſhall ſcrall wyth frogges, whyche ſhall go vp and come into thyne houſe and into thy preuy chambre where thou ſlepeſt, and vpon thy bed, and into the houſe of thy ſeruauntes, and vpon thy people, and into thyne ouens, and vpō thy meates. And the frogges ſhal come vpon the and on thy people and vpon all thy ſeruauntes.

*pſa.lxxvii e *And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes: ſaye vnto Aaron: ſtretche forth thyne hāde with B thy rod ouer the ſtreames, ouer the ryuers, and ouer the pondes, that thou mayeſt brynge vp frogges vpon yͤ lande of Egypt. And Aaron ſtretched his hande ouer the waters of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, ⁊ couered the lande of Egypte. And the ſorcerers dyd lyke wyſe w͛ theyr ſorcery, and brought frogges vp vpon the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharao called for Moſes ⁊ Aaron *iii.re.xiii. Exod.ix.f and.x.e Act.viii.d and ſayd: *praye ye vnto the Lorde that he maye take awaye the frogges from me and C from my people, ād I wyl let the people go, that they maye do ſacrifyce vnto the Lord. ☞.o+ And Moſes ſayde vnto Pharao: ☞.o+ reioyſe thou ouer me, and appoynte whan I ſhall praye for the and for thy ſeruauntes, and for thy people, to driue awaye the frogges from the, and thy houſes, and that they maye remayne but in the ryuer only. He ſayde: tomorowe. And he ſayde: euen as thou haſt ſayde, that thou mayeſt knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lorde our God. And ſo the frogges ſhall departe from the and from thy houſes, from thy ſeruauntes and from thy people, and ſhall remayne in the ryuer only.

D Moſes and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moſes cryed vnto the Lorde vpon yͤ apoyntment of frogges, which he had made vnto Pharao. And the Lorde dyd accordynge to the ſayenge of Moſes. And yͤ frogges dyed out of the houſes, out of yͤ courtes and feldes. And they gathered thē together vpon heapes, and the lande ſtanke of them.

But when Pharao ſawe that he had reſt geuen him, he herdened his herte and herkened not vnto them, as the Lorde had ſayde. And the Lord ſayd vnto Moſes: ſaye vnto Aaron: ſtretche out thy rodd and ſmyt the duſt of the lande, that it maye turne to lyſe E thorowe out all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd ſo. For Aarō ſtretched out his hād ⁊ with his rod he ſmote the duſt of the earth which turned to lyſe in mē and beaſt, ſo that all the duſt of the lande turned to lyſe, thorowe out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters aſſayde lykewyſe with their enchauntmentes to brynge forth lyſe, but they coulde not. And the lyſe were both vpon men and beaſtes. Then ſayde the ☞ enchaunters vnto Pharao: it is the ☞ fyngre of God. And Pharaos hart remayned obſtinate, and he harkened not vnto them, *Exod.vii. euen * as the Lorde had ſayde.

And the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes: ryſe

Pharao, for he wyll come forth vnto yͤ water and thou ſhal ſaye vnto him: thus ſayth
yͤ Lorde: Let my people go, that they maye

ſhall this myracle be done.

The Lorde dyd euen ſo: and there came noyſome flyes into the houſe of Pharao, ⁊ into his ſeruauntes houſes, and into all the lande of Egipte: and the lãde was corrupte
wͭ theſe flyes. And Pharao called for Moſes and Aaron, and ſayde: Go, and do ſacrifyce vnto youre God in the lande. And Moſes anſwered: it is not mete that we ſo do.
For then we muſt offer vnto the Lorde our God, that whych is an abhomination vnto
the Egypcians. But and yf we ſacrifyce yͭ, whych is an abhomination vnto yͤ Egypcians
before theyr eyes, ſhulde they not ſtone vs? we wyll go thre dayes iorneye into yͤ

G And Pharao ſayd: I will let you go, that ye maye ſacryfyce vnto yͤ Lord youre God
in the wilderneſſe: but go not farre awaye, praye for me. And Moſes ſayde: beholde, I wyll go out from the, ⁊ praye vnto yͤ Lord,
that the flyes maye departe from Pharao,
and from hys ſeruauntes and from hys people to morow. But let Pharao frõ hẽſforth deceaue nomore, that he will not let yͤ people go to ſacrifyce vnto the Lorde.

And Moſes went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde dyd accordinge to the ſayĩge of Moſes ⁊ yͤ flyes departed from Pharao, and frõ hys ſeruaũtes,
and from his people, ⁊ there remayned
not one. And Pharao hardened hys herte euen then alſo, ⁊ dyd not let the people go.

a tyme, ſaying: to morow the Lord ſhall fynyſh

And the Lorde dyd it on the morow, and all the catell of Egypte dyed: but of yͤ catell of the children of Iſrael dyed not one. And Pharao ſent, and beholde, ther was not one

And the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes and B

And thou ſhalt ſpeake vnto all that are wyſe harted, and whomſoeuer I haue fylled wyth the ſprete of wyſdome: that they make Aarons rayment to conſecrate hym with, that he maye mynyſter vnto me.

These are the garmētes which they ſhall make, a breſt lap, Ephod, a tunycle, a ſtrayte cote, a myter ⁊ a gyrdell. These holy garB mentes ſhall they make for Aaron thy brother ⁊ hys ſonnes, that they maye mynyſter vnto me. And let them take golde, yelowe ſilk, purple, ſkarlet and white twyned ſilk. They ſhal make the Ephod of gold, yelow, ſylke, purple, ſkarlet and white twyned ſilke wᵗ broderd worke. The two ſydes ſhall come together, and be cloſed vp in the two edges therof. And thou ſhalt take two onix ſtones, and graue in them the names of the chyldren of Iſrael: ſyxe names of them in the one ſtone, and the other ſyxe in the other ſtone: accordynge to (the order of) their byrth. After the worck of a ſtonegrauer, ⁊ of hym that graueth ſignettes ſhalt thou graue the two ſtones with the names of yͤ chyldren of Iſrael, and ſhalt make them to be ſet in golde. And thou ſhalt put the two ſtones vpon the two ſhoulders of the Ephod, that they maye be ſtones of remēbraunce vnto the chyldren of Iſrael. And Aaron ſhall beare theyr names before the Lorde vpon hys two ſhoulders E for a remembraunce. And thou ſhalt make hokes of golde ⁊ two cheynes of fyne golde: lynkworke ⁊ wrethed, ⁊ faſten the wrethed cheynes to the hokes.

And thou ſhalt make the breſtlap of iudgement wyth broderd worke, euen after the worke of the Ephod ſhalt thou make it: namely of golde, yelow ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, and white twyned ſilke, ſhalt thou make it. And the other two endes of the two cheynes, thou ſhalt faſten in two cloſe hokes, and put them vpon the ſhulders of the Ephod on the foreſyde of it. And thou ſhalt yet make two rynges of golde, which thou mayeſt put in the two edges of the breſtlappe, euen in the borders therof, towarde the in ſyde of the Ephod overagenſt it. And yet two other ringes of golde thou ſhalt make: and put them on yͤ two ſydes of the Ephod, beneth oueragaynſt yͤ breſtlap, alowe where yͤ ſydes are ioyned together vpon yͤ brodered gyrdell of the Ephod. And Aaron ſhall beare the names of the E chyldren of Iſrael in the breſtlap of iudgement vpon his hert, when he goeth into the holy place for a remembraunce before the Lorde allwaye. And thou ſhalte put in the ☞ breſtlappe of iudgement ☞ Urim and Thumin: ⁊ they ſhalbe euen vpon Aarons hert, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron ſhall beare yͤ iudgement of the chyldren of Iſrael vpon hys herte before yͤ Lorde allwaye.

And thou ſhalt make yͤ tunycle vnto the Ephod altogether of yelow ſylke. And ther ſhalbe an hole for yͤ heed in the myddes of it hauyng a bonde of wouen worke rounde a- F bout the coler of it (as it were the coller of a parlet) that it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou ſhalt make pomgranates of yelow ſylke ⁊ of purple and ſkarlet, round about the hem, and belles of golde betwene them rounde about: ⁊ let there be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate, rounde about vpon the * Eccl.xlv.b. hem of the tunycle. * And Aaron ſhall haue it vpon hym, when he mynyſtreth, and the ſoūde ſhalbe hearde, when he goeth into the holy place before the Lorde, and when he cōmeth out, and he ſhall not dye.

And thou ſhalt make a plate of pure gold, and graue theron, as ſygnettes are grauen. The holyneſſe of the Lorde, and put it on a yelow ſylke lace to be vpon yͤ mytre, euen vpon the forefront of it. And it ſhalbe vpon Aarons foreheed: that Aaron maye beare ☞ ☞ the ſynne of the holy thynges which the chyldren of Iſrael halowe in all their holye G gyftes. And it ſhalbe allwayes vpon his foreheed, for the reconcylynge of them before the Lorde.

And thou ſhalt make a lynnen cote, and thou ſhalt make a mytre of lynnen ⁊ a gyrdell of nedle worke.

And thou ſhalt make for Aarons ſonnes alſo cotes, gyrdelles ⁊ bonettes, gloryous and bewtyfull: ⁊ thou ſhalt put them vpon Aaron thy brother, and on his ſonnes with ☞ hym: and ſhalt anoynte them, and ☞ fyll theyr handes, and ſanctifye them, that they maye mynyſtre vnto me. And yͧ ſhalt make them lynnen breches to couer theyr preuytyes, from yͤ loynes vnto yͤ thies ſhall they reach. ❡ The conſecracyon of Aaron and hys ſonnes.

A * Leui.viii.b. This thyng alſo ſhalt thou do vnto them, when thou * halloweſt them to be my preſtes. Thou ſhalt take a calfe, euen a yonge oxe, and two rammes that are without blemyſh, and vnleuened breade, and cakes of ſwete bread tempered with oyle, ⁊ wafers of ſwete bread anoynted wͭ oyle (of wheten floure ſhalt yͧ make them) and put them in a maūde, and brynge them in the maunde with the calfe and the two rammes.

And brynge Aaron and his ſonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and waſhe them wyth water, and take the garmentes, ⁊ put vpon Aaron: the ſtrayte cote the tunycle of the Ephod, ⁊ the Ephod, and the breſtlappe: and gyrd them to hym with the brodered gyrdell whych is in yͤ Ephod. And put the mytre vpon his heed: ⁊ put the holy crowne vpon the mytre. Then ſhalt thou take the anoyntyng oyle, and powre it vpon his heed, ⁊ anoynte hym. And bryng B hys ſonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrd them with gyrdels, aſwell Aaron, as his ſonnes. And put yͤ myters on them, and the preaſtes office ſhalbe theirs for a perpetuall lawe.

And thou ſhalt fyll the handes of Aaron and of hys ſonnes: and bryng yͤ calfe before the tabernacle of wytnes. * And Aaron ād * Leui.i.b. hys ſonnes ſhall put theyr handes vpon the heed of the calfe, and thou ſhalt kyll him before the Lorde, by the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And take of yͤ bloud of the calfe and put it vpon yͤ hornes of the aulter with thy fynger: and powre all the bloude beſyde the bothome of the aulter, and take all yͤ fat that couered yͤ inwardes, and the kall that is on the lyuer, and the two kydneis and the fat that is vpon them: ⁊ burne them vpon the aulter. Thou ſhalt alſo take one ram, ⁊ Aaron and hys ſonnes ſhall put theyr hādes vpon the head of the ram, and when yͧ haſt ſlayne the ramme, thou ſhalt take hys bloude, and ſprynkle it rounde about vpon the aulter, and cut yͤ ram in peces, and waſhe yͤ inwardes of him ⁊ his legges, and put them vnto the peces and vnto his heed: and then burne the hole ram vpon yͤ aulter for a burnt offeryng vnto yͤ Lorde, and for a ſwete ſauour and a ſacryfyce vnto the Lorde.

*Leui.viii.c. *And thou ſhalt take the fatt of the ram and hys rompe, and yͤ fatt that couereth the inwardes, and the kall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys, and yͤ fat that is vpon them, and the ryghte ſhoulder: for yͤ ram is a fullofferynge: and a ſymnell of bread, and a cake of oyle bread, and a wafer out of the baſkette of ſwete breade that is before the Lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aaron, and on the handes of hys ſonnes: and waue them for a waue offerynge before the Lorde. And agayne, thou ſhalt take it from of theyr handes, and burne it vpon the aulter for a burntofferige, to be a ſauoure of ſwetnes before the Lorde. For it is a ſacrifyce vnto the Lorde.

¶ The apparell of Aaron and his ſonnes. All that the Loꝛde commaunded was offred.

A And of the yelowe ſylke, purple ⁊ ſcarlet, they made the veſtime͂tes of myniſtracio͂ to do ſeruice in yͤ holy place and made the holy garmentes foꝛ Aarõ, as the Loꝛde commaunded Moſes.

And he made the Ephod of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet ⁊ whyte twyned ſylke. And they dyd beate the gold into thinne plates, ⁊ cutte it into wyers: to woꝛke it in the yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, and in the fyne white, with bꝛodꝛed woꝛke. And they made two ſydes foꝛ it, to cloſe them vp by the two edges. And the bꝛodꝛyng of the gyꝛdell that was vpon it, was of the ſame ſtuffe, and after the ſame woꝛke: of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, and twyned whyte ſylke, as the Loꝛde commaunded Moſes. B

And they wꝛought Onix ſtones cloſed in ouches of gold, and graued as ſygnettes are grauen wyth the names of the chyldꝛen of Jſrael, and put them on the ſhoulders of the Ephod, that they ſhuld be ſtones foꝛ a reme͂bꝛau͂ce of the childꝛen of Jſrael, as the Loꝛd commaunded Moſes.

C And he made the bꝛeaſtlappe of connyng woꝛcke, and lyke the woꝛcke of the Ephod: euen of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet ⁊ twyned whyte ſylke. It was.iiii.ſquare, ãd they made the bꝛeaſtlappe double, an hande bꝛeadeth longe and an hãde bꝛeadeth bꝛode And they fylled it wyth.iiii. rowes of ſtones. *oꝛ an Emeraude.
‡oꝛ a Carbu͂cle.

D And they made vpõ the bꝛeaſtlappe, two faſtenynge cheynes of wꝛethen woꝛcke and pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde, ⁊ two golde rynges, and put the two rynges in the two coꝛners of yͤ bꝛeaſtlappe. And they put the two chaynes of golde in yͤ two rynges, in the coꝛners of yͤ bꝛeaſtlappe: And the two endes of the two chaynes they faſtened in the two hokes, and put them on the ſhoulders of the Ephod vpon the foꝛe front of it.

And they made two rynges of golde, and put them on the two corners of the breaſtlappe vpon the edge of it whych was on the inſyde by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two ſydes of the Ephod, beneth on the foreſyde of it and ouer agaynſt hys felowe, aboue vpon the brodrynge of the Ephod, and they ſtrapned the breaſtlappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, wyth a lace of yelowe ſylke: that it myght be vpon the brodringe of the Ephod, ād that the breaſtlappe ſhulde not be lowſed frō of the Ephod: as the Lord commaunded Moſes.

E And he made the tunycle vnto the Ephod of wouē worke, altogether of yelowe ſylke, and there was an hole in the myddeſt of the tunycle, as yͤ coler of a partlet, wyth a bōde rounde aboute the coler, that it ſhulde not rent. And in the tunycle they made hemmes with pomgranates, of yelowe ſylke, purple ſcarlet, and whyte twyned ſylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put thē amonge the pōgranates rounde about vpō the edge of the tunycle: a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate roūde about the hemmes of the tunycle to miniſtre in, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worcke for Aaron and hys ſonnes, & a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breches of twyned whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelowe ſylke, purple and ſcarlet: euē of nedleworcke, as the Lord commaunded Moſes. F And they made the plate for the holy croune of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it wyth grauen worcke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tyed vnto it a lace of yelowe ſylke to faſtē it an hye vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

Thus was all the worcke of the habytacyon and of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe fynyſhed. And the childrē of Iſrael dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde had cōmaunded Moſes: euen ſo dyd they. And they brought the habitacion vnto Moſes: the tent and al his apparell, buttones, boordes, barres, pillers and ſockettes, the couerynge of rams ſkinnes redd, & the coueryng of taxus ſkynnes, G and the hangynge vayle, the arcke of witneſſe and the barres therof, and the mercyſeate: the table and all the veſſels therof, & the ſhewbred: the pure candelſtycke, wyth the lampes therof: euen wyth the lampes to be prepared and al the veſſels therof, ād the oyle for lyghte: the golden altare, and the anoyntynge oyle, and the ſwete cens, and the hangynge of the Tabernacle doore, and the braſen alter with his gredyren of braſſe, his barres and all hys veſſels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynges of the courte wyth hys pyllers and ſockettes: the hangynge to the courte gate, and hys pynnes and coardes, & all the veſſell of the ſeruyce of the habitacion for the Tabernacle of wytneſſe: the myniſtrynge veſtimentes to ſerue in the holye place, and the holy veſtimentes for Aaron yͤ preaſt, and hys ſonnes raymentes to myniſtre in, accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded Moſes: euen ſo the children of Iſrael made al the worke. And Moſes beheld all the worke, and ſe, they had done it euen as the Lorde commaunded: euen ſo had they done, and Moſes bleſſed them.

For theyr anoyntynge ſhal be an euerlaſtyng preſthode vnto them thorowe out theyr generacyons. *And Moſes *Num.viii. dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: euen ſo dyd he.

Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp C the fyrſt daye in the fyrſt moneth in the ſecōde yere. And he put the table in the tabernacle of witneſſe in the northſyde of the habitacion, (but wythoute the vaple) and ſet the bread in ordre before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moſes.

And he put the candelſticke in the tabernacle of wytneſſe ouer agaynſt the table towarde the ſouthſyde of the habitacyon, ⁊ ſet vp the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaũded Moſes. And he put the golden alter in the tabernacle of witneſſe before the vaple, and brent ſwete cens theron, as the Lorde cõmaunded Moſes. And he hanged vp the hangynge at the dore of the habitacyon, and ſet the burntofferynge alter by the entrynge in of the habitaciõ of the tabernacle of witneſſe, and offred burntofferynges and meatoffrynges theron, as the Lord commaunded Moſes.

*Exod.xxx.c D *And he ſet the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytneſſe and the alter, and poured water therin, to waſh withall. *Nume.ix.c * And the cloude couered the tabernacle of witneſſe, and the glorye of the Lorde fylled the habitacyon. And Moſes coulde not entre into the tabernacle of witneſſe, becauſe the cloude abode theron, and the glorye of the Lord fylled yͤ habitacion. ⊶ ⊶ (For the cloude had couered all.

G Let euery crepinge thynge that crepeth vpon the erth be an abhominacyon, and not be eaten. Whatſoeuer goeth vpon the breſt and whatſoeuer goeth vpon foure, or that hath moo fete amonge all creppynge thiges that crepe vpon yͤ erth, of that ſe ye eate not for they are abhominable. Ye ſhall not make youre ſoules abhominable wyth nothig yͭ crepeth, nether make your ſelues vncleane wyth them: that ye ſhulde be defyled therby. For I am the Lorde youre God. Be ſanctifyed therfore, and ye ſhall be holy * for I am holy: and ye ſhal not defyle youre ſoules wyth any maner of creppynge thynge, that crepeth vpon the erth. For I am the Lorde, that brought you out of the lāde of Egypt, to be youre God: ye ſhallbe holy therfore, for I am holy.

Thys is the lawe of beaſtes and foules & of euery lyuynge creature that moueth in yͤ waters, and of euery creature that crepeth vpon the erth, that there maye be a difference betwene the vncleane & clene, and betwene the beaſte that maye be eaten, & the beaſte that ought not to be eaten.

¶ The.xiii.Chapter.

¶ The Preaſtes muſt iudge who are Lepers.

A AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron ſayenge: whē there apeareth a ryſynge in any mans fleſhe, ether a ſcabbe, or a glyſtrynge whyte: and the plage of leproſye be in the ſkynne of hys fleſhe, he ſhall be brought vnto Aaron yͤ Preaſte, or vnto one of his ſonnes the Preaſtes: and the Preaſte ſhall loke on the ſore ī the ſkynne of hys fleſhe. And whan the heere in the ſore is turned vnto whyte, and the ſore alſo ſeme to be lower then the ſkynne of his fleſh it wyll be a plage of leproſye, and the Preaſte ſhall loke on hym, and iudge hym vnclene.

If there be but a whyte plecke in the ſkynne of his fleſh, and ſeme not to be lower then the ſkynne, nor yͤ heere therof is turned vnto whyte, yͤ Preaſte ſhall ſhut hym vp ſeuē dayes. And the Preaſte ſhall loke vpō hym agayne yͤ ſeuenth daye: And yf yͤ plage ſeme to him to abyde ſtyll, & yͤ plage growe not ī

Then yf the plage be darcker, ⁊ not growen in the ſkynne, the Preaſt ſhall iudge hym clene, for it is but a ſkyrf. And he ſhal waſhe his clothes, ⁊ be clene, But ⁊ yf the ſcabbe growe in the ſkynne after that he is ſene of the Preaſt, ⁊ iudged clene, he ſhalbe ſene of the preſt agayne. If the preaſt ſe that the ſcabbe be growē abrode in the ſkynne, ☞ the preſt ſhall make hī

When the plage of leproſye is in a man

And yf the ryſynge be white in the ſkynne, and haue made the heare whyte, and there be rawe fleſhe ī the ſore it wyl be an olde leproſye ī the ſkynne of his fleſh. And the Preaſt ſhall make hyn vnclene, and ſhall not ſhutte hym vp ſeynge he is vnclene.

If a leproſye breake out abrode in ẏ ſkynne, ⁊ couer all the ſkynne, from hys heed to hys foote, wherſoeuer ẏ Preaſt loketh, and the Preaſt loke vpō him. And yf ẏ leproſye haue couered all his fleſh, he ſhall iudge the plage to be clene becauſe it is all turned ītο whytneſſe, ⁊ he ſhalbe cleane. But ⁊ yf there be rawe fleſhe on hī whē he is ſene, he ſhalbe vncleane. And ẏ Preaſt ſhal ſe ẏ rawe fleſh, Yf there be any fleſh, in whoſe ſkynne there is a hote burnynge, and the fleſh that burneth haue a whyte ſpott, ſom what reddyſh or whyte, ẏ preſt ſhall loke vpon it. And yf the heare in that bryght ſpot be chaunged to whyte, and it appeare lower then the ſkine, it is a leproſye broken out of the burnynge. And therfore the Preaſte ſhall iudge hym vncleane, ſeynge it is the plage of leproſye. But yf the preaſt loke on it ⁊ there be no whyte heare, ī the bryghte ſpott, and be no lower then the other ſkynne, but be darcker, the preaſt ſhal ſhut hym vp ſeuen dayes. And ẏ preaſt ſhal loke on hym the ſeuenth daye: And yf it be growē abroad in the ſkynne, the preaſt ſhall iudge him vncleane, ſeynge it is the plage of leproſye. And the man (whoſe heade is deſtytute of heare, wherby he is made balde) is cleane. And he that hath hys heare out in his forehede, is forehed balde and cleane. If there be in the balde heed or baulde forehed a whyte reddyſh ſore ſcabbe, there is leproſye ſpronge vp in hys baulde heed or baulde forehede. And the preaſt ſhall loke vpon him and yf the ryſynge of the ſore be whyte reddyſh in hys baulde heed or balde forehede after the maner of a leproſye which is in the G ſkynne of the fleſhe, then he is a leperoꝰ mā and vncleane. And the preaſte ſhall make hym vncleane, for the plage therof is in hys heed. The leper in whome the plage is, ſhal haue his clothes rent, and hys heed bare and ſhall put a coueryng vpon hys lyppe, and ſhalbe called vnclene and defyled. And as longe as the dyſeaſe laſteth vpon hym, he ſhalbe defyled and vncleane: he ſhall dwell alone, euen* wythout the hoſt ſhall hys habitacyon be.

And yf he perceaue that the plage hath growne further in the houſe, it is a fretynge leproſye in the houſe. It is therfore vncleane. And he ſhall breake downe the houſe. ¶ They are bleſſed that kepe thoſe thynges that God byddeth.

A YE ſhall * make you no ydolles nor grauen ymage, nether reare you vp any ſtone, nether ſhall ye ſet vp any ymage of ſtone in your lād to worſhyppe it: for I am the Lord youre God: ye ſhall kepe my Sabbothes, and feare my ſanctuary: for I am the Lorde.

* Deu. v. a.

✠ Yf ye walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my commaundementes, and do them, I wyll ſende you rayne in the ryght ſeaſon and ẏ lande ſhall yelde her encreaſe, and the trees of the felde ſhall geue their frute. And the threſſhynge ſhall reach vnto wyne harueſt, and the wyne harueſt ſhall reach vnto ſowynge tyme, and ye ſhall eate your bread in plenteouſnes, & dwell in youre lāde peaſably. And I wyll ſende peace in the lande, and ye ſhall ſlepe wythout any man to make you afrayde.

These are ẏ ordinaunces, and iudgementes, & lawes, which the Lorde made betwene hym and the chyldren of Iſrael in mount Sinai, by the hande of Moſes.

The .xxvii. Chapter.

Of diuerſes vowes, and of tythes &c.

AND the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes ſayinge: ſpeake vnto ẏ chyldren of Iſrael, and ſaye vnto them: If any man wyll geue a ſynguler vowe vnto the Lord accordynge to ẏ value of the ſoules, the value of ẏ male from twentye yeare olde vnto ſixtye ſhalbe fiftye *ſycles of ſyluer, after *Nu.iii.g. the weyght of ẏ ſanctuary. And yf it be a female, the value ſhalbe thyrtye ſicles. And from fyue yeares to twentye, the male ſhalbe ſet at twentye ſicles, and ẏ female at ten ſicles. And from a moneth vnto fyue yeare, ẏ male ſhalbe ſet at fyue ſycles of ſyluer, & the female at thre. And he ẏ is ſyxtye yeare olde, and aboue, ſhalbe valued at fiftene ſycles, and the woman at ten. But if he be to poore ſo to be ſet, he ſhall preſent hym ſelfe before the preaſt: and the preaſt ſhall value B hym, accordynge as the hande of hym that vowed is able to get, euen ſo ſhall the preaſt value hym. A

If it be a beaſte of whych men brynge an offrynge vnto the Lorde: all that any man geueth of ſoche vnto the Lorde, ☞ ſhalbe ☞ counted holy. He ſhall not alter it nor chaũge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And yf he chaũge beaſt for beaſt, then both the ſame beaſt and it alſo wherwith it was chaunged ſhalbe holy. If it be any maner of vnclene beaſt, of which mẽ do not offer a ſacrifyce vnto ẏ Lord, he ſhall ſet ẏ beaſt before ẏ preaſt, and ẏ preaſt ſhall value it whether it be good or bad. And as the preaſt ſetteth it, ſo ſhall it be. But yf he wyll bye it agayne, he ſhall geue the fyft parte moare aboue that it was ſet at.

C If any man dedicate his houſe, to be holy vnto the Lord, ẏ preaſt ſhall ſet it, whether it be good or bad: and as the preaſt hath ſet it, ſo ſhall the value be. And whan he that ☞ ſanctifyed it wyll redeme his houſe, let ☞ hym geue ẏ fyft parte of the money that it was iudged at therto, and it ſhalbe hys.

If a man ☞ halowe a pece of hys enhe- ☞ reted lãde vnto ẏ Lorde, it ſhalbe ſet accordynge to ÿ ſede therof. If it beare an homer of barlye, it ſhalbe ſet at fyftye ſycles of ſyluer. If he halowe his felde immediatly frõ ÿ yeare of iubely, it ſhalbe worth accordĩge as it is eſtemed. But yf he halowe his felde after ÿ Iubelye, the preaſt ſhall recken the money accordynge to ÿ value of ÿ yeares that remayne vnto ÿ yeares of Iubelye folowynge, & there after it ſhal be lower ſet.

If he that conſecrated the felde, will redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyft parte of the pryce that it was ſet at there vnto, and it ſhalbe hys. And yf he will not redeme the felde, but ſelleth the felde to another man, he (that bought) maye redeme it nomore. But when the felde goeth out in ÿ yeare of iubelye, it ſhalbe made holy vnto the Lord: euen as a felde that is vtterly put awaye, and it ſhall be the preaſtes poſſeſſyon.

If a man ſanctifye vnto the Lord a felde, which he hath boughte, and is not of his enheritaunce, the preaſt ſhall reken vnto hym what it is worth vnto the yeare of iubelye, and he ſhall geue the pryce ÿ it is ſet at, the ſame daye, as a thĩge cõſecrated vnto ÿ Lorde. And in the yeare of iubelye, ÿ felde ſhall returne vnto him of whome he boughte it, euen to hym, whoſe enheritaũce of lãd it is.

And all ſettynge ſhalbe accordĩge to the ſycle * of the ſanctuary. One ſycle conteyneth twentye halfpens.

* Exo. xxx. b.

* But the fyrſt borne of the beaſtes that is appoynted vnto the Lorde, maye no man ſãctifye: whether it be oxe or ſhepe, for it is the Lordes allredy. If it be an vncleane beaſt, he ſhal redeme it, as it is ſet at, and geue the fyft parte moare therto: Or, yf it be not redemed, it ſhalbe ſolde, accordynge to the value.

* Deut. xv. d.

Not withſtãdynge, no dãned thynge that a man putteth from hym and dedycateth vnto ÿ Lorde of all hys good (whether it be man or beaſt or lãde of his enheritaũce) maye be ſold or redemed: for euery thynge ſo put awaye, is moſt holy vnto the Lorde. Let no damned thynge that a man ſeparateth, be redemed, but dye the death.

Euery tythe of the lande which is of the ſede of the lande, or of the frute of the trees, is ÿ Lordes, and is ſanctifyed vnto ÿ Lord. And yf a man wyll redeme ought of his tythes, let hym adde ÿ fyft parte therto. And euery tythe of oxe & of ſhepe & of euery beaſt that goeth vnder ÿ rodde, euen euery tenth ſhalbe holy vnto ÿ Lord. He ſhall not loke yf it be good or bad, ner chaunge it. Els, yf he chaunge it, both it, & that it was chaunged withall, ſhalbe halowed vnto the Lorde and maye not be redemed.

These are the commaundemẽtes, which the Lorde commaunded by Moſes vnto the chyldren of Iſrael in mount Sinai.

¶ The .v. Chapter.

¶ The knowlegynge of ſynne. The cleanſynge of ſynne. The lawe of the fyrſt frutes, and of gelouſye.

A And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayenge: commaunde the chyldren of Iſrael that they *put ☞ out of the hoſte, euery leper and euery one that hath an yſſue, and whoſoeuer is ☞ defyled vpon a ſoule. Both male and female ſhall ye put out: euen out of the hooſt ſhall ye put them, that they defyle not the tentes amonge whiche I dwell. And the chyldren of Iſrael dyd ſo, and put them out of the hoſte, euē as the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſo dyd the chyldren of Iſrael.

*Leui. xiii. g ☞ ☞

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: whether it be *man or woman. Yf they haue cōmytted any ſynne that a mā doeth, and haue treſpaced agaynſt the Lorde, that ſoule hath done amyſſe: Therfore they ſhall knowledge theyr ſynne whyche they haue done, and let him reſtore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and put the fyft parte of it more therto, & geue it vnto hym whom B he hath treſpaced agaynſt. But ād yf there be not a man to reſtore the hurt vnto, ner a kynſman of his, let ẏ treſpace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it ſhalbe the Preaſtes, ☞ beſyde the ramme ☞ of the attonement wherby an attonemēt ſhalbe made for him. And euery heueofferyng that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldrē of Iſrael which they brynge vnto the Preaſte, ſhall be hys: and euery mans halowed thinges ſhalbe his: ād whatſoeuer any man geueth the Preaſt, it ſhalbe his.

*Leuit. v. g.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, ād ſaye vnto thē: Yf any mans wyfe go a ſyde and treſpace agaynſt hym, ſo that another man lye with her fleſhly, and it be hyd from the eyes of her huſbande, and is not come to lyght that ſhe is defyled, and ther is no witneſſe againſt her, neyther ſhe taken with the maner, and the ſpirete of gelouſye commeth vpon him, ſo that he is gelouſe ouer his wyfe which is defyled: or yf the ſpirete of gelouſye come vpon hym, ſo that he is gelouſe ouer his wyfe which is yet vndefyled: then let the man brynge his wyfe vnto the Preaſte, and brynge with her an offerynge for her: ẏ tenth parte of an Epha of barlye meale, but let hym put none oyle vpon it, nor put frankencens theron: for it is an offerynge of gelouſye, an offerynge for a remembraunce, cauſynge the ſynne to be thought vpon.

And the Preaſte ſhall brynge her and ſet her before the Lorde, and let hym *☞ take holy water in an erthen veſſell, & of the duſt that is in the floore of the habytacyon, and put it into the water. And let the preaſt ſet the woman before the Lorde, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memoryall of the offerynge in her handes whych is the gelouſye offerynge, and the preaſt ſhal haue bytter and curſyd water in hys hande, & the preſt ſhal charge her, and ſaye vnto the woman. Yf no man haue lyen wyth the, nether haſt gone aſyde to vnclenneſſe wythout thy huſbande, then haue thou no harme of this bytter, and curſed waters.

But and yf thou haſt gone aſyde behynde thyne huſbāde, and art defyled, and ſome other man hath lyen wyth the beſyde thyne huſbande, (& the preaſt ſhall charge the woman with an horible curſe, & the preaſt ſhall ſaye vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhomynacyon and a curſe amōge thy people: when the Lorde doth make thy thye rotte, and thy bely ſwell: Theſe curſyd waters go into the bowels of the, that they maye make thy bely ſwell, & thy thye rotte, and let the woman ☞ ſaye, Amen Amen. ☞

D And let the preaſt wryte theſe curſes: And when they be clenſed, let him caſt them in to bytter waters, & geue the woman thoſe bytter and curſed waters to drynke, that thoſe curſed & bitter waters maye entre into her. And then the preaſte ſhall take the gelouſy offrynge out of the womans hande, & waue it before the Lord, & brynge it vnto the alter & the preaſt ſhal take an handefull of the offeryng for a memoryall, ẏ burne it vpō the alter, & then make the womā drynke ẏ water: & when he hath made the womā drynke the waters (yf ſhe be defyled & haue treſpaced agaynſt her huſbāde:) then ſhal the curſyd & bytter waters go in to her, ād her bely ſhall ſwel, & her thye ſhall rotte, & ẏ woman ſhalbe a curſe amonge her people. And yf ẏ woman be not defyled but is cleane, ſhe ſhal haue no harme, but ſhall conceaue ād beare.

This is the lawe of gelouſye, whē a wyfe goeth aſyde behynde hyr huſbande, and is defyled, or when the ſpyrte of gelouſy commeth vpon a man, & he beynge gelouſe ouer hys wyfe, doth brynge her before the Lorde. ¶ The .vi. Chapter.

¶ The lawe of abſtynēce. The bleſſynge of the people.

A And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſaye vnto them: when ether man or woman dothe ſeparate them ſelues ☞ to vowe a vowe of ☞ an abſteince, and appoynte them ſelues vnto the Lorde, he ſhall *Iudi.xiii.a Amos.ii.d ſeparate hym ſelfe from *wyne and ſtronge drynke, and ſhall drynke no vynagre of wyne nor of ſtrōge drynke, nor ſhall drynke whatſoeuer is preſſed out of grapes: & ſhall eate no freſhe grapes nether yet dryed. And yf it fortune that any man by chaunce dye ſodenly before hym, the head of his *Act.xviii.d abſtinence ſhalbe defyled, ād he ſhall *ſhaue hys head the days of his clenſynge: euen the ſeuenth daye he ſhal ſhaue it. And the preaſt ſhall brynge hym before the Lord, and offer his ſynofferynge and his burntofferynge, and ſhal offer the ram for a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde, wyth the baſket of ſwete breed, & the preaſt ſhal offer alſo his meatoffrynge & his drinkoffrynge. And he ſhall ſhaue the head of the abſteyner in the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe: euē the head of his abſtinence, and ſhal take the heere of his ſober head, & put it in the fyre, which is vnder the peaceofferynge. And the preaſte ſhall take the ſodden ſhoulder of the ram, and one ſwete cake out of the baſket, & one ſwete wafer alſo, and put them vpō the handes of the abſteyner (after he hath ſhauē his abſtinence of) and the preaſt ſhall ☞ (take them of hym, and) waue them before the Lorde. ☞

D And theſe holy thynges ſhalbe the preaſtes with the wauebreſt ād heue ſhoulder: & then the abſteyner maye drynke wyne. And yͤ Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto Aaron and his ſonnes, ſaying: of thys wyſe ye ſhall bleſſe the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſaye vnto them.

¶Certayne men are ſent to ſearche the lande of Canaan.

And Moſes at the cōmaundement of the Lord ſent forth out of the wyldernes of Pharan ſuche mē as were all heades of the children of Iſrael: Their names are theſe.

Of the trybe of Ruben, Sammua the ſonne of zacur. Of the trybe of Symeon, Saphat the ſonne of Hori. Of the trybe of Juda, Caleb the ſonne of Jephune. Of the trybe of Iſachar, Igeal the ſōne of Joſeph. Of the tribe of Ephraim, ☞ Oſea the ſonne of Nun. Of ẏ trybe of Ben Jamin, Palthi the ſonne of Raphu. Of the trybe of Aſer, Sethur the ſonne of Michael. Of the trybe of Nephtali, Nahebi the ſonne of Vaphſi. Of the trybe of Gad, Guel the ſonne of Machi. Theſe are the names of the men, which Moſes ſent to ſpye oute the lande. And Moſes called the name of Oſea the ſonne of Nun, Joſua.

And Moſes ſent them forth to ſpye oute the lande of Canaan, and ſayde vnto them: get you vp thys waye ſouthwarde, that ye may go vp into the hye contrey, and ſe the lande what maner thyng it is, ⁊ the people that dwelleth therin: whither they be ſtrōg or weake, ether fewe or many, and what the lande is that they dwell in, whyther it be good or bad: and what maner of cyties they be, that they dwell in, whyther they dwel in tentes or walled townes: and what maner of lande it is: whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therin or not. Be of a good corage, and brynge of the frute of the lande. And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrſt rype.

And ſo they went vp, ⁊ ſearched out the lande from the wyldernes of zin vnto Re- C hob, as men come to Hemath, ⁊ they aſcended into the ſouth, and came vnto Hebron, where Ahyman was ⁊ Seſai ⁊ Thalmai, the ſonnes of Enack. And they turned backe agayne from ſear- D chynge of the lande after fourty dayes. And they went and came to Moſes and Aaron and vnto all the multitude of the children of Iſrael, in the wildernes of Pharan: which is Cades, and brought them worde, and alſo vnto all the cōgregacion, and ſhewed the the frute of the lande. And they tolde hym, A and ſayde: we came vnto the lande whether thou ſendedſt vs, and ſurely it floweth with mylke and honye: and here is of the frute of it. Neuertheleſſe, the people be ſtronge that dwell in the lande, and the cityes are walled and exceadynge greate: and moreouer, we ſawe ỹ children of Enack there. The Amalecytes dwell in the ſouth contrey, and the Hethites, Iebuſites, & the Amorites dwel in the mountaynes, & the Cananites dwell by the ſee, and by the coaſte of Iordan.

And Caleb ſtylled the ☞ (murmure that was rayſed vp.) Of ỹ people before Moſes, ſaying: we wyll go vp, and conquerre it: for we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp wyth hym, ſayde: We be not able to go vp againſt ỹ people: for they are ſtrōger thā we. And they brought vp an euell reporte of the lande whych they had ſearched, ſayīg vnto the children of Iſrael: the lande which we haue gone thorowe to ſearche it out, is a ☞ lāde that ☞ eateth vp the inhabiters therof: and the people that we ſawe in it, are mē of a greate ſtature. And there we ſawe alſo gyauntes, the chyldren of Enack, which come of the gyauntes. And we ſemed in oure ſyght as it were greſhoppers, and ſo we dyd in theyr ſyght.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ The people murmur agaynſt God, and wolde haue ſtoned Caleb & Ioſue. The ſearchers of the lande dye. Amalech kylleth the Iſraelites.

A AND all the multitude of the people cryed out, and wepte thorow out that nyght, and all the chyldrē of Iſrael murmured agaynſt Moſes and Aaron.

And the whole congregacyon ſayde vnto them: wolde God that we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, eyther that we had dyed in thys wyldernes. And they ſayd one to another: We wyll make a captayne, and retourne vnto Egipte agayne.

But Moſes and Aaron fell on theyr fa- B ces before all the congregacyon and multytude of the chyldren of Iſrael. And Ioſua the ſonne of Nun, and Caleb the ſōne of Iephune (which were of thē that ſearched the lande) rent theyr clothes, and ſpake vnto all the companye of the chyldren of Iſrael, ſayinge: The lande which we walked thorowe to ſearche it, is a very good lande. And Moſes ſayde vnto the Lorde: then the Egipcyans ſhall heare it, for ỹ broughteſt thys people in thy myght from amōge them. And it wylbe tolde to the inhabyters of thys lāde alſo: for they haue hearde lykewyſe, that thou Lord art amonge this people: and that thou Lorde art ſene face to face, and that thy cloude ſtandeth ouer them, and that * thou goeſt before them by daye *Exo.xiii.c. tyme in a pyller of a cloude, and in a pyller of fyer by nyght. ¶ Kynge Balac ſendeth for Balaam (whoſe name in the Hebrue is wrytten Bileam) Balaams aſſe ſpeaketh.

the Moabites were ſore afrayed of the people, because they were many, and ✢✢ ſtode in ✢✢ feare of the chyldren of Iſraell. And Moab

yf ſo peraduēture I myght be able to ſmyte

I wote that he whome thou bleſſeſt, is bleſſed,
and whome thou curſeſt is curſed.

And the elders of Moab and yͤ elders of Madian departed, hauynge the rewarde of

And God came vnto Balaam and ſayd, C

kynge of Moab hath ſent vnto me, ſayinge:
beholde, there is a people come out of Egipt

God ſayd vnto Balaam. Go not thou with

And Balaam roſe vp in the mornynge &

And God came vnto Balaam by nyghte, & ſayd vnto him: If the men come to call the, ryſe vp and go with them: but loke what I ſaye vnto the, that ſhalt thou do.

And Balaam roſe vp early, and ſadeld hys aſſe, & went wyth the Lordes of Moab. ☞ And the countenaunce of God was ☞ angrye becauſe he went. And Balaam ſmote the aſſe, to turne her into the waye.

E But the angell of the Lord ſtode in a path betwene the vyneyardes, and there was a wall on the one ſyde & another on the other. And when ẏ aſſe ſawe ẏ angell of the Lord, ſhe wrenched vnto the wall, and thruſt Balaams fote vnto the wall, and he ſmote her agayne. And the angell of ẏ Lorde went forther and ſtode in a narowe place, where was no waye to tourne, ether to the ryght hande or to ẏ lyfte. And when the aſſe ſawe the angell of the Lorde, ſhe fell downe vnder Balaam: and Balaam was wroth, and ſmote the aſſe with a ſtaffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of the aſſe, & ſhe ſayed vnto Balaam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou haſt ſmytten me nowe thre tymes? And Balaam ſayde vnto the Aſſe: becauſe thou haſt F mocked me: I wolde alſo there were a ſwerde in myne hande, for euen nowe wolde I kyll the. And the aſſe ſayde vnto Balaam: am not I thyne Aſſe whyche thou haſt rydden vpon ſence thou waſt borne vnto thys daye? Was I euer wont to do ſo vnto the? he ſayde: nay.

And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balaã and he ſawe the angell of the Lorde ſtandinge in the waye, hauyng a ſwerde drawen in hys hande. He bowed him ſelfe therfore, and fel flat on hys face. And the angell of the Lorde ſayde vnto hym: Wherfore haſt thou ſmyten thyne aſſe thre tymes? beholde, I came out as an aduerſary, becauſe ẏ makeſt thy waye contrary vnto me, and ẏ aſſe ſawe me, and wēt backe fro me thre tymes: or els yf ſhe had not turned fro me ❧ ([illegible] me that ſtode in the waye.) Nowe therfore yf it diſpleaſe the I wyll turne home agayne. The angell ſayde vnto Balaam, go with the men: but, what I ſaye vnto the, that ſhalt thou ſpeake. And ſo Balaam went with the Lordes of Balac.

G And when Balac herde that Balaã was come, he went out to mete hym vnto a cytie of Moab, whiche is in the border of Arnon, euen in the vtmoſt coaſt. And Balac ſayde vnto Balaã: dyd I not ſende for the, to call the? And wherfore cameſt thou not vnto me becauſe I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? And Balam made anſwere vnto Balac: Lo, I am come vnto the. And can I nowe ſaye any thing at all. ¶Of vowes when they ſhalbe kept, and when not.

A AND Moſes ſpake vnto the heades of the trybes of the chyldꝛen of Iſrael, ſaying: thys is the thyng whych the Loꝛde hath commaunded. * If a man vowe a vowe vnto the Loꝛd, or ſwere an oth to bynde hys ſoule: he ſhall not go back wyth hys woꝛde: but ſhall fulfyll all that is pꝛoceded out of hys mouth.

If ſhe had an huſbande when ſhe vowed oꝛ pꝛonoũced ought out of her lippes, wherwyth ſhe bonde her ſoule, and her huſbande hearde it and helde hys peace there at yͤ ſame daye he heard it, then her vowes ⁊ her bõdes wherwyth ſhe bounde her ſoule, ſhall ſtande in effecte. wherwyth ſhe bounde her ſoule, ſhall ſtãde.
But yf her huſbande diſanulled them, ẏ ſame

D All vowes ⁊ othes that binde to humble

¶The.xxxii.Chapter.

¶To Ruben and Gad and to halfe the trybe of Manaſſes, is promyſed ẏ poſſeſſyon beyōde Iordan eaſtwarde.

THe chyldren of Ruben and the chyl- A dren of Gad had an exceadinge greate multitude of catell. And whē they ſawe the lande of Iazer, and the lāde of Gilead ẏ it was vnapte place for catell, ẏ chyldren of Ruben & the chyldren of Gad came and ſpake vnto Moſes & Eleazar ẏ preaſt and vnto the Lordes of the congregacyon, ſaying: The lande of Ataroth and Dibon, Iazer and Nemrah, Heſbon and Elealeh, Sabam and Nebo & Beon: which contreye the Lorde ſmote before the congregacyon of Iſrael: is a lande mete for catell, and we thy ſeruauntes haue catell: wherfore (ſayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy ſyght, let thys land be geuen vnto thy ſeruauntes to poſſeſſe, and bryng vs not ouer Iordan.

And Moſes ſayde vnto the chyldren of B Gad & of Ruben: ſhall youre brethren goo to warre, & ye ſhall ſyt here? Wherfore diſcorage ye the hert of the chyldren of Iſrael, that they ſhulde not goo ouer into the lāde, which the Lorde hath geuen them? * Thus *Nu.xiii.f dyd your fathers, when I ſent them frō Cades Barne to ſe ẏ lāde. For when they wēt vp euen vnto the ryuer of Eſcol, & ſawe the lāde: they diſcoraged ẏ hertes of ẏ chyldren of Iſrael, that they ſhulde not go into ẏ lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them.

And the Lorde was wroth ẏ ſame tyme C and ſware, ſaying: * None of the men that *Nu.xiiii.f came out of Egypte from twētye yere olde and aboue, ſhall ſe the lande which I ſware vnto Abraham Iſaac and Iacob, becauſe they haue not wholy folowed me: ſaue Caleb the ſonne of Iephune the Keneſite, and Ioſua the ſonne of Nun: for they haue folowed the Lorde. And beholde, ye are ryſen vp in your fathers ſteade, as an encreaſe of ſynfull men, heret with them on yonder ſyde Iordan for-

And Moſes ſayde vnto them: yf ye wyll

Lorde to warre, & wyll go all of you in har-neſſe ouer Iordan before the Lorde, vntyll
he haue caſt out hys enemyes before hym:

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayẽge: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael and ſaye vnto them: * whan ye be come ouer Iordane into the lande of Canaan, ye ſhall appoynte you cyties to be cyties of refuge for you: that he whych ſleeth ☞ a ſoule vnwares, maye flye thyther. ¶ The.xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ An order for the maryage of the daughters of zelaphead. One of the trybes maye not marye wyth another.

A AND the auncient fathers of the children of Gilead the ſone of Machir the ſonne of Manaſſe of the kynred of the chyldrē of Ioſeph, came forth ⁊ ſpake before Moſes and the prynces, and auncyent fathers of the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſayde: * The Lorde commaunded *Nu.xxvi.f my Lord, to geue the lāde to enheret by lotte to the chyldren of Iſrael. And my Lorde cōmaunded in gods behalfe, to geue the enheritaunce of * zelaphead oure brother vnto hys *Nu.xxvii.a daughters. Whom yf any of the ſonnes of yͤ other trybes of Iſrael take to wyues, then ſhal theyr enheritaunce be takē from the enheritaunce of oure fathers, and ſhall be put vnto the enheritaūce of the trybe which they B are receaued into: and ſhalbe taken from the lotte of oure enheritaūce. And whē the yere of iubelye of the chyldren of Iſrael cōmeth, then ſhall theyr enherytaunce be put vnto yͤ enheritaunce of the trybe wherin to they are receaued: and ſo ſhall theyr enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the trybe of our fathers.

And Moſes commaunded the chyldren of Iſrael accordyng to the worde of the Lorde ſayinge: the chyldren of the trybe of Ioſeph haue ſayd well. This therfore doth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of zelaphead ſayenge: * let them be wyues to whom they *Tob.i.b and.vii.c the ſelfe thynck beſt, onely to the kinred and trybe of theyr father ſhal they mary, ſo ſhal not the enheritaunce of the chyldrē of Iſrael remoue from trybe to trybe, whan the chyldren of Iſrael abyde euery man in the enheritaunce of the trybe of his fathers. And euery C daughter that poſſeſſeth any enheritaunce in any trybe of the children of Iſrael, ſhal be wyfe vnto one whych is of the kynred of the trybe of her father, that the chyldren of Iſraell maye enioye euery man the enheritaunce of hys father: Neyther ought the enheritaunce to go from one trybe to another: but euery one of the trybes of the chyldren of Iſraell, muſt abyde in hys awne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moſes D euen ſo dyd the daughters of zelaphead. And Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha and Noa were maryed vnto theyr fathers brothers ſonnes, which were of the kynred of the children of Manaſſes the ſonne of Ioſeph: and ſo theyr enheritaunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of theyr father.

On the other ſyde Iordan in the lande of Moab begãne Moſes to declare thys lawe ſayenge: the Lorde our God ſpake vnto vs in Horeb ſaying: ye haue dwelt lõge ynough in thys mount, departe therfore & take your iourney, and go vnto the hyll of the Amorites and vnto all places nye there vnto: both vnto the playne, and hylles and dales: to the ſouth, to the ſees ſyde, to the lande of Canaã and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates. For the Lord your God hath multiplyed you: and beholde, ye are thys daye as the ſtarres of heauen in nombre (the Lorde God of your fathers make you a thouſande tymes ſo many mo as ye are, and bleſſe you as he hath promyſed you) howe can *I my ſelfe alone, beare the combraunce, charge ãd ſtryfe that is amonge you? brynge (from amonge you) men of wyſdome and of vnderſtandynge, and experte, accordynge to your trybes, and I wyll make them rulers ouer you. Then we turned & went vp yͤ waye to Baſan. *And Og the kyng of Baſan came out agaynſt vs, he & al his people to battel at Edrai. And the Lord ſayd vnto me: feare hym not, for I wyll delyuer hym, & al his people, and his lande into thy hande, & thou ſhalt do vnto him, as thou dyddeſt vnto Sehon kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heſbon. And ſo the Lorde our God delyuered into oure handes, Og alſo the kynge of Baſan and al his folke. And we ſmote him, vntyll none was left hym alyue.

And we toke al his cyties the ſame ceaſon (nether was there a citie which we toke not from thē) euē thre ſkore cyties thorow out all the regiō of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Baſan. All theſe cyties alſo were made ſtronge with hye walles, gates and barres, beſyde vnwalled townes a greate manye. And we vtterly deſtroyed them, as we dyd vnto Sehon kynge of Heſbon, bryngyng to nought all the cyties, with men, wemen and chyldren. But al the catell and the ſpoyle of the cyties, we caught for our ſelues.

And thus we toke the ſame ceaſon, out of the hande of two kynges of the Amorites, the lande that was on the other ſyde Jordā from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (whych Hermon the Sidons call Syrion, and the Amorites call it Senyr) al the cyties that laye in the playne, and al Gilead and al Baſan vnto Salecha and Edrai, cities of the kyngdome of Og in Baſan. For onely Og kynge of Baſan remayned of the remnaunt of the gyauntes, whoſe bed was a bed of yron. And is it not yet at Rabah amonge the chyldren of Ammon: ix. cubytes doth the length therof conteyne, and foure cubytes the breadth of it, after the cubite of a mā. And ſo we conquered this lāde the ſame tyme, from Aroer whych is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Gilead, *& the cyties therof gaue I vnto the Rubenites & Gaddites. And the reſt of Gilead and al Baſan of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto yͤ halfe trybe of Manaſſe: euen all the regyon of Argob wyth all Baſan: whyche is called the lande of gyaūtes. Jair the ſonne of Manaſſe toke all the regyon of Argob vnto the coaſtes of Geſuri and Maachati, ād called them after his awne name: Baſan Hauoth Jair vnto thys daye. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir. And vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites I gaue halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey and beyonde, euen vnto the ryuer Jabock, whyche is the border of the chyldren of Ammō: the playne alſo (of the wyldernesſe) and Jordā & the coaſt therof, from Ceneroth euen vnto the ſee whych is in the playne, euen the ſalt ſee vnder the ſprynges of the hyll, eaſtwarde.

There is none lyke vnto yͤ God of Iſrael: which though he ſyt vpon the heuen as vpõ a horſe, yet is he thy helper; whoſe glorye is in the celeſtiall places. And all the men of armes wēt before the

and the preaſtes that went blewe with trōpettes.
And Joſua commaunded the people ſayinge: Ye ſhall not ſhowte, ner make any

the daye I byd you ſhowte, then ſhal ye ſhowte.
And ſo the arcke of the Lord compaſed

retourned into the hooſte, and lodged there.

And Joſua roſe erly in the morning, and the Preaſtes toke vp the arcke of the Lord, and ſeuen Preaſtes bare ſeuen trompettes

of the Lorde, and blewe with the trōpettes.
And all the men of armes went before them, but the comen people came after the arcke of the Lorde, which went before with the blowing of the trompettes. And the ſeconde daye they compaſed the cytie once, ād retourned agayne īto the hooſte, and ſo they dyd ſyxe dayes.

And when the ſeuēth daye came, they roſe
early: euē wyth the dawnige of the daye,

And ſo Joſua aroſe, and all the men of warre, to go vp agaynſt Hai. And Joſua choſe oute thyrtie thouſande ſtronge men of warre, and ſent them awaye by nyght. And he commaunded them, ſayinge: beholde, ye ſhall laye awayte vnto ẏ towne on the backſyde therof. Go not very farre frõ the cytie but be all readye.

And I and all the people that are wyth me, will aproche vnto the cytie. And when
B they come out againſt vs, as they did at the firſt tyme, then will we flee before thẽ. For they wyll come oute after vs and we wyll bring them out of the cytie. For they wyll ſaye: they flee before vs, as at the firſt tyme and we will flee before them. In the meane tyme ſhall ye ryſe vp from lying awayte, ⁊ deſtroye the cytie: For the Lord youre God will delyuer it into youre hande. And whã ye haue taken the cytie, ye ſhal ſet it on fire.

And Joſua roſe vp erlye in the morninge, and nombred the people and went vp, he, and the elders of Iſrael before the people agaynſt Hai. And all the men of warre that were with him, went vp and drue nye, and came agaynſt the cytie, and pitched on the north ſyde of Hai, ⁊ there was a valeye betwene them and Hai. And he toke vpon a

And they put the people (euẽ all the hoſte that were on the northſyde) agaynſt the cytie, and the lyers awayte on the weſt. And Joſua walked the ſame night in the myddes of ẏ valeye. And it fortuned, that when the kyng of Hai ſawe it, they haſted ⁊ roſe vp earlye, ãd the men of the cytie went oute agaynſt Iſraell to battell, he and all his people at a tyme apoynted, euen before the playne, and wiſt not that there were lyers awayte on the backeſyde of the cytie.

And Joſua ⁊ all Iſrael fayned them ſelues to be put to the worſſe before thẽ ⁊ fled towarde the wilderneſſe. And all the people of ẏ towne were called together, to folowe
D after them. And they folowed after Joſua ⁊ were drawen a waye from the cytie: And there was not a man left in Hai and in Bethel, ẏ went not out after Iſraell. And they left the cytie open, ⁊ folowed after Iſraell.

And the Lorde ſayde vnto Joſua: ſtretch out the ſpere ẏ is ĩ thine hãd, towarde Hai, for I will geue it into thy hand. And Joſua ſtretched out the ſpere yͭ he had in hys hande, towarde the cytye. And yͤ lyers awayte roſe quycklye oute of theyr place, & ranne aſſone as Joſua had ſtretched oute hys hande, and they entred into the cytie and toke it, & haſted, & ſett the cyte on fyre. And when yͤ men of Hai loked backe after them, they ſawe yͤ ſmoke of the citie aſſende vp to heauen. And they had no leaſure to flee ether this waye or that, & the people that fled to the wilderneſſe, turned backe again vpõ the folowers.

E And when Joſua and all Iſrael ſawe that the lyers awayte had taken the cytie, & that the ſmoke of it aſcended, they turned againe and layed on the men of Hai. And the other yſſued oute of the cytie agaynſte them. And ſo were they in yͤ myddes of Iſrael: for theſe were on the one ſyde of them, and the reſt on *Joſu.vi.c. the other ſyde. * And they layed vpõ them, ſo that they let none of them ſkape, nor remayne. G And all Iſraell and the elders therof, and theyr officiers & iudges ſtode, parte on thys ſyde the arcke, ãd parte on that ſyde, before the preaſtes, that were Leuites, which bare the arcke of the apoyntement of the Lorde: as well the ſtraunger, as they yͭ were borne among them: halfe on them on yͤ forefronte of the mounte Garizim, and halfe of them on the forefronte of mounte Eball: as Moſes the ſeruaunt of the Lord had commaunded before, that they ſhulde bleſſe the people Iſraell. The.ix.Chapter.

The Gibeonytes obtayne peace of Joſua.

The. x. Chapter.

The Amorites are ouer come of Joſua. It rayneth ſtones. The ſonne ſtãdeth ſtyl. The. v. kynges are hanged.

A AND it fortuned, that when Adonizedec kynge of Jeruſalẽ had heard how Joſua had taken Hai, ãd had deſtroyed it, and howe that * as he had done to Jericho and her kyng, euẽ ſo he had done to Hai and her kyng, and how the inhabytoures of Gibeon had made peace wyth Iſraell, and were amonge them, they feared excedinglye, for Gibeon was a great cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, ãd was greater then Hai, and all the mẽ therof were very myghtye.

* Joſu.vi.c. and.viii.a

Wherfore Adonizedec kynge of Jeruſalẽ ſent vnto Hoham kynge of Hebron, and vnto Pirea kyng of Jarmuth, ⁊ vnto Japhia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kynge of Eglon, ſaying: Come vp vnto me, ⁊ healpe

B me, ẏ we maye ſmyte Gibeon: for they haue made peace wyth Joſua and with ẏ chyldrẽ of Iſraell. Therfore ẏ. v. kynges of ẏ Amorites, the kyng of Jeruſalem, ẏ kynge of Hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, ⁊ ẏ kyng of Eglõ geathered thẽ ſelues togeather, they with all theyr hoſtes, ⁊ beſeged Gibeon, and made warre agaynſt it.

And the men of Gibeon ſent vnto Joſua ⁊ to the hoſte to Gilgal, ſaying: withdrawe not thy hãde from thy ſeruauntes, come vp to vs, to ſaue vs: ⁊ to helpe vs. For all the kĩges of ẏ Amorites which dwell in ẏ moũtaynes are geathered togeather againſt vs.

And ſo Joſua aſcended from Gilgall, he and all the people of warre wyth hym, ⁊ all the men of myghte, and the Lorde ſayde vnto Joſua, feare them not, for I haue delyuered them into thyne hande. Nether ſhal any of them ſtãde agaynſt ẏ. Joſua therfore came vnto them ſodenlye, and went vp from Gilgall all nyght. And the Lorde troubled them before Iſraell, and ſlewe them wyth a

C great ſlaughter at Gibeon, and chaſed them a longe the waye that gothe vp to Bethoron, and ſmote them to Eſaka ãd Makeda. And it fortuned, ẏ as they fled from Iſrael, ⁊ were in the goyng doune to Bethoron, the Lorde caſt downe great ſtones from heauen vpon them, vntyll Eſaka. And there were mo deed wyth hayle ſtones, then they were whom the chyldren of Iſraell ſlewe wyth the ſwerde.

Then ſpake Joſua before the Lorde, in the daye when ẏ Lorde delyuered the Amorites before the chyldren of Iſraell, and he ſayde in the ſyght of Iſraell. * Sũne ſtande thou ſtyll vpon Gibeon, and thou Mone, in Aialon. And the ſunne abode. and the mone ſtode ſtyll, vntyll the people aduẽged them ſelues vpõ theyr enemyes. Is not this wrytten in ẏ boke of ẏ ryghtwes?

D ☞ The ſonne (I ſaye) abode in the myddes of heauen, and haſted not to goo doune by yͤ ſpace of a whole daye. And there was no daye lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lorde hearde yͤ voyce of a man. For the Lorde fought for Iſraell.

D And Joſua returned and all Iſraell with hym vnto the hooſte to Gilgall: but the fyue kynges fledde, and were hyde in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Joſua of one ſaying, the fyue kynges are founde hyd in a caue which is at Makeda. And Joſua ſayd rowle greate ſtones vpon the mouthe of the caue, and ſet men by it, for to kepe them. And ſtande ye not ſtylle, but folowe after youre enemyes, and ſmyte all the hindmoſt, And ſuffre them not to entre into theyr cyties, for the Lorde youre God hath delyuered them into youre hande. And it fortuned, when Joſua and the chyldren of Iſraell had made an ende of ſlaying them with an excedynge greate ſlaughter tyll they were waſted, the reſt that remayned of them, entred into walled cyties.

And all the people returned to the hooſte, to Joſua at Makeda in peace, neyther dyd any man moue hys tonge agaynſt the chyldren of Iſraell. Then ſayde Joſua: open the mouthe of the caue, and bryng oute theſe.v. kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd ſo, and brought thoſe fyue kynges vnto hym, oute of the caue, euen the kynge of Jeruſalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kynge of Lachys, and the kynge of Eglon.

E And it fortuned, that when they brought oute thoſe kynges vnto Joſua: Joſua called for all the men of Iſraell, and ſayde vnto the chefe of the men of warre, which went with hym: come nere, & put youre fete vpon the neckes of theſe kynges. And they came neare: and put theyr fete vpon the neckes of them. And Joſua ſayde vnto them: Ye ſhall not feare, ner be faynt harted. But be ſtrõg and plucke vp youre hertes, for thus ſhall the Lorde do to all youre enemyes agaynſt whom ye fyght.

And then Joſua ſmote them, and ſlewe them, & hanged thẽ on fyue trees. And they hãged ſtill vpon yͤ trees vntyll the euening. And at yͤ going doune of yͤ ſonne it fortuned that Joſua gaue commaundemẽt, and they
*Joſu.viii.f toke thẽ doune of yͤ * trees, and caſt thẽ into yͤ caue, (where in they had bene hyd), and layed greate ſtones in yͤ caues mouthe, whych remayne vnto thys daye.

And that ſame daye Joſua toke Makeda, and ſmote it wyth yͤ edge of the ſwerde,
*Deute.xx.d and the kynge therof alſo * deſtroyed he vtterly, wyth all the ſoules that were therin, and let nought remayne. And he dyd
*Joſu.vi.d. to the kynge of Makeda * as he dyd to the kynge of Jericho.

Then Joſua wente from Makeda, and all Iſraell wyth hym vnto Libna, & fought agaynſt Libna. And the Lorde delyuered it and the kynge therof into the hande of Iſraell, and he ſmote it wyth the edge of the ſwerde, and all the ſoules that were therin. He let nought remayne in it, but dyd vnto the kynge therof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho.

F And Joſua departed from Libna, and all Iſraell wyth hym, vnto Lachis, and beſegedit, and aſſauted it. And the Lorde delyuered Lachys into the hande of Iſraell. Which toke it the ſeconde daye, and ſmote it with the edge of the ſwerde, & all the ſoules that were therin, doing accordyng to all, as he had done to the cyte of Libna.

Then Horam kynge of Geſer came vp to helpe Lachis: And Joſua ſmote hym & hys people, vntyll naught remayned of hym.

And from Lachis Joſua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Iſraell wyth hym, and they beſeged it, and aſſaulted it, and toke it the ſame daye, and ſmote it with the edge of the ſwerde, and all the ſoules that were therin he vtterlye deſtroyed the ſame daye, accordyng to all that he had done to Lachis.

G And Joſua departed vp from Eglon and all Iſraell with him, vnto Hebrõ. And they fought agaynſt it, and whan they had taken it, they ſmote it with the edge of the ſwerde, and yͤ kynge therof, and all the townes that pertayned to it, and all the ſoules that were therin, and he lefte nought remaynyng: but did according to all, as he had done to Eglõ, and deſtroyed it vtterlye, and all the ſoules that were therin.

And Joſua returned, and all Iſrael with hym to Dabir, and fought agaynſt it. And whan he had taken it, and the kynge therof, and all the townes that pertayned therto, they ſmote them wyth the edge of yͤ ſwerde, and vtterlye deſtroyed all the ſoules yͭ were therin, nether let he ought remayne. Euen as he dyd to Hebron, ſo he dyd to Dabir and yͤ kynge therof, as he had done alſo to Libna and her kynge.

Joſua therfore ſmote all the hyll countreys, and the ſouthe countreys, and the valeyes, and the hyll ſydes, & all their kynges, & let nought remayne of them, but vtterly deſtroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde *Deut.xx.d. God of Iſraell commaunded. And Joſua ſmote them from Cades barne vnto Aſah, and all the cõtrey of Goſan, euen vnto Gibeon. All thoſe kynges and theyr lande dyd Joſua take at one tyme: becauſe the Lorde God of Iſraell fought for Iſraell. And Joſua and all Iſraell returned, vnto the hoſte that was in Gilgall.

¶ The.xi. Chapter

And

A AND it fortuned, that when Jabin
kynge of Hazor had hearde
thoſe thinges: he ſent to Jobab
kyng of Madon, ⁊ to the kyng of Simron, and to the kynge of Achſaph, and vnto the kynges that are by northe in ỷ moũtaynes, ⁊ playnes towarde
the ſoutheſyde of Cencroth, and in the lowe countreys, ⁊ in ỷ borders of Dor weſtwarde and vnto the Cananytes bothe by Eaſte ⁊ weſte, ⁊ vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, and Jebuſites in the mountaynes: ⁊
vnto the Heuites that were vnder Hermon
in the lande of Mizpa: And they came oute
and all their hoſtes with them, a multytude
of folke, euen as the ſande that is on the ſee
ſhore in a great nombre with horſſes ⁊ charettes excedynge manye. And all theſe kynges mett together, and came, and pytched together at the waters of Merom, for to fyght agaynſt Iſraell.

And the Lorde ſayde vnto Joſua: be not afrayde at the preſence of them: for tomorowe about thys tyme wyll I delyuer them
all ſlayne before Iſraell: thou ſhalt hough
theyr horſſes, ⁊ burne theyr charettes wyth B fyre. And ſo Joſua came and all the men of warre wyth hym agaynſt them by the waters of Merom, and ſodenlye fell vpõ them.
And the Lorde delyuered them into ỷ hande
of Iſraell: and they ſmote them, and chaſed
them vnto greate Sidon, ⁊ vnto the whote waters, and vnto ỷ valeye of Mizpa which is Eaſtwarde: and ſmote them vntyll they had none remaynynge of them. And Joſua dyd vnto them, as the Lorde bad hym: he houghed theyr horſſes, and burnt theyr charettes wyth fyer.

And Joſua at that tyme turned backe, ⁊
toke Hazor, ⁊ ſmote the kynge therof wyth
the ſwerde. And Hazor before tyme was ỷ head of all thoſe kingdomes. And they ſmote
all the ſoules ỷ were therin wyth the edge of the ſwerde, vtterlye deſtroying all: ⁊ nothing that breathed, was let remayne. And he burnt Hazor ẘ fyer. And all the cyties of thoſe kynges, and all the kynges of them, dyd Joſua take, and ſmote them wyth the C edge of the ſwerde, and vtterlye deſtroyed
*Exo.xxiii.d. and.xxxiiii.b Deuter.vii.a them * as Moſes the ſeruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Iſraell burnt none of ỷ cyties ỷ ſtode that Joſua burnt, And all the ſpoyle of the caught vnto them ſelues. But the men onlye they ſmote wyth the edge of ỷ ſwerde vntyll they had deſtroyed them, nether left they ought that had breath. As the Lorde commaunded Moſes hys ſeruaunt, ſo dyd

Moſes commaunde Joſua, and euen ſo dyd *Deuter.x.c. Joſua * ſo that he mynyſhed no worde, of all that the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And ſo Joſua toke all the lande, the hylles
and all the ſouthe countreye, and all the

and ſlewe them.

Joſua made warre longe tyme ẘ thoſe D
kynges: nether was there anye cytie ỷ made peace wyth ỷ chyldren of Iſraell, ſaue thoſe Hethites that enhabited Gibeon, and therfore
all other they toke wyth battell, for it came of the Lorde, whych dyd harden theyr

in battell: ⁊ that they ſhulde deſtroye them vtterlye, and ſhewe them no mercy, but to bryng them to naught. As the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And that ſame ceaſon came Joſua, and deſtroyed the Enakites oute of the mountaynes:
Namely, oute of Hebron, Dabir, Anab, and oute of all the moũtaynes of Juda,
and oute of all the mountaynes of Iſraell.
And Joſua deſtroyed them vtterlye with theyr cyties. There was not one Enakite

Namely, towarde the border of Edom

Theyr eaſt coſte is the ſalt ſee, euen vnto B

And the ſame border went vp to Bethhagla, and wente a longe by the northſyde of Betharabah, and vp from, thence to the ſtone of Bohen ỹ ſonne of Ruben. The Lotte of parte of Ephraim.

A And the lotte of yͤ chyldren of Joſeph

& goeth downe agayne weſtwarde

And yͤ border of the chyldren of Ephraim

& came to Jericho, & went out at Jordan.
And theyr border went frõ Thaphuah

¶The.xvii.Chapter.

¶The Lotte or porcyon of the halfe tribe of Manaſſes. The Cananites are become tributaries to the Iſraelytes. Manaſſes & Ephraim requyre a greater porcyon of heritage.

A This was the lotte of yͤ trybe of Manaſſes,

for theſe were yͤ male children of Manaſſes

of Endor wyth the townes of yͤ

Cannanites preſumed to dwell in the ſame

And the chyldren of Joſeph ſpake vnto D

Therfore yͤ hyll ſhalbe youres, & ye ſhall cut

And the Amorites were content to dwell in mount Heres ☞(whych is by interpretacyon: a wytneſſynge) in Hailō and in Salabim. ¶Othoniell delyuereth Iſrael. Ahud kylleth kyng Eglon. Samgar kylleth the Philiſtines.

A These are the nacyons which the Lorde left, that he myghte proue Iſraell by thẽ: euen as many of Iſrael as had not knowen all the warres of Canaan: Onlye for the lernyng of the generacion of the children of Iſrael: that he alſo myght teach thẽ warre, in aſmuche as they that were before ☞ thẽ ☞ knewe nothyng therof, of thoſe whõ he left, there were fyue Lordes of the Philiſtines, and all the Cananites, and the Sodonites, and the Heuites that dwelt in moũt Libanon: euen from mounte Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. And the chyldrẽ of Iſrael dwelt amonge the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Pheresites, Heuites, and Iebuſites *and toke the *Deut.vii.a daughters of them to be their wyues, & gaue theyr awne daughters to theyr ſonnes, & ſerued theyr Goddes. And Ahud put forth hys lefte hande, & toke the dagger from his ryght thyghe, and thruſt it into hys bely, and the haft went in after the blade. And the fat, cloſed the haft ſo that he myght not drawe the dagger out of hys bely, but the dyrt came out. Ahud gat him out at a poſterne dore, and ſhut the dores of the parler about hym, and locked them.

When he was gone oute, hys ſeruauntes came, and whan they ſawe that the dores of the parler were locked, they ſayde: peraduenture ☞ he couereth his fete in his ſomer chãber. ☞ And they taryed tyll they were aſhamed, and beholde: ſeyng he opened not the dores of the parler: they toke a keye, and opened them. They therfore of the people toke vitailes wyth them, & their trompettes. And he ſent all yͤ reſt of Iſrael, euery mā vnto hys tent, and conforted thoſe thre hundred with him. And Gedeon came to Iordan to paſſe ouer, he and the thre hundred men that were with hym, very faynte, and yet folowed the chace. And he ſayde vnto the mē of Socoth: geue I praye you kakes of bread vnto the B people that folowe me: for they be fayntye, that I maye folowe after zebah ād zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth ſayde: are the handes of zebah and zalmona nowe in thyne hādes, that we ſhulde geue bread vnto thyne armye? Gedeon ſayde, therfore when the Lorde hath delyuered zebah and zalmona into myne hande, I wyll teare the fleſhe of you with the thornes of the wyldernes and wyth breers. And he wente vp thence to Phanuel, and ſpake vnto them lykewyſe. And the men of Phanuel C anſwered hym, as dyd the men of Socoth. ¶ The.xi.Chapter.

A AND there was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a ſtrong man, ẏ ſonne of an harlott: and Gilead begat Jephthah. And Gileads wyfe bare him ſonnes, which when they were come to age thruſt out Jephthah, and ſayde vnto him, ẏ ſhalt not enherett in oure fathers houſe, for ẏ art the ſonne of a ſtraunge woman. Then Jephthah fled frõ his brethren, ⁊ dwelt in the lãd of Tob. And there geathered ydle ❧(⁊ theuiſhe)men to Jephthah, and went out with hym. And it chaunced in proceſſe of tyme, that the children of Ammõ made warre agaynſt Iſrael. And whan ẏ childrẽ of Ammon fought thus agaynſt Iſrael, the elders of Gilead wẽt to fet Jephthah out of ẏ lãde of Tob ❧(to helpe them) ⁊ ſayde vnto hym: come ⁊ be oure captayne, ẏ we maye fyght wᵗ the children of Ammõ. Jephthah anſwered ẏ elders of Gilead: did not ye hate me ⁊ expel me out of my fathers houſe? howe happeneth it then, ẏ you come vnto me now in tyme of your tribulaciõ? And the elders of Gilead ſayd vnto Jephthah: Therfore we turne agayne to the nowe, that thou mayeſt go with vs, ⁊ fyght agaynſt the childrẽ of Ammon ⁊ be oure heed ouer all the ĩhabiters of Gilead. And Jephthah ſayd vnto the elders B of Gilead: If ye brynge me home agayn to fight with the chyldren of Ammon, then yf the Lord delyuer them before me, ſhall I be your heed? And the elders of Gylead ſayd to Jephthah: ẏ Lorde be witneſſe betwene vs yf we do not accordĩg to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went wyth the elders of Gilead.

And the people made hym heed and ruler ouer them. And Jephthah rehearſed all hys wordes before the Lorde in ☞ Mizpa. ☞

And Jephthah ſent meſſengers vnto ẏ king of the childrẽ of Ammõ ſaying: what haſt ẏ to do wᵗ me, ẏ thou art come agaynſt me, to fyght in my land? The king of ẏ chyldren of Ammon anſwered vnto the meſſengers of Jephthah: Becauſe Iſrael toke awaye my lãd, when they came out of Egypt: euẽ from Arnon vnto Jabok, and vnto Jordã. Now therfore reſtore thoſe lãdes agayne wᵗ faire meanes. And Jephthah ſẽt meſſẽgers againe vnto ẏ kĩg of ẏ childrẽ of Ammõ: ⁊ ſayde vnto hi: thꝰ ſayth Jephthah: * Iſrael toke not awaye the lãd of Moab, ner ẏ lãd of ẏ chyldrẽ of Ammõ. But when Iſrael came out of Egipt, ⁊ walked thorow ẏ wilderneſſe, euen vnto the redd see, they came to Cades * ⁊ ſẽt meſſengers vnto ẏ kyng of Edõ, ſaying: let me (I praye ẏ) go thorow thy land. But the king of Edõ wolde not agre therto. And in lyke maner they ſent vnto ẏ king of Moab, but he wold not cõſent. And ſo Iſrael abode ſtill ĩ Cades. And thẽ they wẽt alõg thorow the wilderneſſe, ⁊ cõpaſed the land of Edõ, ⁊ the land of Moab, ⁊ came along by the eaſt ſyde of ẏ land of Moab, ⁊ pitched on ẏ other ſyde of Arnõ, ⁊ wolde not come wyth in the coaſte of Moab: * for Arnõ was the vtmoſt border of Moab. And thẽ Iſrael * ſent meſſengers vnto Sehõ, king of the Amorites, ⁊ kyng of Heſbon, ⁊ ſayd vnto hym: Let vs paſſe thorow thy land vnto oure awne coũtreye. But Sehon cõſented not to Iſrael, ẏ he ſhulde go thorow his coaſt: but gathered all his people togeather, ⁊ pitched in Jazah ⁊ fought with Iſrael. And the Lord God of Iſrael delyuered Sehõ ⁊ all his folke into ẏ handes of Iſrael. And ſo Iſrael ſmote thẽ ⁊ cõquered all the lãd of the Amorites, the enhabiters of the ſayd contrey. And they conquered al the coaſtes of the Amorites, from Arnõ vnto Jabok, ⁊ frõ the wilderneſſe vnto Jordã. So nowe, ſeyng the Lord God of Iſrael hath caſt out ẏ Amorites before hys people Iſrael, ſhuldeſt thou poſſeſſe the lãde? Naye, but what people Camos thy God dryueth out, that land poſſeſſe thou. ¶Of Micah whoſe mother made hym an Idoll of ſyluer.

A There was a man in moūt Ephrai named Micah, and he ſayde vnto hys mother: the leuen hūdreth ſyluerlynges that were taken from the, aboute which thou curſedſt, & ſpakeſt it in myne eares. Behold, the ſyluer is with me, I toke it awaye. And hys mother ſayde: bleſſed be ẏ my ſonne, in ẏ Lord. And when he had reſtored the leuen hūdred ſyluerlynges to his mother agayne, his mother ſayde: I vowed the ſyluer vnto ẏ Lord of myne hande for the my ſonne: that ẏ ſhuldeſt make a grauē ymage and an ymage of B metall. Now therfore, I wyll geue it the agayne. And when he reſtored the moneye againe vnto his mother, his mother toke two hūdreth ſyluerlynges, ād gaue thē to a goldſmyth, which made therof a grauē image, and a ymage of metall, and it was i the houſe of Micah. And the man departed oute of the cytye of Bethlehē Iuda, to go dwel where he coulde finde a cōueniēt place. And he came to moūt Ephraim, to the houſe of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah ſayd vnto hym. Whēce D commeſt thou? The leuite anſwered him. And I wyll geue the ten ſyluerlynges by yeare, two garmētes, and thy meate and drpncke.

And the Leuite was content to dwell wt the man, and was vnto hym as one of hys awne ſonnes. And Micah cōſecrated the hāde of the Leuite, and the yonge man became hys preſte, and was in the houſe of Micah. Then ſayd Micah: now I am ſure, that the Lorde wyll be good vnto me, ſeinge: I haue a Leuite to my preſte.

And ẏ children of Dan ſent of their kired fyue actyue men in feates of warre oute of theyr coaſtes, euen out of zaraah and Eſtahol, to vewe the land and ſearche it out, and ſayde vnto thē: go, and ſearche out the lāde: Which whā they came to moūt Ephraim, euē to ẏ houſe of Micah, they lodged there. And whē they were in the houſe of Micah, they knewe the voyce of ẏ yong man the leuite: and when they turned in thyther, they ſayd vnto hym: who brought the hyther? what makeſt thou in thys place? and what haſt thou here? And he anſwered thē: thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath B hired me, and I am become hys preſte. Then the fyue men departed, & came to Lais, and ſawe the people that were therin, how they dwelt careles, after ẏ maner of ẏ Sydons, ſtyll, and without caſtinge of parelles: and that no man made any trouble i the land, or vſurped any dominiō, but were farre from the Sidons, and had no buſines with other men. And there departed thence of the kynred of the Dannites, euẽ out of zaraah and Eſthaol, ſyxe hundred men appointed with inſtrumẽtes of warre. And the children of Dan ſayde vnto him let not thy voyce be hearde amonge vs, leſt angrye felowes runne vpon the, & thou looſe thy lyfe with the lyues of all thyne houſholde. And ſo the children of Dan wente theyr wayes.

And when Micah ſawe that they were to ſtronge for hym, he turned and went backe vnto hys houſe agayne.

And on the morowe the people roſe vp by tyme, and made there an altare, and offered burnt offerynges and peaceofferynges.

And the chyldren of Iſraell aſked, who are they amōge all the tribes of Iſrael, that came not vp with the congregacyon vnto yͤ Lorde? for they had made a greate othe concernynge hym that came not vp to the Lord to Mizpa, ſayinge: he ſhall ſuerlye dye. And they ſayde: there muſt be an enheritaūce for them that be eſcaped of Ben Jamin, that a trybe be not deſtroyed oute of Iſraell: howbeit, we maye not geue them wyues of oure daughters. For the chyldren of Iſrael had ſworne, ſayinge: curſſed be he, that geueth a wyffe to Ben Jamin.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Jonathas and hys harneſſe bearer putteth the Philiſtines to flyght. He taſteth the honye.

And it fortuned yͤ ſame tyme, that Jonathas A

Philiſtines. And ẏ Philiſtines ſayde: ſe, the Hebrues come out of ẏ holes where they had hyd them ſelues in. And ẏ men of the watche anſwered Jonathas and his harneſbearer, & ſayde: come vp to vs, and we will ſhewe you a thyng. And Jonathas ſayde vnto his harneſbearer, come vp after me, for ẏ Lord hath delyuered them into the hāde of Iſrael. And Jonathas clame vp vpō handes & fete, & his harneſberer after him. And ✱(ſo whan they had ſene Jonathas face) they fell before Jonathas: & his harneſberer ſlue thē after him. And that firſt ſlaughter which Jonathas and his harneſberer made, was vpō a twentie mē, within the compaſſe as it were about an halfe aker of lande. And ther was a feare in ẏ hoſt, in the felde, & amonge all people: in ſo moche that they ẏ were gone oute of the watche to robbe, were afrayed alſo: and the erth trymbled, for the feare that was ſent of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gibea Ben Jamin, ſawe. And beholde, the people (of the Philiſtines) were ſkatered & were ſmittē as they went. Then ſayde Saul vnto the people ẏ was with him. Searche and ſe, who is gone awaye frō vs. And when they had nōbred, beholde, Jonathas & hys harneſbearer were not there. And Saul ſayd vnto Ahia: brynge hither the arcke of God. For ẏ arcke of God was at that tyme with the chyldren of Iſrael. And it fortuned ẏ while Saul talked vnto the preaſt, ẏ noyſe that was in the hoſte of the Philiſtines ſpred farther abrode & increaſed ✱(by lytle and lytle, and gaue a more cleare ſounde.) And Saul ſaid vnto the preaſt: withdrawe thyne hādes. And Saul ioyned hymſelfe vnto all ẏ people that were with him, & they came to the battell. And behold *euery mānes ſwerde was agaynſt his felowe, and there was a very greate rumor. Moreouer, the Ebrues ẏ were with the Philiſtines before that tyme, and were come with them into all partes of the hoſte, turned, to be wᵗ the Iſraelites ẏ were wyth Saul & Jonathas. And all ẏ men of Iſrael alſo, which had hyd them ſelues in mounte Ephraim, as ſone as they hearde howe that the Philiſtines were fled, they folowed after them in the battell. And ſo God holpe Iſrael that daye. And the battell continued vnto Bethauen.

*Judi.vii.e ii.Para.xx.c.

D And when the men of Iſrael were kepte downe wyth honger that daye, Saul charged the people with an oth ſayinge: Curſed be the man ẏ eateth any foode vntyl nyght, tyll I be aduēged of myne enemyes: And ſo, none of ẏ people taſted any ſuſtinaūce. And al the inhabiters of the lāde came to a wood where honye laye vpon the groūde. And the people came into the wood: And beholde, the hony dropped, & no man moued hys hand to his mouth, for ẏ people feared the oth. But Jonathas hearde not when hys father charged the people with the oth, wherfore he put forth the ende of the rod that was in his hād and dypt it in an honye combe, and put hys hande to his mouth, ād his eyes receaued ſyght. E Then anſwered one of the people and ſayd: thy father adiured the people, ſaying: Curſed be the man that eateth any ſuſtinaunce this daye, & the people were faynty. Then ſayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the lande: ſe howe myne eyes hath receaued ſyght, becauſe I taſted a lytle of this honye: howe much more then to daye yf the people had eaten of the ſpoyle of theyr enemyes whych they founde. F And had there not bene then a moch greater ſlaughter amonge the Philiſtines? And they layed on the Philiſtines that daye, from Michmas to Aialon. And the people were excedynge fayntye.

And ẏ people gat thē to the ſpoyle, & toke ſhepe, oxen, & calues, & ſlue thē on the groūde and ẏ people dyd eate thē *wᵗ the bloud. The men tolde Saul, ſayinge: Beholde, the people ſynne agaynſt the Lord, in that they eate with ẏ bloude. And he ſayde: ye haue treſpaced. Rowle a great ſtone vnto me this daye, and Saul ſayd agayne: Go abroade amōge the people & byd them brynge me euery man his oxe & euery man hys ſhepe, & ſlaye them here, and ſynne not agaynſt the Lorde in eatynge wᵗ the bloude. And the people brought euery man hys oxe in hys hande, by nyght, & ſlue them there. And Saul made an altare vnto the Lorde. And that was ẏ fyrſt altare ẏ he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul ſayde: let vs go downe after ẏ Philiſtines by night and ſpoyle thē, vntyll it be daye in the mornynge, and let vs not leaue one man of thē. And they ſayd: do whatſoeuer thou thinkeſt beſt. G Then ſayde the preaſte: let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul aſked of God: ſhall I go downe after the Piliſtines? Wilt thou delyuer them into the hādes of Iſrael? But he anſwered him not at that time. And Saul ſayde: let the people come hyther oute af all quarters, and knowe & ſe by whō thys ſinne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as ẏ Lord lyueth which ſaueth Iſrael, though it be in Jonathas my ſonne, he ſhal dye the death. But there was no man amonge all the people that anſwered hym.

Then he ſayde vnto all Iſrael: be ye on one ſyde, and I & Jonathas my ſonne wilbe on the other ſyde. And the people ſayde vnto Saul: what thou thynkeſt beſt, ẏ do. Therfore Saul ſayde vnto the Lorde God of Iſrael: geue a perfect lot ✱(Lorde God, geue thou thy iudgement. How happeneth it, that thou geueſt thy ſeruaunt no anſwere to daye? If thys ſynne be in me or in Jonathas my ſonne, ſhewe it, or yf thys iniquite be in thy people.) And Saul & Jonathas were caught, but ẏ people ſkaped free. And Saul ſayd, caſt lottes betwene me & Jonathas my ſonne. And Dauid was the ſonne of an Ephrathite ☞ (of whō mencion is made afore) of Bethlehem Iudā, named Iſai, which had eight ſonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, and came to age amonge men. And the thre eldeſt ſonnes of Iſai went, and followed Saul to the battell. And the names of his thre ſonnes that went to battell, were: Eliab the eldeſt, and the next, Abinadab, and the thyrd Sāma, and Dauid was the leaſt. And the thre eldeſt went after Saull. And ſo thy ſeruaunt ſlue the Lyon and ẏ beare (alſo) hath thy ſeruaunt ſlayne. And Dauid ſpake moreouer: the Lord that delyuered me out of the hãde of ẏ Lyon ⁊ out of the hande of ẏ beare, he ſhal delyuer me alſo out of the hande of the Philiſtine.

And Saul ſayde vnto Dauid: go, and the Lorde ſhall be wyth the. And Saul put hys rayment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of braſſe vpon hys head, ⁊ put a coate of mayle vpõ him, and gyrded Dauid with his awne ſwerde vpõ his rayment. And he aſſayed to go. And becauſe he neuer proued it, Dauid ſayd vnto Saul: I cannot go with theſe, for I haue not vſed my ſelfe therto: and Dauid put them of hym, and toke hys ſtaffe in hys hande, and choſe him fyue ſmoth ſtones oute of a broke, and put thẽ in a ſheperdes bagge which he had, ⁊ in a ſlynge poke: ⁊ his ſlynge was in his hãde, ⁊ he went to the Philiſtine.

F And the Philiſtine came and drue nere agaynſt Dauid, ãd the man ẏ bare the ſhylde went before hym. And when the Philiſtine loked about, and ſawe Dauid, he diſdayned hym, for he was but yõge, and wel coloured, and goodlye to loke vpon. And the Philiſtine ſayde vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, ẏ thou comeſt to me with a ſtaffe? ãd the Philiſtine curſed Dauid in ẏ name of hys goddes. And the Philiſtine ſayde to Dauid: come to me, ⁊ I wyll geue thy fleſhe vnto the foules of the ayre, ⁊ to the beaſtes of the felde. Then ſayd Dauid to the Philiſtine: thou comeſt to me wyth a ſwerde, a ſpeare and a ſhylde: But I come to the in ẏ name of the Lorde of hoſtes the God of the hooſte of Iſrael, whom thou haſt rayled vpon. But Dauid ran G and ſtode vpon the Philiſtine, and toke hys ſwerde, and drue it out of hys ſheth, and ſlue hym, ⁊ cut of hys head therwyth. And the Philiſtines fell downe wounded by the waye to Saaraiim, euẽ vnto Gath ⁊ Akaron. And the chyldren of Iſrael returned frõ chaſynge after the Philiſtines, and ſpoyled theyr tentes. And Dauid toke the head of ẏ Philiſtine, and brought it to Jeruſalẽ: But he put hys armoure in hys tente.

Whẽ Saul ſawe Dauid go forth againſt the Philiſtine, he ſayd vnto *Abner the cap- *i.re.xiiii.g. tayne of his hoſte: Abner, whoſe ſõne is this yong man? Abner anſwered: as truly as thy ſoule lyueth (O kyng) I cãnot tell. And the kynge ſayd: Enquere thou, whoſe ſonne the youngelynge is. And when Dauid was returned from the ſlaughter of the Philiſtine, Abner toke hym, and brought hym before Saul, wyth the head of the Philiſtine in his hande. And Saul ſayd to hym: whoſe ſonne art thou, thou yonge mã? Dauid anſwered: I am the ſonne of thy ſeruaunt Iſai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The bonde betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul goeth about to ſlee Dauid.

AND when he had made an ende of ſpeakynge vnto Saul, the A ſoule of Jonathas was knyt wyth the ſoule of Dauid, and Jonathas loued hym as hys awne ſoule. And Saul toke him that daye, and wolde let him go nomore home to hys fathers houſe. And Jonathas made a couenaunt wyth Dauid, becauſe he loued him as his awne ſoule. And Ionathas put of his awne coate that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, & therto his cloke, his ſwerd, his bowe and hys gyrdle. And Dauid wente oute whether ſoeuer Saul ſent hym, and behaued hym ſelfe wyſely. And Saul ſet hym ouer his men of warre, and he was accepted in the ſyght of al the people, and in the ſyght of Sauls ſeruauntes.

B And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the ſlaughter of the Philiſtine, yͤ wemen came out of al cyties of Iſrael ſyngyng & daunſyng, agaynſt kynge Saul, and with tymbrelles, wyth ioye, and with inſtrumentes of muſick. And yͤ wemen anſwered one another in theyr playe, & ſayd: *i. Regum. xxi.d and. xxix.b. * Saul hath ſlayne his thouſande, and Dauid hys ten thouſande. And Saul was excedyng wroth, and the ſaying diſpleaſed hym, and he ſayd: they haue aſcribed vnto Dauid ten thouſande, and to me but a thouſande, & what can he more haue, ſaue the kyngdome? Wherfore Saul loked on ſyde of Dauid frõ that daye forwarde. And it happened on the C morowe, that the euel ſprete ſent of God came ☞ vpon Saul, and ☞ he propheſyed in the myddes of yͤ houſe. And Dauid played with hys hande lyke as at other tymes, and there was a iauelyng in Sauls hande. And Saul toke the iauelyng, & ſayd: I wyll nayle Dauid to the wall with it. And Dauid auoyded oute of hys preſence two tymes. And Saul was afearde of Dauid, becauſe yͤ Lorde was with hym, & was departed frõ Saul. Therfore Saul put him from him, and made him ☞ a captayne ouer a thouſand, and ☞ he went out ãd in before yͤ people. And Dauid behaued him ſelfe wyſely in all his wayes, ãd the D Lord was with him. For Saul thought: myne hande ſhall not be vpon him, but the hãde of yͤ Philiſtines. And Dauid anſwered Saul: E what am I? and what is my lyfe or the kynred of my father in Iſrael, that I ſhulde be ſonne in lawe to the kynge? Howbeit, when the tyme was come yͤ Merob Sauls daughter ſhulde haue bene geuẽ to Dauid, ſhe was geuen vnto Adriel a Meholothite, to wyfe. Howbeit, Michol Sauls daughter loued Dauid. And they ſhewed Saul: & the thyng diſpleaſed hym not. And Saul ſayde: I wyl geue hym her yͤ ſhe maye be a ſnare to him, & that the hande of the Philiſtines maye be agaynſt hym. Wherfore Saul ſayde to Dauid: thou ſhalt this daye be my ſone in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul commaũded hys ſeruauntes, to comẽ with Dauid ſecretlye & to ſaye: Beholde yͤ kyng hath a fauoure to the, and all his ſeruauntes loue the, be nowe therfore the kynges ſonne in lawe.

F And Sauls ſeruauntes ſpake thoſe wordes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid ſayd: ſemeth it to you a lyght thynge to be a kynges ſonne in lawe? I am a poore man and of ſmal reputaciõ. And the ſeruaũtes brought Saul worde agayne, ſaying: of this maner ſpake Dauid. And Saul ſaid: this wiſe ſhal ye ſaye to Dauid: the kyng careth for no nother dowrye, but for an hũdred foreſkynnes of the Philiſtines, to be auenged of the kynges enemyes. But Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the hãdes of the Philiſtines. And when hys ſeruaũtes tolde Dauid theſe wordes, it pleaſed Dauid well to be the kynges ſonne in lawe. And ☞ or yͤ dayes were ☞ G expyred, Dauid aroſe with his men, & went ãd ſlue of the Philiſtines, two hundred men, and Dauid brought theyr foreſkynnes, and ſatiſfyed the kynge therof, to be his ſonne in lawe. * Wherfore Saul gaue hym Michol *ii. ¶ The.xx. Chapter.

¶ Dauid complayneth vnto Jonathas.

A AND Dauid fled from Naioth which is in Rama, came, & ſayde before Jonathas. What haue I done? wherin am I faultie? what is the ſynne that I haue cōmytted before thy father, that he ſeketh my lyfe? And in verye dede, euen as trulye as the Lorde lyueth, and as trulye as thy ſoule lyueth, there is but a ſteppe betwene me & death. And yf he ſaye it is well done, then thy ſeruaūt ſhal haue peace. But and yf he be angry, then be ſure that wyckedneſſe is vtterlye concluded of hym. And then thou ſhalt ſhewe mercye vnto thy ſeruaunt *for thou haſt made wyth me thy ſeruaunt a bonde in the Lorde. And Jonathas anſwered, God kepe that from ỹ ☞ (neyther is it poſſyble to come to paſſe.) For yf I knowe, that wyckedneſſe were concluded of my father, to come vpon the, thynkeſt thou, that I ſhulde not tel it the? Then ſayd Dauid: who ſhall tell me, yf thy father anſwere cruelly? And Jonathas ſaid vnto Dauid, come and let vs go out into ỹ felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

C And Jonathas ſayde vnto Dauid: The Lorde God of Iſrael loke on it, whē I haue groped my fathers mynd, one tyme or other within this thre dayes, ỹ it ſtande wel wyth Dauid. Yf I then ſende not vnto the & ſhewe it the, the Lord do ſo and ſo vnto Jonathas. D Then ſayde Jouathas to Dauid: to morowe

But on the morowe which was the ſeconde

ſayde vnto Jonathas his ſonne. Wherfore

And therfore yf I haue foũd fauoure in thyne

& ſayde vnto him: Thou wycked rebell,

And Jonathas anſwered vnto Saul his

frõ the table in a great anger, & did eate
no meat the ſecond daye of yͤ moneth, for he was ſory for Dauid, becauſe his father had done him ſhame. On yͤ next morning, Jonathas
wẽt out into yͤ felde, at yͤ tyme apoĩted with Dauid, & a lytle lad with him. And he ſayde vnto his boye: runne & ſeke out myne

he ſhot an arowe beyond him. And when the had ſhot the arowe, Jonathas cryed after yͤ

And Jonathas cryed after the lad agayne:
make ſpede, and ſtande not ſtyll. And Jonathas lad geathered vp the arowes, & cam to

And Jonathas gaue his weapõs vnto yͤ lad

And they kiſſed ether other, & wept together

Jonathas ſayde to Dauid: go in peace. And Then Dauid departed & came into the foreſt Hareth. And Saul heard ẏ Dauid was come abrode, and alſo the mẽ that were wyth hym. And Saul ſat ĩ Gibea vnder a tree in Rama, hauyng hys ſpeare in hys hãd, & al hys men ſtode about him. And Saul ſayde vnto hys ſeruaũtes that ſtode B about hym. Heare I praye you ☞ ye ſonnes ☞ of Jemini: wyll the ſonne of Iſai geue euery one of you feldes and vineyardes, ãd make you all captaynes ouer thouſandes, & ouer hundredes? that ye haue alſo cõſpired agaynſt me, and there is none that telleth it me in myne eare? * And, where as my ſonne hath made a bonde with the ſonne of Iſai, ther is none of you that mourneth for me, or ſheweth it in myne eare: beholde, my ſonne hath ſtered vp my ſeruaunt to lye awayte agaynſt me thys ſame daye.

Then anſwered Doeg the Edomite which alſo ſtode by the ſeruauntes of Saul, & ſayde: I ſawe the ſonne of Iſai, when he cam to Nob, to Ahimelech the ſonne of Ahitob, which aſked counſell of the Lorde for hym and gaue hym vitaples, and the ſwerde of Goliath the Philiſtine alſo. Then the king ſent and called for Ahimelech the preaſte ẏ ſõne of Ahitob, & all his fathers houſe, that is to ſaye, the preaſtes that were in Nob.

And they cam all to the king. And Saul ſayde: heare now thou ſonne of Ahitob. He C anſwered: here I am, my Lord. And Saul ſayde vnto hĩ: why haue ye cõſpired agaynſt me, thou and the ſonne of Iſai, in that thou haſt geuẽ him vitaple, & a ſwearde, and haſt aſked counſell of God for him, that he ſhuld aryſe agaynſt me, & lye awayte for me thys daye? Ahimelech anſwered the king & ſayde who is ſo faythfull amõg all thy ſeruaũtes as Dauid, & therto the kinges ſonne in lawe & goeth at thy byddyng, & is had in honoure in thyne houſe? haue I thys daye begonne firſt to aſke counſell of God for hĩ? That be farre from me (yf I had knowen it) let not ẏ kyng put ſoch a thing vnto his ſeruaunt, in all the houſe of my father. For thy ſeruaũt knewe nothĩg of all this, ether leſſe or moare. The kinge ſayde: thou ſhalt ſurelye dye D Ahimelech, thou and all thy fathers houſe. And the kyng ſayde vnto the fote men that ſtode about hym: turne, and ſley ẏ preaſtes of the Lord, both becauſe theyr hãd is wyth Dauid, & becauſe they knewe when Dauid fleed, & ſhewed it not to me. But the ſeruaũ-tes of the kynge wolde not moue theyr handes,

to fall vpon the preaſtes of the Lorde.
And the kyng ſayd to Doeg: turne thou,
and fall vpon the preaſtes. And Doeg the Edomite turned, and ranne vpon the preaſtes, and ſlue that ſame daye foure ſkore ād
fyue perſonnes, that dyd weare a lynnen Ephod. And Nob the cytie of the preaſtes ſmote he wyth the edge of the ſwerde, both men and wemen, chyldren and ſucklynges, oxen and aſſes and ſhepe.

And one of the ſonnes of Ahimelech, the ſonne of Ahitob (named Abiathar) eſcaped & fled to Dauid. And Abiathar ſhewed Dauid, how that Saul had ſlayne the Lordes preaſtes. And Dauid ſayd vnto Abiathar:
I wiſt it the ſame daye, whā Doeg the Edomyte
was there, that he wolde tell Saul.

And I am cauſe of ẏ deeth of all the ſoules
of thy fathers houſe. Abyde thou wyth me, and feare not: For yf anye man ſeke my ſoule, he ſhal ſeke thyne alſo, with me thou ſhalt be in ſauegard.

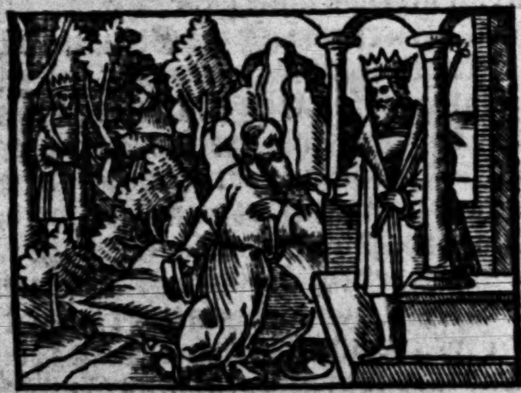
¶ The.xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid fleeth into the wildernes of ziph.



A Then they tolde Dauid ſayig: Beholde
the Philiſtines fight againſt Keilah, and ſpoyle the barnes.

Therfore Dauid aſked the Lordes aduyſe, ſayinge: ſhall I goo and ſmyte theſe Philiſtines?
And the Lorde anſwered vnto Dauid:
go and ſmyte the Philiſtines, and ſaue Keilah. And Dauids men that were wyth hym, ſayde vnto hym: ſe, we be afrayed here in Juda: how moch more then yf we come to Keila agaiſt the hoſt of the Philiſtines?
Then Dauid aſked the Lorde agayne.

And the Lorde anſwered him and ſayde:
Aryſe, and go downe to Keila, for I wil delyuer
the Philiſtines into thyne hande.

And ſo Dauid and hys men wēt to Keila,
and fought with the Philiſtines, and droue awaye theyr catell, and ſmote them wyth a C great ſlaughter. And ſo Dauid ſaued the enhabiters of Keila. And it chaunced, when B Abiathar the ſōne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keila, that he brought an Ephod wͭ hym in hys hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keila. And Saul ſayde: God hath delivered him into myne hād. For he is ſhut in now ẏ he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all ẏ people together to warre, for to go downe to Keila, and to beſege Dauid & hys men. And Dauid hauig knowlege that Saul imagyned myſchefe agaiſt him, ſayd to Abiathar
the preaſt: * Bring the Ephod. Then ſayde *i.Re.xxx.b Dauid: O Lord God of Iſrael, thy ſeruaūt
hath heard, ẏ Saul is about to come agaiſt Keila to deſtroye the cytie for my ſake: wyl
the men of Keila delyuer me into his handes?
And will Saul come downe, as thy ſeruaūt hath heard ſaye? O Lord God of Iſrael, tel thy ſeruaunt. And the Lorde ſayde: he will come downe. Then ſayde Dauid: wyll the mē of Keila delyuer me and the mē that are with me into the hād of Saul? and the Lorde ſayde: they will betraye you.

Then Dauid & his men which were vpon
a ſyxe hūdred, aroſe & departed out of Keila & wēt whyther they coulde. And it was told Saul, that Dauid was fled from Keila, ād he let the iourney alone. Dauid abode ĩ the wildernesſe in ſtrong holdes, & remayned in a mountayne ĩ the wildernesſe of ziph. And C Saul ſought him euery daye, but God delyuered him not ĩto his hād. And Dauid ſawe ẏ Saul was come out, to ſeke his lyfe. And Dauid was in the wildernesſe of ziph in a thicket. And Jonathas Sauls ſonne aroſe and went to Dauid into the thicket, and cōforted
his hande in God, & ſayde vnto hym:
feare not, for the hande of Saul my father
ſhall not fynde the, & thou ſhalt be kĩg ouer Iſrael, & I muſt be next vnto the. And that doth Saul my father knowe. * And they *i.Re.xviii.a and.xx.b
made a bonde both of thē togeather before ẏ Lorde. And Dauid taryed ſtyll in the thicket, and Jonathas went to his houſe. Then came the ziphites to Saul, to Gibea, ſayĩg:
Doth not Dauid hyde hym ſelfe faſt by vs ĩ
ſtrong holdes, in a thycket that is by ẏ hyll
of Hachila, on the ryght ſyde of the wildernesſe?
Now therfore kyng, thou mayeſt come downe accordynge to all the luſt of thy ſoule: come downe, and oure parte ſhalbe to delyuer hym into the kynges hande. And Saul ſayde: Bleſſed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue cōpaſſion on me. Go I praye you, & ordre the matter well, knowe & ſe his haunte,
where hys fote hath bene, and who hath ſene hym there for it is tolde me, that he is very ſuttell, & worketh craftely. He therfore, & knowe all ẏ lourkyng places, where he D
hideth hym ſelfe, and come ye agayne to me
with the certentye, and I will go wyth you.
And yf he be in the lāde, I will ſerche hĩ out
thorow out all the thouſandes of Juda.

And they aroſe, and went to ziph before Saul, But Dauid and his men were in the wildernesſe of Maon, in the playne ẏ is on the right hande of Jeſimon. Saul alſo and his men wente to ſeke: and they tolde Dauid. Wherfore he went vnto a Rocke, and abode in the wilderneſſe of Maõ. And whẽ Saul hearde that, he folowed after Dauid in the wilderneſſe of Maon. And Saul and hys men went on the one ſyde of the mountayne, and Dauid ⁊ his men on the other ſyde. And Dauid toke thought, howe to get from Saul. For Saul and hys men compaſed Dauid and his men, rounde about, to take them. But there cã a meſſenger to Saul ſayinge haſt the ⁊ come, for the Philiſtines are come into the lande. Wherfore, Saul retourned from perſecuting Dauid, and went agaynſt the Philiſtines. And therfore is it, that they called the place: The rock of ſeparacion. And Dauid went thence, and dwelt in ſtronge holdes at Engadi.

The. xxiiii. Chapter.

Dauid fleeth into Engadi and there hydeth hym in a caue. Saul commeth in thyther to do hys eaſement.

A When Saul was come agayne from folowynge after the Philiſtines, it fortuned, that there were, which tolde hĩ ſaying: beholde, Dauid is in the wilderneſſe of Engadi. Then Saul toke thre thouſand choſen men out of all Iſrael, ⁊ went to ſeke Dauid and his men in the height of ẏ Rockes, where wilde goates remayne.

☞ And he cam to the flockes of ſhepe in the waye. And Saul went into a caue ☞ to couer hys fete. And Dauid ⁊ hys mẽ remayned in the inwarde partes of the caue.

And the men of Dauid ſayde vnto him: ſe, ẏ daye is come, of whych the Lorde ſayde vnto the: Beholde: I wyll delyuer thyne enemyes into thyne hãd, ⁊ ẏ ſhalt do to hym as it ſhall ſeme good ĩ thy ſyght. Then Dauid aroſe and cut of a lappe of Sauls garment ☞ priuelye. And immediatly ☞ Dauids hert ſmote hym because he had cut of a lap of B Sauls garment. And he ſayde vnto his mẽ the Lorde kepe me from doinge that thinge vnto my maſter ẏ Lordes anointed, to laye mine hande vpon hym, ſeynge he is ẏ anointed of the Lorde. *(For as truly as the Lord lyueth excepte the Lorde ſmyte hym, or excepte hys daye come, or yf he go not downe to warre and periſhe: the Lorde be mercyfull vnto me, that I laye not my hande vpon the Lordes anoynted.) And ſo Dauid kept of hys ſeruauntes with theſe wordes, and ſuffred them not to ryſe agaynſt Saul.

But Saul roſe vp out of the caue ⁊ went awaye, Dauid alſo aroſe and went out of ẏ caue, and cryed after Saul, ſayĩg: My Lorde kyng. And when Saul loked behynde hym. Dauid ſtowped to the erth, ⁊ bowed hym ſelfe, and ſayde to Saul: wherfore geueſt thou an eare to mẽnes wordes that ſay, Dauid ſeketh euell agaynſt the? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue ſene, howe that the Lorde hath delyuered the this daye in to C myne hande in the caue. And ſome bad me kyll the, but I had compaſſion on the, and ſayd: I wyll not lay my handes on my maſter, for he is the Lordes anoynted. And moreouer, my father, behold, and ſe yet the lap of thy garment in my hande, in as moche as I kylled the not, when I cutte of the lap of thy garment. Underſtande therfore, and ſe, that there is neyther euell nor wyckedneſſe in me, and that I haue not ſynned agaynſte the. And yet thou hunteſt after my ſoule to take it. The Lord be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lorde auenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpon the. Accordynge as the olde prouerbe ſayeth: wyckedneſſe proceadeth from the wycked: But myne hande be not vpon the. After whom is the kynge of Iſrael come out? After whom doſt thou moue perſecucion? after ☞ a deed dog, and after a flee? The Lorde be iudge, and iudge betwene the and me, and ſe ⁊ pleate my cauſe, and auenge me of thyne hande.

D When Dauid had made an ende of ſpeakĩg theſe wordes to Saul, Saul ſayd: * is this thy voyce my ſonne Dauid? and Saul lyft vp hys voyce, and wepte, and ſayde to Dauid: thou art ryghteouſer then I, for thou haſt rewarded me with good, where as I haue rewarded the wyth euell. And thou haſt ſhewed thys daye, how that thou haſt dealt louynglye wyth me, for as moche as when the Lord had locked me in thyne handes, ẏ kylledſt me not. For who ſhall fynde hys enemye, and let hym departe ĩto a good waye? Wherfore the Lord rewarde ẏ wyth good, for that thou haſt done vnto me thys daye. And now beholde, I wote well ẏ thou ſhalt be kynge, and that the kyngdome of Iſrael ſhalbe ſtablyſhed in thyne hande. Sweare now therfore vnto me by the Lorde that thou ſhalt not deſtroye my ſede after me, ⁊ that thou ſhalt not put my name out of my fathers houſe. And Dauid ☞ ſware vnto Saul, and Saul went home. But Dauid and his men gat thẽ vp vnto an holde.

The. xxv. Chapter.

Samuel dyeth. Dauid fleeth into the wylderneſſe of Pharan.

A And * Samuel dyed, and all the Iſraelites geathered togeather and lamented hym, and buryed hym in hys owne houſe at Rama.

And Dauid aroſe, and gat hym to ẏ wyldernesse of Pharan. And there was a mã in Maon whoſe poſſeſſion was in Carmel, ãd the man was excedynge mightie, and had thre thouſande ſhepe ⁊ a thouſande goates. And he was sheryng hys ſhepe in Carmell.

The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of hys wyfe was Abigail, and ſhe was a woman of a ſynguler wyſdome and bewtifull. But the man was churlyſhe, and of ſhrewde condicions, and was of the kynred

of Caleb. And Dauid hearde in the wilderneſſe, yͭ Nabal dyd ſhere hys ſhepe. And Dauid ſent out ten young men, and ſayd vnto
B them: get you vp to Carmell, and go to Nabal, and grete hym ĩ my name. And thus ſhal ye ſaye: peace be to the, peace be to thyne

Beholde, I haue heard ſaye, that thou haſt

Wherfore let theſe young mẽ fynde fauoure

*i.re.xxi.a and * geue I praye the whatſoeuer cõmeth

And whan Dauids youngmẽ came, they tolde Nabal all thoſe wordes ĩ the name of Dauid, ⁊ thẽ helde theyr peace. And Nabal anſwered Dauids ſeruaũtes, ⁊ ſayde: what is Dauid? ⁊ what is the ſonne of Iſai? there is plentye of ſeruauntes now a dayes, that breake awaye euery man from hys maſter.
Shall I thẽ take my breed, my water ⁊ my it vnto men whõ I wote not whẽce they

C hym all thoſe ſayĩges. And Dauid ſayd vnto hys men: gyrde euery man hys ſwerde aboute hym. And they gyrded euery man his ſwerde aboute hym, ãd Dauid was gyrded with his ſwerde. And there folowed Dauid vpon a foure hundred men, and two hũdred abode by the ſtuffe. But one of yͤ laddes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, ſaying: Beholde, Dauid ſent meſſẽgers vnto oure maſter out of the wilderneſſe to ſalute him and he rayled on them. And yet the men are very good vnto vs, and dyd vs no dyſpleaſure, nether miſſed we any thinge, as longe as we were conuerſant with them, when we were in the feldes. They were a wall of defẽce vnto vs were with them kepinge ſhepe. Nowe therfore, take hede, ⁊ ſe what thou haſt to do, for there is an occaſion of euell geuen agaynſte our mayſter and all his houſholde, ſeyng: he D is as a ſõne of Belial vngracious to ſpeake

hundred loaues, ⁊ two bottelles of wyne, ⁊
fyue ſhepe readye dreſſed, and fyue meaſures
of parched corne, and an hundred frailes of reaſyngs, and two hundred topnettes of fygges, and laded them on aſſes, and ſayde vnto her younge men: go ye before me. Beholde,
I come after you. But ſhe tolde her huſband Nabal nothing therof. And as ſhe rode on her aſſe, ſhe came pryuely downe the ſyde of the hyll, and beholde, Dauid and his mẽ came downe againſt her, ⁊ ſhe met them.

And Dauid ſayde: in vayne haue I kept
all that this felowe hath in the wilderneſſe,
ſo that nought was myſſed of all that pertayned vnto hĩ. And he hath quite me euell for good. So and ſo do God vnto the enemyes of Dauid, yf I leaue of all that pertayne

And when Abigail ſawe Dauid, ſhe haſted
and lyghted of her aſſe, ãd fell before Dauid

and fell at his fete, and ſayde: Let this vnhappie

and let thine hãdmayde ſpeake in thyne audience, ⁊ heare the worde of thy handemayde.
Let not my Lord, ○(the kyng) regarde this ○

yͤ Lord lyueth, ⁊ as thy ſoule lyueth, yͤ Lord E

⁊ withdrawe yͤ thine hand frõ bloud ſheade
Now, I praye God yͭ thine enemyes ⁊ they

And now this is the ☞ bleſſing which ☞ thyne handemayde hath brought vnto my

that folowe my Lorde. Forgeue the treſpace of thine handmayde, for the Lord wil make my Lorde a ſure houſe, becauſe my Lord
fyghteth the batayles of the Lord, and there

made the ruler ouer Iſrael: then ſhall it be no decaye vnto the, ner diſcourage of herte
vnto my Lorde, that thou haſt not ſhedde
bloud cauſeleſſe, ner aduenged thy ſelfe.

But when the Lord ſhall haue dealt wel
with my Lord, thẽ thyncke on thyne handmayde. F
And Dauid ſayd to Abigail: bleſſed be the Lorde God of Iſrael, which ſent the thys daye to mete me. Bleſſed is thy ſayẽg ⁊ bleſſed art thou, which haſt kept me thys daye from comming to ſhede bloud, ⁊ from aduengyng my ſelf with myne awne hand.
For in very deade, as ſure as the Lord God of Iſrael lyueth, which hath kept me backe
from hurtyng the, excepte thou haddeſt haſted
and met me, thynkeſt yͧ, there had bene left vnto Naball by the dawnyng of the

uid receaued of her hand, that which ſhe had brought him & ſayde to her: go vp in peace to thyne houſe. Beholde, I haue herde thy voyce, and haue accepted thy perſone.

And Abigail came to Naball: & beholde
he helde a feaſt in hys houſe, lyke yͤ feaſt of a

him, for he was very drōckē. Wherfore ſhe tolde him nothynge, nether leſſe nor more, vntill the morowe daye. But in yͤ mornīg, when the wine was gone out of Naball, his G wife tolde hym theſe wordes, and hys herte dyed within hym, and he became as a ſtone

that Nabal was deed, he ſayde: Bleſſed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cauſe of my

his ſeruaunt from euell, and hath recōpenſed
the wickedneſſe of Nabal, vpō his awne

to thyntent to take her to his wife.
And when the ſeruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they ſpake vnto her ſaying: Dauid ſent vs vnto the, to take

ſelf on her face to the erth, and ſayd: Beholde
let thy hādmayde be a ſeruaūt, to waſhe

Abigail haſted, and aroſe, and gat her vp

Dauid alſo toke Ahinoam of Iezrahel, and

¶ The.xxvi.Chapter.

¶ Saul ſleapeth in his tent, and Dauid taketh awaye his ſpeare and a crewſe of water, that ſtode at is heed.

A THe ziphites came vnto Saul to Gibea, ſayeng: Doth not Dauid
hyde him ſelf ī the hill of Hachila which is before Ieſymon? Saul aroſe, and went downe to yͤ wilderneſſe of ziph, hauing thre thouſande choſen
men of Iſrael with hym, for to ſeke Dauid ī the wilderneſſe of ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyll of Hachila which lyeth before Ieſimon, by the waye ſyde. But Dauid dwelt in the wilderneſſe. And he ſawe that Saul cam after hym into the wilderneſſe.
Dauid therfore ſent out ſpyes, and vnderſtode,
that Saul was come in very dede.

And Dauid aroſe and came to the place were Saul had pitched, and Dauid beheld the place, where Saul laye, and Abner the ſōne of Ner which was hys chefe captayne.
Saul laye within, & the people & the hooſte rounde about him. Then anſwered Dauid and ſpake to Ahimelech the Hethite, and to Abiſai the ſonne of zaruia and brother to Ioab, ſaying: who wyll go downe wyth me to Saul to the hoſte? And Abiſai ſayde: I will go downe with the.

And ſo Dauid and Abiſai came downe to B yͤ people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye ſleping within the hooſt, & his ſpeare ſtacke in the ground at his heed. But Abner & the people laye round about hym. Then ſayde Abiſai to Dauid: God hath deliuered thyne enemye into thyne hande this daye. Now therfore, let me ſmyte hī once with my ſpeare to the erth, and I wyll not ſmyte hym the ſeconde tyme. And Dauid ſayde to Abiſai:
deſtroye hym not. For who can laye his hāde
on the Lordes anoynted, and be gyltleſſe And Dauid ſayde furthermore: as ſure as the Lorde lyueth, the Lorde ſhal ſmyte him or hys daye ſhall come to dye, or he ſhall deſcende into battell, and there periſhe.

The Lord kepe me frō laying myne hand
vpon the Lordes anoynted: But take thou now yͤ ſpeare that is at his heed, & yͤ crewſe of water, & let vs go. And ſo Dauid toke yͤ ſpeare & the crewſe of water from Sauls
heed, and they gat them away, and no man ſawe it, or marked it, or awaked. For they C were all a ſlepe, because the Lorde had ſent

ouer to the other ſyde, and ſtode on the toppe

and to Abner the ſonne of Ner, ſayinge Heareſt thou not Abner? Abner anſwered, and ſayde: What art thou that I cryeſt to ☜ the kynge? and Dauid ſayde to Abner: art not thou a man: and who is lyke the in Iſrael?
Wherfore then haſt thou not kept thy

And Saul knewe Dauids voyce, & ſayd
*is this thy voyce my ſonne Dauid? & Dauid *i.re.xxiiii.b
ſayd: it is my voyce, my Lorde, O kyng
And he ſayde: wherfore doth my Lord thus

let my Lorde the kyng heare yͤ wordes

But & yf they be the children of men,

For the kinge of Iſraell is come out to hūt

And Joab the ſonne of zaruia and the ſeruaũtes of Dauid wente out, and mette them by the Pole of Gibeon. And they ſatt downe the one, on the one ſyde of the Pole, and the other on the other ſyde. And Abner ſayde to Joab: let the yoũg men aryſe, and ☞ playe before vs. ☞ And Joab ſayde: D Let them aryſe. Then there aroſe and went ouer, twelue of BenJamin by nombre, which pertayned to Iſboſeth the ſonne of Saul, and twelue of the ſeruauntes of Dauid. And euery one caught hys felowe (that came agaynſt hym) by the heed, and thruſt hys ſwerde in hys ſyde, and ſo they felle downe together. Wherfore the place was called: The felde of the myghtye. And it is in Gibeon. And there beganne an exceadinge cruell batell that ſame daye. For Abner and the men of Iſrael fell before the ſeruauntes of Dauid.

And there were thre ſonnes of zaruiah there: Joab, Abiſai and Aſahel. And Aſahel was as lyghte of fote as a wylde Roo, and Aſahel folowed after Abner, and * turned *De.xxviii.c nether to the ryght hand nor to the lefte, frõ Abner. And Abner ſayde agayne to Aſahel departe fro me. Wherfore ſhulde I ſmyte the to the groũde, and not be able to holde vp my face to Joab thy brother? And the ſõne went downe, when they were come to ẏ hyll Ama that lyeth before Giah by the waye ẏ goeth thorowe the wylderneſſe of Gibeon. And the chyldren of BenJamin geathered them ſelues together on a heape, to Abner, ⁊ ſtode on the toppe of an hyll. And Abner ⁊ his men walked all that nyght thorowe the playne, ⁊ went ouer Jordan, ⁊ paſt thorowe all Bethhorõ tyll they came to Mahanaim

And Joab returned frō perſecutyng Abner. And whā he had geathered all yͤ people together, there lacked of Dauids ſeruaūtes nyntene men, ⁊ Aſahel. But the ſeruauntes of Dauid had ſlayne of BenJamin, and of Abners men, thre hūdred ⁊ thre ſkore men. And they toke vp Aſahel, ād buryed hym in yͤ ſepulchre of his father in Bethlehem. And Joab ⁊ hys men went all nyght, vntyll the dawnynge of the daye, and came to Hebron.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

A There was longe warre betwene the howſe of Saul, and yͤ howſe of Dauid. But Dauid waxed ſtronger and ſtronger, and the houſe of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. *i.Par.iii.c And vnto Dauid were ∘(ſyxe)chyldren borne in Hebron: hys eldeſt ſonne alſo was Amnon, of Ahinoam the Jezrahelite: the ſeconde Chelcab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite: the thyrde Abſalom, the ſōne of Maachah yͤ daughter of Thalmai, the kynge of Geſſur: the fourth, Adonia, the ſonne of Hagith: the fyfte, Sephatia the ſonne of Abital: yͤ ſixte Jethreā by Egla Dauids wyfe. These were borne to Dauid in Hebrō. And it fortuned, that whyle there was warre betwene the houſe of Saul and the houſe of Dauid, Abner helde vp the houſe of Saul. And Saul had a concubyne named Rizpa, the daughter of Ahia. And Iſboſeth ſayde to Abner: ☞ Wherfore haſt thou ☞ gone into my fathers concubyne? B Then was Abner very wroth for the wordes of Iſboſeth, ⁊ ſayde: *i.reg.xvii.c Am I not a *dogges heed, whych agaynſt Juda do ſhewe mercye thys daye vnto the houſe of Saul thy father, ⁊ to hys brethren and frendes, and haue not delyuered the into the hande of Dauid: and thou fyndeſt a *Ruth.i.c. fault in me thys daye for thys womā? *So and ſo do God to Abner. For as the Lorde hath ſworne to Dauid, ſo wyll I be on hys ſyde, to bryng the kyngdom from the houſe C of Saul, that the throne of Dauid maye be ſtablyſhed ouer Iſraell, and ouer Juda euē from Dan to Berſabe. And he coulde geue Abner neuer a worde to anſwere, becauſe he feared hym.

∘* And Abner ſent meſſengers to Dauid ∘* ſecretely, ſaying: Whoſe is yͤ lande? Make a bonde wyth me, and beholde, my hande is wyth the, to brynge all Iſraell vnto the. And Dauid ſent meſſengers to Iſboſeth Sauls ſonne: ſaying, *delyuer me my wyfe *i.reg.xxv.g Michol, which I maryed with *an hundred *i.re.xviii.g foreſkynnes of yͤ Philiſtines. Nowe then do it: for the Lorde hath ſayd of Dauid: By the hāde of my ſeruaūt Dauid, I wyll ſaue my people Iſraell, out of yͤ handes of the Philiſtines, and oute of the hande D of all theyr enemyes. And Abner ſpake in yͤ eares of BenJamin, and went to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron, all that Iſraell was content wyth, and the whole houſe of BenJamin. And ſo Abner came to Dauid to Hebron, hauynge twentye men wͭ hym, ⁊ Dauid made hym ⁊ the men that were with him a feaſt. And Abner ſayde vnto Dauid: I wyll vp, and go geather all Iſraell vnto my lorde the kynge, that they maye make an appoyntement with the, and that thou mayſt commaunde all, as thyne harte deſyreth. And whan Dauid had lette Abner departe, he went in peace.

And beholde, the ſeruauntes of Dauid, ⁊ Joab came from chaſynge the robbers, and brought a great praye with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron: for he had ſent hym away to depart in peace. Whē Joab and all the hoſte that was with hym, were come, men tolde Joab ſayinge: Abner the ſonne of Ner came to the kinge, and he hath ſent hym awaye, yͭ he is gone in peace. Then Joab came to the kynge, and ſayde: what haſt thou done? Beholde, Abner came vnto the, ⁊ why haſt thou ſent hym awaye, E that he ſhulde ſcape quyte? Thou knoweſt Abner yͤ ſonne of Ner, for he came to diſceaue the, ⁊ to knowe thy outgoyng ⁊ ingoing, and to knowe all that thou doeſt. And when Joab was come out frō Dauid, he ſent meſſengers after Abner, which brought hym agayne from the well of Syra, vnknowyng to Dauid. And when Abner was come agayne to Hebrō, Joab toke hym a ſyde in yͤ gate *to ſpeake with hym ſecretely, ⁊ ſmote *Iudi.iii.c. hym vnder yͤ ſhort rybbes yͭ he dyed, ☞ for ☞ the bloud of Aſahel hys brother. And the people wiſt it, and it pleaſed them. And whatſoeuer the kynge dyd, it pleaſed all the people. ¶Baanah and Rechab ſley Iſboſeth the ſonne of Saul.

A When Sauls ſonne heard that Abner was deed in Hebron, his handes were feble, and all the Iſraelites were afrayed: ⁊ Sauls ſonne had two men that were captaynes ouer the ſoudyars, yͤ one called Baanah, ⁊ the other Rechab, the ſonnes of Rimmon a Berothite, of the chyldren of Ben Jamin: for Beroth was rekened to Ben Jamin. And they brought the heed of Iſboſeth vnto Dauid, to Hebrō, and ſayde to the kyng: beholde, there is the heed of Iſboſeth Sauls ſonne, thyne enemye which ſought after thy lyfe. And the Lorde hath aduenged my Lord the kyng this daye of Saul and of his ſeede.

D And Dauid anſwered Rechab and Baanah hys brother, the ſonnes of Rimmō the Berothite, and ſayde vnto them: * as ſurely as the Lord lyueth, which hath delivered my ſoule out of all aduerſytes: Whan one * tolde me ⁊ ſayde that Saul was deed, thynkynge to haue brought good tydynges, I caught hym, and ſlue hym in zikleg: whyche thought that I wolde haue geuen hym a rewarde for hys tydynges bryngynge. Howe moch more whan wycked men haue ſlayne a ryghtuouſe perſon, in hys awne houſe, and vpō his bed: Shall I not requyre his bloud of youre hande, and take you from the erth? And Dauid commaunded his young men, ⁊ they ſlue them, and cut of theyr handes, and fete, ād hanged them vp ouer the pole in Hebron. ¶The.vi.Chapter.

¶The arke is brought forth of the houſe of Abinadab. Uza is ſtryken and dyeth. Dauid daunſeth before it, & is therfore deſpiſeth of his wife Michol.

And Dauid and all the houſe of Jſraell playde before the Lorde in ſondrye inſtrumentes made of Cedre wood, with harpes, pſalteryes, tymberelles, fedylles, and ſymbals.

B And when they came to Nachons threſſhyng floure, Uza put hys hande to the arck of God, and helde it, for the oxen ſtombled. And one tolde kynge Dauid howe that the Lorde had bleſſed the houſe of Obeth Edom, and all that pertayned vnto him, becauſe of the Arcke of God. C And Dauid went and brought the Arck of God from the houſe of Obeth Edom, into the cytye of Dauid wyth gladnes. o*(And there were with Dauid ſeuen ſortes of daunſers, & calues for ſacrifyce.) And when they that bare the Arcke of the Lorde, had gone ſyxe ſpaces, he offered an oxe and a fat ſhepe. And it fortuned, that as the arcke of the Lorde came into the cytie of Dauid, Michol Sauls daughter loked thorow a windowe, and ſawe kynge Dauid ſprynge, and daunſe before the Lorde, and ſhe deſpyſed hym in her hert. And when they brought in ẏ arcke of the Lorde, they ſet it in hys place, euen in D the myddes of the tabernacle ẏ Dauid had pytched for it. Dauid wold buyld God an houſe: but is forbydden of God.

A IT happened after thys, ÿ the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, and Hanō hys ſonne raygned in hys ſteade. Then ſayde Dauid. I wyll ſhewe kyndneſſe vnto Hanon the ſonne of Nahas, as hys father ſhewed kyndneſſe vnto me. And Dauid ſent to comforte hym by the hande of hys ſeruauntes ouer (the death of) his father. And Dauids ſeruauntes came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, and the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon ſayde vnto Hanō theyr Lorde: thynkeſt thou that Dauid doth honoure thy father, that he hath ſent cōfortoures to the? Hath not Dauid rather ſent his ſeruaūtes vnto ÿ, to ſearche ÿ cytie, and to ſpye it out, and to ouerthrowe it?

Wherfore, Hanon toke Dauids ſeruaūtes, & ſhaued of the one halfe of euerye mannes berd, and cut of theyr garmentes in the myddle, euen harde to the buttockes of thē, & ſent them awaye. And he ſayde vnto hym: how cometh it, that thou beyng yͤ kynges ſonne, art thus conſumed euery daye? Wylt thou not tell me? Amnon anſwered hym: I loue

B And ſo Amnon laye downe, & made hym ſelfe ſycke. And when ẏ kynge was come to ſe him, Amnō ſayde vnto him: Oh let Thamar my ſyſter come, & make me a couple of frytters in my ſyght, ẏ J maye eate of her hande. Then Dauid ſent home to Thamar, ſayēg: go now to thy brother Amnons houſe, & dreſſe him meate. So Thamar wēte to her brother Amnons houſe, & he was layed downe. And ſhe toke floure, and made paſte, and dreſſed frytters in his ſyght, & dyd bake them, & toke a platter, & powred them out before him, but he wolde not eate. And Amnon ſayde: Haue out all men from me. And they went all out from hym. And Amnon ſayde vnto Thamar: brynge ẏ meate into the chābre, that J maye eate of thyne hand. And Thamar toke the frytters, whych ſhe had made, and brought them into ẏ chābre to Amnon her brother. And whan ſhe had ſet them before him, to eate, he toke her, and ſayd vnto her: come lye wyth me my ſyſter. Howbeit he wolde not herken vnto her voyce but toke her, & *forced her, & laye wᵗ her. And it fortuned, that whyle they were yet in ẏ waye, tydynges cam to Dauid ſayeng: Abſalom hath ſlayne all ẏ kynges ſonnes, & there is none left alyue. Then Dauid aroſe, & *tare his garmētes, & laye along on the erth: and all his ſeruaūtes ſtode by wᵗ theyr clothes rent. And Jonadab the ſonne of Simeach Dauids brother, anſwered, & ſayde: let not my Lorde ſuppoſe ẏ they haue ſlayne all the yonge men ẏ kynges ſonnes, ſaue Amnon only is deeth. For ẏ hath bene determined in Abſaloms mynde, ſence he forced hys ſyſter Thamar. Nowe therfore, let not my Lorde the kynge take the thynge ſo greuouſlye to thyncke ẏ all the kynges ſonnes are deed, ſaue Amnon only is deed.

*ii.Reg.i.b. and.iii.f.

But Abſalom fled. And the yonge man that kept the watche, lyfte vp his eyes, and loked: And beholde, ther cam moche people G by a waye, a lōge by the hynder parte on an hilles ſyde. And Jonadab ſayde vnto ẏ kynge: beholde, ẏ kynges ſonnes come: As thy ſeruaunt ſayde, ſo it is. And as ſone as he had lefte ſpeakynge: beholde, ẏ kynges ſonnes came, and lyfte vp theyr voyces, & wepte. The kynge alſo & all his ſeruaūtes wepte excedyngly. But Abſalom eſcaped, and wēt to Thalmai the ſonne of Amihur kynge of Geſur. And Dauid mourned for hys ſonne euery daye. And ſo Abſalom eſcaped and went to Geſur, and was there thre yeares.

res. And kynge Dauid deſyred to go forth vnto Abſalom: For where as Amnon was

¶ By the wyſdome of the woman

A IOab yͤ ſonne of zaruia perceaued,

D The woman ſayde: let thyne handmayde

ſayde: wherfore then haſt thou determined

But in all Iſrael there was not ſo goodlye
a man as Abſalom, for he was very Therfore Abſalõ ſent for Joab, to haue ſent him to ẏ kynge. But he wolde not come to him. And whan he ſent agayne,, he wolde not come. Then Joab aroſe and came to Abſalom vnto hys houſe, and ſayde vnto hym, wherfore haue thy ſeruauntes burnt my felde wᵗ fyre? And Abſalom anſwered Joab: beholde, I ſent for the, deſyringe the to come, becauſe I wolde haue ſent the to ẏ kynge, for to ſaye: wherfore am I come from Geſur? It had bene better for me, to haue bene there ſtyll. Nowe therfore, wolde I ſe the kynges face. And yf ther be any treſpace in me, kyll ẏ me. And ſo Joab came to ẏ kynge, and tolde hym: which whan he had ſent for Abſalom, he came to the kynge, and fell to the groũde on hys face before hym. And the kynge kyſſed Abſalom.

¶ The.xv.Chapter.

¶ Abſalom maketh inſurreccyon agaynſt his father. Dauid is fayne to flee for feare of hym.

A After thys it fortuned, that Abſalom gat hym charettes ⁊ horſſes, ⁊ fyftye men to rũne before hym. And he roaſe vp erlye in ẏ mornynge, and ſtode in the place of the entryng in of the gate. And whan any man came nye to him, ⁊ dyd hym obeyſaunce, he put forth his hande ⁊ toke him to hym, and kyſſed hym. And on thys maner

And wᵗ Abſalom went two hũdred men out of Jeruſalem, that were called. And they wẽt with pure hertes, not knowynge of any thynge. For ẏ people wẽt ⁊ increaſed wᵗ Abſalom ĩ multitude. And there cam a meſſenger to Dauid ⁊ ſayd: ẏ hertes of the men of Iſrael are turned after Abſalom. And Dauid ſayde vnto all hys ſeruauntes that were with hym at Jeruſalem: vp, that we maye be gone, for we ſhall not els eſcape from Abſalom. The kynge alſo hym ſelfe paſſed ouer ẏ broke Kydron. And all the people went towarde the waye that leadeth to the wylderneſ. And Sadock and all the Leuites were

Sadock therfore and Abiathar caryed the arcke of God agayne to Jeruſalem, and they taryed there. And Dauid wẽt vpon mount Olyuet, and wepte as he wẽt, and had his heed couered, and wẽt barefote. And all the people that was with hym, had euery man hys heed couered, & as they went vp, they wepte alſo. And one tolde Dauid ſayẽge: Ahithophel is one of them that haue conſpired wyth Abſalom. And Dauid ſayde. O Lorde, turne the councell of Ahithophel into folyſhenes.

G ☞ When Dauid was come to the toppe of the mount ☞ he worſhypped God: and beholde, Huſai ẏ Arachite came agaynſt hym wyth hys coote torne, & hauynge erth vpon hys heed. But yf thou returne to the cytie, & ſaye vnto Abſalom: I wyll be thy ſeruaũt O kynge: (as I haue thus longe bene thy fathers ſeruaunt, ſo am I nowe thy ſeruaunt) thou mayſt for my ſake deſtroye the councell of* Ahithophel. *ii.Re.xvii.a.b.c. And thou haſt there wͭ the, Sadock and Abiathar ẏ preaſtes, vnto whom thou ſhalt ſhewe all that thou canſt heare out of the kynges houſe. And ſo * Huſai Dauids frende gat hym to the cytie. *ii.Re.xvii.b And Abſalom alſo entred into Jeruſalem.

¶ The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ Ziba bryngynge preſentes to Dauid, dothe falſlye accuſe Myphiboſeth. Semei curſeth Dauid, and hurleth ſtones at hym. Abſalom (by the councell of Ahithophel) lyeth wyth hys fathers Concubynes.

A AND when Dauid was a lytle paſt, the top of the hyll: beholde Ziba the ſeruaunt of Myphiboſeth came to mete hym wyth a couple of Aſſes ſadeled, & vpon them two hundred loues, & one hũdred bonches of Reſynges, and an hundred frayles of dryed fygges, and a bottell of wyne. And the kyng ſayde vnto Ziba: what meaneſt ẏ wyth theſe? And Ziba ſayde. They be Aſſes ☞ for the kynges houſhold to ryde on, and bread and frute for the younge men to eate, and wyne: that ſuch as be faynt in the wylderneſſe, maye drynck. And ẏ kynge ſayde: where is thy maſters ſonne? Ziba anſwered vnto the kynge: beholde, he taryeth ſtyll at Jeruſalem. For he ſayde: thys daye ſhall ẏ houſe of Iſrael reſtore me the kyngdome of my father. Then ſayde the kyng to Ziba, beholde, thyne are all ẏ pertayned vnto * Myphiboſeth. *ii.Reg.ix.b. And Ziba ſayde: I do homage to the. I beſeche the that I maye fynde grace in thy ſyght, my Lorde, O kynge.

B And when kynge Dauid came to Bahurim: beholde, thence cam out a man of the kynred of the houſe of Saul, named * Semei the ſonne of Gera, *ii.Re.xix.c. and he cam out curſynge. And he caſt ſtones at Dauid, and at all the ſeruauntes of kynge Dauid. And all the people alſo and all the men of warre were on hys ryght hãde, and on hys lefte. And thus ſayde * Semei when he curſed: *Exo.xxii.d come forthe, come forth thou bloude ſheder, and ẏ man of Beliall. The Lorde hath brought vpon the all the bloude of ẏ houſe of Saul, in whoſe ſteade thou haſt raygned, and the Lord hath delyuered the kyngdom into the hande of Abſalom thy ſonne. And beholde thou art come to thy myſcheffe, becauſe ẏ art a bloudeſheder.

Then ſayde Abyſai the ſonne of Zaruia vnto the kynge: why doth thys deed dog curſſe my Lorde the kynge? let me go nowe, and take of the heed of hym. And the kynge ſayde: what haue I to do wyth you ye ſonnes of Zaruia: let hym curſſe: for the Lorde hath bydden hym curſſe Dauid. C Who dare then ſaye: Wherfore haſt thou done ſo? And Dauid ſayde to Abyſai, and to all hys ſeruauntes, beholde, my ſonne whych cam of myne awne body, ſeketh my lyfe. How moche more then maye thys ſonne of Jemini do it? Suffre hym to curſſe* for ẏ Lord hath bydden hym: iii.Re.ii.g. haplye the Lorde wyll loke on my weping eyes & wretchedneſſe, and do me good for hys curſſynge thys daye. And as Dauid & hys men wẽt by the waye, Semei went alõge on the hylles ſyde ouer agaynſt hym, and curſſed as he wẽt, and threwe ſtones at hym, and caſt duſt. And ẏ kynge and all that were wyth hym cam werye, and refreſshed them ſelues ☞ there. D *at Bahurim.

And Abſalom & all the people of the men of Iſrael came to Jeruſalem, & Ahithophel was wͭ hym. And as ſone as Huſai ẏ Arachite, Dauids frẽde, was come vnto Abſalõ, he ſayde vnto hym: God ſaue the kynge, God ſaue the kyng. And Abſalõ ſayde agayne to Huſai: is this ẏ kyndneſſe thou oweſt to thy frende? Why wenteſt thou not wyth hym? Huſai anſwered vnto Abſalom: naye not ſo, but whom the Lorde and thys people and all the men of Iſrael choſe, hys wyll I be, and with him wyll I dwell. Moreouer, vnto whome ſhall I do ſeruice, but euen to his ſonne? And as I was ſeruaunt before with thy father, euẽ ſo ſhall I be with the. Then ſpake Abſalom to Ahithophel: geue coũcell what is beſt for vs to do. And Ahithophel ſayde vnto Abſalom: get the in vnto thy fathers * concubines, whych he hath lefte to kepe the houſe. And all Iſrael ſhall heare, ☞ that thou ☞ art caſt out of thy father: then ſhall the handes of all that are wyth the, be ſtrõge. And ſo they pitched Abſalom a tent ☞ vpon the ☞ toppe of the houſe. And he wẽt in vnto hys fathers cõcubynes in the ſyght of all Iſrael.

And the councell of Ahithophel which he conceled in thoſe dayes, was as a man had aſked councell of God: euen ſo was all the councell of Ahithophel, both wyth Dauid and wyth Abſalom.

¶ The .xvii. Chapter.

¶ Ahitophel, ſeynge hys councell diſalowed of Huſai and forſaken, hangeth hym ſelfe.

A Ahithophel ſayde vnto Abſalom: let me choſe out nowe twelue thouſande men. And I will vp, & folowe after Dauid this nyght. And I wyll come vpõ him, whyle he is werye and weake handed, and wyll feare hym. And all the people that are with hym, ſhall flee. And ſo wyll I ſmyte ẏ kynge onlye, and wyll bryng agayne all ẏ people vnto the, ⊹ euen as eaſely as yf I wolde brynge anye other thyng. And whan I haue ſlayne the man whom thou ſekeſt, all the people ſhall haue reſt. And the ſaying pleaſed Abſalom well, and all the elders of Iſrael. Then ſayde Abſalom: call alſo Huſai the Arachite, and let vs heare hys councell. When Huſai was come to Abſalom, Abſalom ſpake vnto hym, ſayinge: Ahithophel hath geuen ſoche councell: Shall we do after hys ſaying, or no? tell thou.

B Huſai anſwered vnto Abſalom: the coũcell ẏ Ahithophel hath geuen, is not good at this tyme: For (ſayd Huſai) ẏ knoweſt thy father, and his men, howe ẏ they be ſtrong. And they be chafed in their myndes, and are euen as a * Beare robbed of her whelpes in the felde. Thy father is a man alſo practyſed in warre, & maketh no tarienge wͭ ẏ people. Beholde he lurketh now in ſome caue, or in ſome other (ſtrõge) place. And though ſome of hys men be ouerthrowen at ẏ fyrſt brunt, yet they that heare it wyll ſaye: The people ẏ foloweth Abſalom, be put to the worſſe. And the beſt men thou haſt whoſe hertes are as ẏ hertes of Lyõs, ſhall ſhrynke therat. For all Iſrael knoweth, that thy father is a myghtye man, and they whych be with hym are all men of warre.

C Therfore my councell is, that all Iſrael be geathered vnto the, from Dã to Beerſeba, (whych are as ẏ ſãde of the ſee in nõbre) and that thou go to batayle in thyne awne perſon. For ſo ſhall we come vpon hym in one place or other, where we ſhall fynde him and we wyll fall vpon hym, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And of all the men that are with hym, we ſhall not leaue hym one. Moreouer, yf he be gotten into a towne, then ſhall all ẏ men of Iſrael brynge ropes to that cytie, & we will drawe it into ẏ ryuer, vntyll there be not one ſtone founde there. And Abſalom & all the men of Iſrael ſayde: ẏ councell of Huſai ẏ Arachite is better, then the councell of Ahithophell. * For it was euen the Lordes determinacyon to deſtroye the good councell of D Ahithophel: that the Lorde myght brynge euell vpon Abſalom. Then ſayde * Huſai vnto Sadock and Abiathar the Preaſtes: of thys & that maner dyd Ahithophel and the elders of Iſrael councell Abſalom. And thus & thus haue I conceled. Nowe therfore ſend quicklye, and ſhewe Dauid ſaying: tarye not all nyght in the feldes of the wylderneſſe, but get the ouer, leſt the kynge be deuoured, and all the people that are wyth hym. Nowe Ionathas and Ahimaaz abode by the well Rogell: (for they myght not be ſene to come into the cytie.) And a wenche went & tolde them. And they went, and ſhewed kynge Dauid.

*ii.Reg.xv.d

E Neuertheleſſe, a lad ſawe them, and tolde it to Abſalom. But they wẽt both of them awaye quycklye, & cam to a mannes houſe in Bahurim, which had a well in his yarde, into the whych they wẽt downe. And a woman toke & ſprede a couerlet ouer ẏ welles mouth, and ſtrawed frymẽtie corne theron. And the thynge was not ſpyed. And when Abſalõs ſeruaũtes came to the wyfe to the houſe, they ſayde: Where is Ahimaaz & Ionathas? The woman anſwered them: they be gone ouer the lytell broke of water. And when they had ſought them and coulde not fynde thẽ, they returned to Ieruſalem. And as ſone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and went & tolde kynge Dauid, and ſayde vnto him: vp and get you quyckly ouer the water for ſoche councell hath Ahitophel geuẽ, agaynſt you. Then Dauid aroſe, and all the people that were wͭ hym, and they were come ouer Iordan be that it was daye: ſo ẏ there lacked not one of them, ẏ was not come ouer Iordan. F And whẽ Ahithophel ſawe, that his coũcell was not folowed, he ſadelled his Aſſe, and aroſe, and gate him home to hys awne houſe, & to his awne cytie, and put his houſholde in order, and hāged hym ſelfe, and dyed, and was buryed in the ſepulchre of hys father.

G Then Dauid came to Mahenaim. And Abſalom paſſed ouer Jordā, he and all the men of Iſrael wᵗ hym. And Abſalom made Amaſa captaine of ẏ hoſte in ſtede of Joab, whych Amaſa was a mannes ſonne named Jethra an Iſrahelite, that went into Abigail ẏ daughter of Nahas, ſyſter to zeruia Joabs mother. So Iſrael & Abſalom pytched in ẏ lande of Gilead. And when Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the ſonne of Nahas out of *Rabba ẏ cytie of ẏ chyldren of Ammon, & Machir ẏ ſonne of Ammiel out of Lodeber, and *Berzelai the Gileadite out of Roglim, brought beddes, baſens, erthen veſſelles, wheat & barly, floure, and parched corne, beanes, rice, otemell, hony, butter, ſhepe & cheſe of kyne, for Dauid and all the people that were wyth hym, to eate. For they ſayd: The people is hongrie, werye, and thyrſtye in the wyldernesse.

¶ Abſalom is ouercome in battell. He hangeth by the heere in an Oke. He is kylled and put in a dyche. Dauid is ſo ſorowfull for the deeth of Abſalom that he wepeth.

A AND Dauid nombred the people that were with hym, and ſet captaynes of thouſandes & of hūdredes ouer them. And Dauid ſent forth ẏ thyrde parte of the people vnder the hāde of Joab, and another parte vnder the hāde of Abiſai the ſonne of zeruia Joabs brother, and the other thyrde parte vnder the hāde of Ithai the Gethite. And the kynge ſayde vnto ẏ people: I wyll go with you alſo. And the people anſwered: Thou ſhalt not go forth: for yf we fle, oure aduerſaries will not care for vs: nether ſhal they regard vs, though halfe of vs were ſlayne: but ẏ art worth ten thouſāde of vs: Wherfore it is better, that thou ſuccoure vs out of the cytie. And ẏ kynge ſayde vnto them: what ſemeth you beſt, ẏ wyll I do.

B And the kynge ſtode by the gate ſyde, and all the people came out by hundredes & by thouſandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab & Abyſai, and *Ithai ſayeng: intreate the younge man Abſalom gently for my ſake. And all the people hearde, that ẏ kynge gaue all ẏ captaynes charge concernynge Abſalom. And ſo ẏ people went out into the felde agaynſt Iſrael, and ẏ battell was in the woode of Ephraim: Where ẏ people of Iſrael were put to ẏ worſſe before the ſeruauntes of Dauid, and there was a great ſlaughter that daye, euen of twentye thouſande men. For the felde was fought there in dyuerſe places, all abroade vpon ẏ erthe. ☞ And ☞ the wod deuoured moo people that daye, than dyd ẏ ſwerde. And Abſalom came before the ſeruauntes of Dauid rydynge vpon a Mule, whych caryed hym vnder the thicke bowes of a great Oke. And ☞ hys heed was caught of the Oke, & he was lifte vp betwene heuen & erthe: and ẏ Mule that was vnder hym, went hys waye. ☞

C And one that ſawe it tolde Joab, ſayeng: beholde, I ſawe Abſalom hāge in an Oke: and Joab ſayde vnto the man that tolde him. Yf thou dydeſt ſe him, why dydeſt not ẏ there ſmyte him to the ground, and I wold haue geuen the ten ſicles of ſyluer, and a gyrdle?

The man ſayde vnto Joab: though thou woldeſt laye a thouſande ſycles of ſyluer in my hande, yet wolde I not ſtretche out myne hāde agaynſt the kynges ſonne. For we hearde wᵗ oure eares when the kynge charged the, and Abyſai, and Ithai, ſayege: Beware, that none touch the younge man Abſalō. Moreouer, yf I had done it, I ſhulde haue done agaynſt myne owne lyfe: for there is no matter hyd from the kynge: yee and ẏ thy ſelfe woldeſt haue bene agaynſt me. Then ſayde Joab: I may not ſtāde thus taryeng wyth the.

D And he toke thre ſpeares in hys hande, and thruſt them thorowe Abſalom, whyle he was yet alyue on the bodye of the tree. And ten ſeruauntes ẏ bare Joabs weapōs, turned, and ſmote Abſalom, and ſlue hym. And when Joab blew the trompet, the people returned frō folowynge Iſrael: for Joab ſpared the people. And they toke Abſalom, and caſt hym into a great pyt in the wood, and layed a myghtye great heape of ſtones vpon hym. And all Iſrael fled to theyr tentes. And thys Abſalom yet in hys lyfe tyme *toke coūſell & reared vp a piller, whyche is in kynges dale. For he ſayd: I haue no ſonne. And therfore to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called ẏ pyller after hys awne name. And it is called vnto thys daye: Abſaloms pyller.

E Then ſayde Ahimaaz ẏ ſonne of Sadock: let me runne nowe, and beare the kyng tydynges, how that ẏ Lorde hath iudged hym quyte of ẏ hande of his enemyes. And Joab ſayde vnto hym: thou art no man to beare good tydynges to daye: ẏ ſhalt beare tydynges another tyme: but to daye ẏ ſhalt beare none, becauſe ẏ kynges ſonne is deed. Then ſayde Joab to Chuſi: go and tell the kynge, what ẏ haſt ſene: And Chuſi bowed hym ſelfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then ſayd Ahimaaz ẏ ſonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me alſo runne after Chuſi. And Joab ſayd: Wherfore wylt thou runne my ſonne? ſeing ẏ for the tydynges ẏ ſhalt haue no rewarde: well (ſayde he) come what wyll, let me rūne. He ſayd vnto hym: rūne. Then Ahimaaz rāne by ẏ playne waye, and came before Chuſi.

And

F And Dauid ſat betwene the two gates.
And the watchemen went vp to the rouffe
ouer the gate vnto the walle, & lyfte vp hys eyes, and ſawe: & beholde, there came a man runninge alone. And the watchemā cryed, & tolde yͤ kynge. And the kynge ſayde: yf he be alone, there is good tydynges in his mouth.
And he came, & drewe nye. And yͤ watchemā ſawe another man runnynge; and he called vnto the porter and ſayde: beholde, there cōmeth another man runnynge alone. And the kynge ſayde: he is alſo a tydynges brynger.
And the watcheman ſayde: me thynketh the runnynge of the formoſt is lyke yͤ runnynge of Ahimaaz the ſonne of Sadock. The king ſayde: he is a good man, and commeth wyth good tydinges. And Ahimaaz called, & ſayd vnto the kynge: good tydynges, and he fell downe flat to the earth vpon his face before the kynge, and ſayd: bleſſed be the Lorde thy ☞ God, whyche hath ☞ ſhut vp the men that lyft vp theyr handes agaynſt my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge ſayde: is the younge
G mā Abſalom ſafe? Ahimaaz anſwered: whē Joab ſent (Chuſi) the kynges ſeruaunt, and me thy ſeruaunt, I ſawe much a do. But I wote not what it was. And yͤ kynge ſayde vnto him: turne, and ſtande here. And he turned, and ſtode ſtyll.

And beholde, Chuſi came alſo, and ſayd:
Good tydinges my Lorde the kynge, for the Lorde hath quyte the thys daye oute of the hande of al them yͭ roſe agaynſt the. And the kynge ſayde vnto Chuſi. Is the younge mā Abſalō ſafe? Chuſi anſwered: The enemyes of my Lorde the kyng, and al that ryſe agaynſt
yͤ, to do the hurt, be as that younge man is. And the kynge was moued, and went vp to a chambre ouer the gate, and wepte. And as he went, thus he ſayde: O my ſonne Abſalom,
my ſonne, my ſonne Abſalom, wolde
God I had dyed for the: O Abſalō my ſonne
my ſonne.

¶ The. xix. Chapter.

¶ Dauid is reſtored to hys kyngdome, and brought agayne to Jeruſalem.

A And it was tolde Joab: beholde, the kynge wepeth & mourneth for Abſalom.
And the vyctorye of that daye
was turned into mournynge vnto al yͤ people.
For the people hearde ſaye that daye howe the kynge ſorowed for his ſonne. And the people ſtale awaye that daye from goynge into the cytie, as people confounded to ſtele awaye, whē they flee in battel. But the kynge hyd his face, and cryed wyth a loude voyce. O my ſonne Abſalom, O Abſalom my ſonne, my ſonne.

And Joab came into the houſe to yͤ kyng,
and ſayd: thou haſt ſhamed this daye the faces of all thy ſeruauntes, whyche thys daye haue ſaued thy lyfe, & the lyues of thy ſōnes
and of thy daughters, & the lyues of thy wyues,
and of thy concubynes, in that thou loueſt
thyne enemyes, and hateſt thy frendes.
For thou haſt declared thys daye, that thou B
regardeſt nether thy Lordes nor ſeruauntes
And this daye I do perceaue, that yf Abſalom had lyued, & all we had dyed thys daye, that had pleaſed yͤ well. Nowe therfore vp,
and come out, and ſpeake kyndely vnto thy ſeruauntes: For I ſweare by the Lorde; except thou come out, there wyll not tarye one man wyth the thys nyght. And that wylbe worſſe vnto the, then all the euell that fel on the from thy youth vnto thys houre. Then the kynge aroſe, and ſat downe in the Gate.
And they tolde vnto all the people, ſayinge: Beholde, the kynge doth ſyt in yͤ Gate. And al the people came before the kyng. But Iſrael fled, euery man to hys tent.

And it fortuned yͭ all the people were at ſtryffe thorowe out all the trybes of Iſrael, ſaying: the kinge ſaued vs out of the hāde of oure enemyes, he delyuered vs out of yͤ hāde of yͤ Philiſtines, and nowe he is fled oute of the lande for Abſalom. But Abſalō whō we anoynted ouer vs, is deed in battell. Therfore, C
why are ye ſo ſtyl, that ye brynge not yͤ
kyng agayne? And kyng Dauid ſent to Sadock & Abiathar yͤ preaſtes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the elders of Juda ād ſaye: why are ye behynde to brynge the kynge agayne to hys houſe, ſeynge that ſoch tydynges is come frō
all Iſrael vnto the kyng euen to hys houſe?
(For the kynge had ſayde: Thus ſhal ye ſaye vnto the people of Juda.) Ye are my brethren, my bones and my fleſhe: wherfore then are ye the laſt that bryng the kynge home agayne? And ſaye ye to Amaſa: art thou not of my bone & of my fleſhe? God do ſo and ſo to me, yf thou be not captayne of yͤ hoſt to me for euer in yͤ roume of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, euen as the hert of one man: ſo
yͭ they ſent this worde to the kyng: Returne thou with al thy ſeruauntes. So the kynge returned, & came to Jordan. And Juda came to Gilgall, for to go downe to mete yͤ kynge
& to conuey him ouer Jordā. And Simei * yͤ *ii.Re.xvi.b
ſonne of Gera, the ſonne of Jemini, whiche was of Bahurim, haſted, and came with the men of Juda to mete kynge Dauid, & there were a thouſand men of Beniamin wͭ hym, & * Ziba the ſeruaunt of the houſe of Saul & *ii.Re.xvi.a his. xv. ſonnes and twentye ſeruauntes wͭ
him. And they went quyckely ouer Jordan before the kynge. And there wēt ouer a boat that caryed ouer the kynges houſholde and they dyd him pleaſure.

And Simei the ſonne of Gera fell before D
the kynge (as he was come ouer Jordan) &
ſayd vnto him: let not my Lord impute wickedneſſe
vnto me, ner remember the thinges (that thy ſeruaunt dyd wyckedly when my Lorde the kynge departed oute of Jeruſalẽ) that the king ſhulde take it to hert. For thy ſeruaunt doth knowe, howe yͭ I haue done amyſſe. And therfore beholde, I am the fyrſt

☞ this daye ☞ of all the houſe of Joſeph, that am come to go downe, to mete my Lorde the kynge. But Abiſai yͤ ſonne of zeruia anſwered, and ſayde: ſhall not Semei dye for this, becauſe he curſed the Lordes anointed? And Dauid ſayde: what matter is betwene you and me ye ſonnes of zeruia? For thys daye ye be aduerſaryes vnto me. Shall there any mã dye thys daye in Iſrael? Do not I knowe, yͭ I am this daye kyng ouer Iſrael? And therfore the kynge ſayde vnto Semei: thou ſhalt not dye, & the kynge ſware vnto hym.

E And Miphiboſeth the ſonne of Saul cam alſo to mete the kynge, and had nether waſſhed his fete, ner ſhauen his beerde, ner waſſhed his clothes from the tyme the kynge departed, vntyl he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned that when he was come to Jeruſalem, and met the kynge, the kynge ſayde vnto hym: wherfore wenteſt not thou wyth me Miphiboſeth? He anſwered: my Lorde: O kyng, my ſeruaunt deceaued me. For thy ſeruaunt ſayd I wolde haue myne Aſſe ſadled to ryde theron, for to go to the kynge, becauſe thy ſeruaũt is lame. And ziba hath falſely reported of thy ſeruaũt vnto my Lorde the kynge. And my Lorde the kyng is as an angel of God: do therfore what ſemeth good in thine eyes. For al my fathers houſe were but dead mẽ before my Lorde the kynge: and yet dydeſt thou put thy ſeruaũt amonge thẽ yͭ dyd eate at thyne awne table. What right therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto the kynge? And the kynge ſayde vnto hym: Why ſpeakeſt thou yet in thine awne cauſe?
o* o*(It is determyned, that) I haue ſayd: thou & ziba deuide the landes betwene you. And Miphiboſeth ſayd vnto yͤ kynge: yee, let hym take all: for ſo moch as my Lorde the kyng is come agayne in peace vnto his awne houſe.

And Berſelai the Gileadite came downe
F from Roglim, and went ouer Jordan wyth the kyng, to conuaye him ouer Jordã: Berſelai was a veri aged man, euen foure ſkore yere olde, & prouyded yͤ kyng of ſuſtenaunce, whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verye great ſubſtaũce. And yͤ kynge ſayde vnto Berſelai: come thou with me, & I wyl fede the wyth me in Jeruſalem. And *Beerſelai ſayd vnto the kynge: I am thus iii.re.xvii.g olde, and howe am I able to go vp wyth the kynge vnto Jeruſalẽ? I am this daye foure ſkore yeare olde: and ☞ can I decerne betwene good and euel? Hath thy ſeruaũt any taſt in that he eateth or drynketh? Can he heare any more the voyce of ſyngyng men & women? Wherfore then ſhulde thy ſeruaũt be yet a burthen vnto my Lorde the kynge? Thy ſeruaũt wyl go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kynge: and why wyll yͤ kynge recompence it me with ſoch a reward? O let thy ſeruaũt turne back againe, that I maye dye in myne awne cytie, and (be buryed) in yͤ graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy ſeruaunt ☞ Chimeam: let ☞ hym go with my Lorde the kynge, and do to hym, what ſhall pleaſe the.

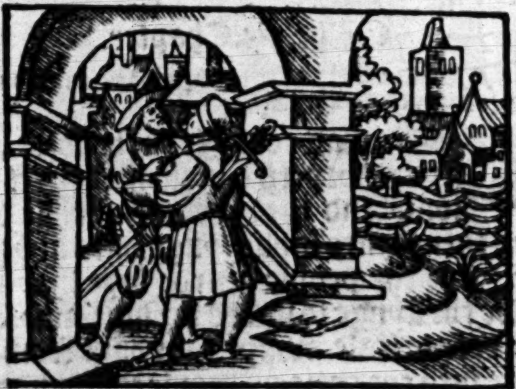
And the kynge anſwered: Chimeam ſhal G go with me. And I wyl do to him that thou ſhalt be content with. And whatſoeuer thou ſhalt requyre of me, that ſame wyll I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And whẽ the kynge was come ouer Jordan, he kyſſed Berſelai, and ☞ bleſſed hym, & he ☞ wẽt backe againe vnto his awne place. And then the kynge went to Gilgal, and Chimeã wẽt with hym, & ſo dyd all the people of Juda, and brought ouer the kynge, and there were but halfe the men of Iſrael.

And beholde, all the men of Iſrael came to the kynge, and ſayde vnto him, why haue our brethren yͤ mẽ of Juda ſtolen the awaye and haue brought the kyng & his houſholde, and all Dauids men with him ouer Jordã? And all the men of Juda anſwered the men of Iſrael: the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angrye for yͭ matter? thynke ye that we eate of yͤ kynges coſt, or that we take vs any gyftes? And the men of Iſrael anſwered yͤ men of Juda and ſayde: we haue ten partes in the kynge, & haue therto more ryght to Dauid then ye. Why then dyd ye deſpyſe vs, yͭ oure aduiſe ſhulde not be fyrſt had in reſtorynge our kynge agayne? And yͤ wordes of the mẽ of Juda were fearcer, then the wordes of the men of Iſrael.

¶ The. xx. Chapter.

¶ Seba the ſonne of Bichri reyſeth Iſrael agaynſt Dauid. Joab kylleth Amaſa trayterouſly. The head of Seba is delyuered to Joab. Dauids receauers are nombred.



WHan there cam thither a certayne mã of Belial (named Seba, the ſonne of Bichri, a mã of gemini) he blew a trõpet & ſayde: we haue no part in Dauid, neyther haue we enheritaunce in the ſonne of Iſai, let the mẽ of Iſrael departe vnto there tentes. And ſo A euery man of Iſrael went from Dauid, and folowed Seba the ſonne of Bichri. But the men of Iuda claue faſt vnto their kynge, frō Iordan to Ieruſalem.

And Dauid came to his houſe to Ieruſa-
*ii.Re.xv.d. and.xvi,d lem, *and toke the ten women his concubi-

B Then ſayde the kynge to Amaſa : call me departed out of Ieruſalem to folowe after Seba the ſonne of Bichri. And when they were at the great ſtone in Gibeon, Amaſa

lowe after Seba the ſonne of Bichri.

E And he went thorowe all the trybes of deuoure the enheritaunce of the Lorde.

And Ioab anſwered, and ſayde: God for-

And the kynge ſayd: I will gyue them you.

But the kynge had compaſſiō on Miphiboſeth from the mē of Jabes in Gilead (which had ſtolen thē from the ſtrete of Bethſan, where the Philiſtines had hanged them, when the

ANd Dauid ſpake the wordes of A this ſonge vnto the Lord, what tyme ẏ Lord had delyuered him out of ẏ hāde of all his enemyes
and out of the hande of Saul.
And he ſayde: the Lorde is ☞ my rocke, ☞ and my caſtel, and my delyuerer. God is my ſtrength, in him wil I truſt: he is my ſhylde,
and the horne of my ſaluacyon: my worſhyp
and my refuge: my ſauiour, thou ſhalt ſaue me from wronge.

*I wyll call on ẏ Lorde whych is prayſe *pſa.xviii.a worthy, and ſo ſhall I be ſaued from myne enemyes. For the corrupcyons of deeth cloſed me aboute: the floudes of Belial put me in feare. The ſorowes of hell cōpaſſed me about:
ẏ ſnares of death ouertoke me. In my tribulacyon wyl I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he ſhal heare my voyce out of his temple, and my crye ſhall enter into his eares. The erth trimbled and quaked:
☞ the foundacyons of heauen moued and ☞ ſhoke, whan he was angrye.

Smoke went vp in his wrath, and conſumynge fyre out of hys mouth, coles were kendled therof. And he bowed heuē, and cam downe, and there was darckneſſe vnder hys fete. And he ſat vpon Cherub and dyd flye, he ☞ was ſene caryed vpon the wynges of B
the wynde. He made darckneſſe a tabernacle ☞ roūde about hym, wyth waters geathered to geather in thycke cloudes. Thorowe the brygthneſſe of his preſence were the fyre coles kyndled.

God thundred from heuen, and he that is mooſte hye, doth put out hys voyce. He ſhot arowes, and ſkatered them: he hurled lyghtenynge, tenynge, and ouerthrewe them. The flowinges of the ſee apeared, and the foundacyons of the worlde were ſene, by the reaſon of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thorowe ỹ blaſtyng of the breath of his noſtrelles. He ſhal ſende from heauen, and fet me, he ſhal plucke me out of many waters.

He ſhall delyuer me from my myghtye aduerſarye, and fro myne enemyes, for they are to ſtrōge for me. When they had ouertaken me in the daye of my calamyty ỹ Lorde ſtayed me vp. For he brought me oute into rowmth: he delyuered me, becauſe he had a loue vnto me.

C *Roma.ii.b. *The Lord wyl rewarde me accordinge to my ryght wyſneſſe: accordynge to the pureneſſe of my handes wyl he recompence me. For I haue kept the wayes of the Lorde, ād done no wyckedneſſe agaynſt my God. For all his lawes are in my ſyght, & his ſtatutes wyll not I put awaye fro me. ☞ In hys ſyght alſo haue I bene vndefyled, & ☞ haue kepte me fro myne awne iniquite.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghtweſnes, euē after my pureneſſe in his eyeſight. With the godly thou ſhalt be godly, & with the mā that is vncorrupt, thou ſhalt be vncorrupt. Wyth ỹ pure thou ſhalt be pure, & with the froward thou ſhalt be frowarde. And the pore people ỹ are in aduerſyte, ỹ ſhalt helpe. And on ỹ proude ſhalt ỹ caſt thyne eyes. Thou art my lyght O Lorde: ỹ Lord ſhall lyght my darkneſſe.

☞ ☞ For with thy helpe I wyl runne thorowe an hooſte of men, and in ☞ my God wyll I ſprynge ouer a wall. ☞ God is vncorrupt in his waye: the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defender of all them that truſt in hym.

☞ For who is a God, ſaue the Lorde? & who is myghtye, ſaue our God? God ſtrengtheth me wyth power, and ☞ ryddyth the waye in battell cleare before me. He maketh my fete lyke hartes fete, & ſetteth me faſt vpon my hye holde.

*ps.cxliiii.a. *He teacheth my handes to fyght, ỹ euē a bowe of ſtele is to weake for myne armes.

D Thou haſt geuen me the ſhild of thy ſaluaciō, and with thy louinge mekeneſſe thou doeſt multyplye me. Thou ſhalt make me ſpace to walke in, & my legges ſhal not fayle me. I wyll folowe vpon myne enemyes and deſtroye them, and turne not agayne vntyll I haue conſumed them.

I wyl waſte them and ſmyte them, that they ſhall not be able to aryſe: yee, they ſhal fall vnder my fete.

Thou haſt gyrded me about with might to battell, and them that roaſe agaynſt me, haſt thou ſubdued vnder me.

And thou madeſt myne enemies (& them that hated me) to turne their backes to me, that I myght deſtroye them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to ſaue thē: Yee, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I wyl beate them as ſmal as the duſt of the erth: I wyl ſtampe them as the dyrte of the ſtrete, and wyll ſpreade them abroade.

Thou ſhalt delyuer me from the diſſencyon of my people: thou ſhalt kepe me to be an head ouer nacyons: the people whyche I knewe not, ſhall ſerue me.

Straūge children diſſemble with me: At the hearynge of the eare they obeye me.

Straūge chyldrē wyll ſhryncke awaye, and they ſhalbe ſmytten wyth feare in their preuye chamber. God is alyue, and bleſſed be my maker: magnifyed be God, my mooſt ſtronge ſaluaciō. It is God that aduengeth me, & bryngeth downe the people vnder me. He delyuereth me fro myne enemyes, thou alſo ſhalt lyft me vp on hye from them that ryſe againſt me, thou ſhalt delyuer me from the wycked men.

And therfore I wyl prayſe ỹ (O Lorde) amonge the nacyons, and wyll ſynge vnto thy name. Whych ſheweth great ſaluacion for his kynge, and dealeth mercyfully wyth hys anoynted: euen wyth Dauid, and wyth hys ſede for euermore.

The .xxiii. Chapter.

The laſt communicacion of Dauid, and the deſcripcyon of the myghtye men to hym belongynge.

A ☜ ☜ These be ☞ the laſt ſayinges of Dauid. Dauid the ſonne of Iſay ſayd: And the mā (which was made, the anoynted of the God of Iacob, and the noble Pſalmiſt of Iſrael) ſayde: ỹ ſprete of the Lorde ſpake by me, & hys worde was in my tonge. The God of Iſrael ſpake ☞ of me, euen ỹ moſt myghtie of Iſrael, ſayde: he ỹ beareth rule ouer men, ought to rule iuſtly in ỹ feare of God. And as ỹ mornynge lyght when the ſonne is vp, a mornynge in whych are no cloudes to let the bryghtneſſe, and as the graſſe of the erth is by the vertue of the rayne. ☞ Shal not my houſe be ſo wt God? ☜ *ii.Reg.vii.c *For he hath made with me an euerlaſting couenaunt, perfecte and ſure in al poyntes: & this is truly all my health & all my deſyre ỹ it growe but not as graſſe. But ỹ vngodlye man of Beliall ſhall be as a thorne cleane pluckt vp, which can not be taken wt hādes: But the man that ſhal touch thē, muſt haue yron, or a longe helue. *i.Par.xii.b *Or els muſt they be burnt with fyre in the ſame place.

B ☜ These be the names of the myghtye men whom Dauid had: ☞ one ỹ ſat in ỹ ſeate of wiſdome, being chefeſt amōge thē, pleaſaūt was he and ſtronge: he ſlue eyght hundred at one tyme. After him was Eleazar the ſonne of Dodi the ſonne of Ahohi, one of the thre worthyes wyth Dauid, whyche defyed the Philiſtines that were there gathered together to battell: whã the men of Iſrael were gone vp. And Dauid was then in an holde. And the ſoudioures of the Philiſtines were in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and ſaid: Oh, ẏ I had of the water ẏ is in the wel by ẏ gate of Bethlehem, for to drynke. And the thre mightye brake thorowe the hoſte of the Philiſtines, and fet water out of the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid. Neuertheleſſe he wolde not drynke therof, but offered it vnto the Lorde, and ſayde: the Lorde forbyd that I ſhulde do ſo. Is not this the bloude of the men that went in ieopardye of theyr lyues? and therfore he wolde not drynke it. And theſe thynges dyd theſe thre myghtye men. *ii.re.xxi.g. *Abiſai the brother of Joab, the ſonne of Saruiah, was chefe among the thre, and he lyfte vp hys ſpeare agaynſt thre hundred, & ſlue thẽ, and had the name amonge the thre. And Banaiahu the ſonne of Jehoiada (ẏ ſonne of a myghtie man) valyaunt in actes, of Kabzeel, ſlue two ſtronge lyons, euẽ lyõs of Moab. He went downe alſo, & ſlue a lyon in a pyt in tyme of ſnowe. ¶ The. xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid cauſeth the people to be nombred, and therfore is Iſrael plaged with peſtilence: ſo that in thre dayes there dyed. lxx. thouſande.

And agayne, ẏ Lorde was wroth A againſt Iſrael, and ☞ he moued ☞ Dauid agaynſt them, in that he ſayd: *go and nombre Iſrael ãd *Exo. xxx. d. Juda. For the kynge ſayd to Joab the captayne of hys hoſt: go thou abrode nowe, thorowe out all the trybes of Iſrael, euen from Dan to Beer Seba, and nombre ye the people, that I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab ſayd vnto the kyng: I beſeche the Lorde thy God, to make the people as many mo as they be: ye and an hũdred tymes ſo many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kynge maye ſe them. And what is the cauſe that my Lorde the kynge hath a luſt to this thinge? Notwithſtãdyng the kynges worde preuayled agaynſt Joab and agaynſt the captaynes of the hoſte.

And Joab and the captaynes of the hoſt went out from the preſence of the kynge, to nombre the people of Iſrael. And they paſſed ouer Jordan, and pitched in Aroer on the ryght ſyde of the citie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad, ouer agaynſt Jazer. And then they came to Gilead, ãd to the nether lande, where was a newe habitacion, & from thẽce they came to Dan Jaan about to Sidon, & came to the ſtrõge holde of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Heuites and of B the Cananites, & then went out to ẏ South of Juda, euẽ to Beerſeba. And ſo, whẽ they had bene abroade thorowe out all the lande, they returned to Jeruſalẽ agayne, after the ende of nyne monethes and twentye dayes. And Joab delyuered vp the nõbre and ſumme of the people vnto the kynge. And there were in Iſrael eyght hũdred thouſande men of myght ẏ drewe ſwerdes. And the men of Juda were fyue hundred thouſande men.

And Dauids hert ſmote hym, after that he had nõbred the people. And Dauid ſayde vnto the Lorde: I haue ſynned excedynglye in that in that I haue done. And nowe Lorde take awaye ẏ treſpace of thy ſeruaunte, for I haue done very folyſhlye. And when Dauid was vp in a mornynge, the worde of the Lord came vnto the prophet Gad Dauids ſear, ſayinge: go and ſaye vnto Dauid, thus ſayth ẏ Lord: I offer the thre thinges, choſe ẏ which of them I ſhall do vnto the.

So Gad came to Dauid, and ſhewed hym, ⁊ ſayde vnto hym. ☞ Wilt thou haue ☞ ſeuen C yeres hunger to come in thy lande, or wilt ẏ flee .iii. monethes before thyne enemies, they folowing the, or that there be thre dayes peſtilence in thy lande? Nowe therfore aduyſe the, ⁊ ſe, what anſwere I ſhal geue to him ẏ ſent me. And Dauid ſayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. *We wyl fall now into the hāde of the Lorde, for moch is his mercy, and let me not fall into the hande of man.

* Eccle. ii. c.

And ſo the Lorde ſent a peſtilēce in Iſrael, frō the mornyng vnto the tyme appoynted. And there dyed of the people from Dan to Beerſeba ſeuēty thouſande men. And when the angell ſtretched out his hande vpō Ieruſalem to deſtroye it, the Lorde had cōpaſſiō to do ẏ euell, ⁊ ſayd to ẏ angel ẏ deſtroyed ẏ people: it is nowe ſufficiēt: hold thyne hāde. And the angel of the Lorde was by ẏ threſſhyng place of Areſna the Iebuſite. And Dauid ſpake vnto the Lorde (when he ſawe the angel that ſmote the people) and ſayde: lo, it is I that haue ſynned, and I that haue done wyckedlye. But theſe ſhepe, what haue they done? let thyne hande (I praye the) be agaynſt me and agaynſt my fathers houſe.

And Gad came the ſame daye to Dauid, and ſayd vnto him: go vp and reare an aultare vnto the Lord in the threſſhyng flowre of Areſna the Iebuſyte. And Dauid (accordynge to the ſayinge of Gad) wēt vp, as the D Lorde commaunded. And Areſna loked, and ſawe the kynge and his ſeruauntes comyng towarde him. And Areſna wēt out, and bowed him ſelfe before ẏ kynge flat on his face vpon the grounde, and Areſna ſayde: wherfore is my Lorde the kynge come to his ſeruaunt? Dauid anſwered: to bye the threſſhynge flowre of the, and to make an aultare vnto the Lord, that the plage maye ceaſe from the people.

And Areſna ſayd vnto Dauid: let my Lord the king take ⁊ offer what ſemyth him good in hys eyes: Beholde, here be oxen for burnt ſacrifyce, ⁊ ſleades and the other inſtrumentes of the oxen for wood. All theſe thynges dyd Areſna geue vnto ẏ kinge, ⁊ ſayd moreouer vnto the kynge: ẏ Lord thy God accept the. And the kynge ſayd vnto Areſna: not ſo but I wyll bye it of the at a pryce, ⁊ wyl not offer ſacrifyce vnto ẏ Lorde my God of that which doth coſt me nothyng. And ſo Dauid bought the threſſhynge flowre, and the oxē ☞ for fyftye ſycles of ſyluer. ☞ And Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burnt ſacrifyces ād peace offrynges. And ſo the Lorde was intreated for the lande. And the plage ceaſed from Iſrael.

A And kynge Dauid was olde ⁊ ſtryken in yeres: ſo ẏ what they couered hym wᵗ clothes, he caughte no heat. Wherfore his ſeruaūtes ſaid vnto hym: let there be ſought for my Lorde the kyng a younge mayden, to ſtonde before the kynge and to cheryſhe hym. And let her lye in thy boſome, that my Lorde the kynge maye get heat. And ſo they ſought for a fayre damoſel thorow out all the coaſtes of Iſrael, ⁊ foūde one Abiſag a Sunamite, ād brought her to the kynge. And the damoſell was excedinge fayre, ⁊ cheryſhed the kynge, ⁊ myniſtred to hym. But the kynge knewe her not.

And Adonia the ſonne of Hagith exalted him ſelfe, ſaying: I wyl be kyng. And he gat him charettes ⁊ horſmen, and fyftie men to runne before him. And his father wolde not diſpleaſe him at any tyme, nor ſaid ſo moch to him as, why doeſt thou ſo? And he was a goodly mā, ⁊ his mother bare hym next after Abſalom. And he toke councell at Ioab the ſonne of zaruia, & at Abiathar yͤ preaſte. And they helped Adonia. But Sadock the preaſt, Banaiahu yͤ ſonne of Iehoiada, Nathã the prophet, Semei and Rei, and all the B men of myght which were wyth Dauid, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia ſacrifyced ſhepe and oxen, and fat catell, by the ſtone of *Ioſu.xv.b. zoheleth, whyche is faſt *by the well of Rogell, and called all hys brethren the kynges ſonnes, and the men of Iuda the kynges ſeruauntes. But Nathan the prophet and Banaiahu, and the other myghtie men, ãd Salomon his brother he called not.

Wherfore, Nathã ſpake vnto Bethſabe the mother of Salomon, ſayinge: haſt yͧ not heard howe that Adonia yͤ ſonne of Hagith doth rayne, and Dauid our Lorde knoweth it not? Nowe therfore come, & I wil geue the coũcell, howe to ſaue thyne awne lyfe, & the lyfe of thy ſonne Salomon. Go and get the in vnto kyng Dauid, and ſaye vnto hym: dideſt not yͧ (my Lorde O kynge) ſwere vnto thy hãdmayde, ſayinge: Salomõ thy ſonne ſhall raygne after me, & he ſhall ſyt vpõ my ſeate? why is then Adonia kynge? Beholde, whyle thou yet talkeſt there with yͤ kyng, I wyll come in after yͤ, & cõfirme thy wordes.

C And Bethſabe went in vnto the kyng into the chãbre. And the kyng was very olde. and Abiſag the Sunamite miniſtred vnto the kyng. And Bethſabe ſtowped, ãd made obeyſaunce vnto the kynge. And the kynge ſayde: what is the matter? She anſwered him: My Lorde, thou ſwareſt by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomon thy ſonne ſhal raygne after me, & he ſhal ſyt vpõ my ſeat. And beholde, nowe is Adonia, kynge, & my Lorde the kyng woteth not of it. And he hath offered oxẽ, fat catel, & many ſhepe, and hath called all the ſonnes of the kynge, & Abiathar the preaſt, and Ioab the captayne of the hoſte. But Salomõ thy ſeruaunt hath he not bydden. And nowe my Lorde (O kynge) the eyes of al Iſrael wayt on the, that thou ſhuldeſt tel thẽ, who ought to ſyt on the ſeate of my Lorde the kynge after hym. For elles whẽ my Lorde the kynge ſhal ſlepe with his fathers, I and my ſonne ☞ Salomon ſhalbe ☞ ſynners.

And whyle ſhe yet talked wyth the kynge, Nathã yͤ prophet came alſo. And they tolde the kynge ſayinge: beholde, here cõmeth Nathan the prophete. And whẽ he was come in to the kynge, he made obeyſaunce before the kinge vpon his face on the ground, & Nathã D ſayde: My Lorde (O kyng) haſt thou ſayd: Adonia ſhall raygne after me, & he ſhal ſyt vpon my ſeate? For he is gone downe this daye, & hath ſlayne many oxen, and fat ſhepe and hath called all the kynges ſonnes, & the captaynes of the hoſt, & Abiathar the preſte. And beholde, they eate and dryncke before him, and ſaye: God ſaue kinge Adonia. But me thy ſeruaunt, and Sadock the preſt, and Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada, & thy ſeruaunt Salomon hath he not called. Is this thing done of my Lord the king, & thou haſt not ſhewed it vnto thy ſeruaũt, who ſhulde ſyt on yͤ ſeate of my Lorde yͤ king after him?

Then kinge Dauid anſwered, and ſayde: cal me Bethſabe. And ſhe came into the kinges preſence, & ſtode before him. And yͤ kyng ſware, ſaying: As truely as the Lord lyueth (that hath ryd my ſoule out of al aduerſite) euen as I ſware vnto the by the Lorde God of Iſraell, ſaying: Salomon thy ſonne ſhall raygne after me, & he ſhal ſyt vpon my ſeate for me, ſo wyll I do this day. Then Bethſabe bowed on her face to the earth, & dyd reuerence vnto the kynge, & ſayd. I praye God yͭ my Lorde kyng Dauid ☞ maye lyue euer. ☞ E And kyng Dauid ſayde: cal me Sadock the preaſt, & Nathã the prophet, and Banaiahu the sõne of Iehoiada. And they came before the kynge. The kynge alſo ſayd vnto them: take with you the ſeruaũtes of your Lord, & ſet Salomon my ſonne vpon myne awne Mule, & cary him downe ☞ to Gihon. And ☞ let Sadock the preaſt, & Nathã the prophet anoynte him there, kynge ouer Iſrael. And blowe ye wͭ trõpettes, & ſaye: God ſaue king Salomõ. And then come vp after him, that he maye come and ſytte vpon my ſeate. For he ſhalbe kynge in my ſteade. And I wyl cõmaunde him to be captayne ouer Iſrael and Iuda. And Banaiahu the ſõne of Iehoiada anſwered the kynge, & ſayd: Amen. I praye God yͭ the Lorde God of my Lorde yͤ kynge ſaye ſo to. And as God hath bene wyth my Lorde the kynge, euẽ ſo be he wyth Salomõ alſo, & make his ſeate greater, then the ſeate of my Lorde kynge Dauids hath bene.

And ſo Sadock the preaſt, and Nathan the prophet, & Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada, & the Crethites and Phelethites went downe, & ſet Salomõ vpon kynge Dauids Mule, and brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the preaſt toke an horne of oyle oute of F the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomõ. And all they of the people blewe trompettes, and ſayde: God ſaue kynge Salomõ. And al the people cam vp after hym, pyppynge wͭ pypes and reioyſynge greatlye, ſo yͭ the erth range wyth the ſounde of them.

And Adonia and all the geſtes yͭ he had called vnto hym, hearde it, euen as they had made an ende of eatynge. And when Ioab hearde the ſounde of the trompet, he ſayde: howe happeneth it yͭ there is ſoche a noyſe in the cytie? And as he yet ſpake: behold, Ionathas yͤ ſonne of Abiathar yͤ preſt came. And Adonia ſayde vnto hym: come in, for yͧ art a valyaũt man, and bryngeſt good tydinges. And Ionathas anſwered & ſayd to Adonia:

Uerely

Verely oure Lord kynge Dauid hath made Salomō kinge. And the kynge hath ſent wͭ him, Sadock the preaſte, & Nathan the prophete, & Banaiahu the ſonne of Jehoiada and the Crethites, and the Phelethites, and they haue ſet him vpō yͤ kynges mule. And Sadock the preaſt, and Nathā the prophet. haue anoynted hym king in Gihō. And they G came vp agayne, and reioyſed, that yͤ cytie dyd ſounde agayne. And that is the noyſe, that ye haue hearde. And Salomon ſytteth on the ſeate of the kigdome. And moreouer the kynges ſeruauntes came to bleſſe oure Lorde kinge Dauid, ſayinge: thy God make the name of Salomon more honorable then thy name, and make hys ſeate greater then thy ſeate. And the kynge bowed hym ſelfe vpon the bed. And thus ſayde yͤ king: Bleſſed be the Lorde God of Jſrall: whych hath made one to ſyt on my ſeate thys daye myne eye ſeynge it.

And all the geſtes that were wyth Adonia were afrayed, and roſe vp, and wēt euery man hys waye. And Adonia ferynge the preſence of Salomon, aroſe, and went, (in to the tabernacle of the Lord) and caught holde on yͤ hornes of yͤ aultare. And one tolde Salomon, ſayinge: beholde, Adonia doth feare * Exo. xxi. d. kynge Salomon: for he hath * caught holde on the hornes of the aultare, ſayig: let king Salomon ſwere vnto me this daye that he will not ſley his ſeruaūt with the ſwearde.

And Salomō ſayde: yf he wylbe a chylde of vertu, there ſhall not an heer of hym fall to the earth. But & yf wickednes be founde in him, he ſhall dye. And ſo kyng Salomon ſent, and they brought him frō the aultare. And he came, and dyd obeyſaūce vnto king Salomon. And Salomon ſayde vnto hym get the to thyne houſe.

And ſo * Dauid ſlepte wyth his fathers, * Actes. ii. c and was buried in the cytie of Dauid. And yͤ dayes which Dauid raygned vpō Jſrael, were fourtye yeares: ſeuen yeares raygned he in Hebron: and thirtye & thre yeares raygned C he in Jeruſalem. * Then ſat Salomō * i. par. xxix. e vpon the ſeate of Dauid his father, and hys kyngdome was ſtabliſhed myghtely.

And Adonia the ſonne of Hagith came to Bethſabe the mother of Salomon. And ſhe ſayde: * Commeſt thou peaceably? And * i. reg. xvi. b he ſayde: peaceably. He ſayde, moreouer: J haue ſomwhat to ſaye vnto the. She ſayd: ſaye on. And he ſayd: thou knoweſt that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Jſraell ſet theyr faces on me, that J ſhulde raygne, howbeit, yͤ kingdome is turned awaye, and geuē to my brother: for it is appointed hym of the Lorde: and nowe J aſke a peticyon of the: denye me not. And ſhe ſayde vnto hym: Saye on. And he ſayde: ſpeake, J praye the, vnto Salomon the kynge, for he wyll not ſaye the naye, that he geue me Abiſag the Sunamite to wyfe. And Bethſabe ſayde: well, J wyll ſpeake for the vnto the kynge.

Bethſabe therfore went vnto kynge Salomon, to ſpeake vnto hym for Adonia. D And the kynge roſe vp to mete her & bowed hym ſelfe vnto her, and ſat hym downe on hys ſeate. And there was a ſeate ſet for the kinges mother, ād ſhe ſat on his ryght ſyde. Then ſhe ſayde: J deſyre a lytell peticion of the, I praye the, ſaye me not naye. And the kynge ſayde vnto her: Aſke on, my mother for I will not ſaye the naye. She ſayde: let Abiſag the Sunamite be geuen to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And kinge Salomon anſwered and ſayde vnto his mother: why doeſt thou aſke Abiſag the Sunamite for Adonia? aſke for hym yͤ kyngdome alſo: for he is myne elder brother, and hath for hym Abiathar the preaſte, ād Ioab the ſonne of zaruia. Then kyng Salomon ſware by the Lorde, ſayinge: God do ſo, and ſo to me, yf Adonia haue not ſpoken this word agaynſt his awne lyfe. Nowe therfore, as trulye as the Lorde lyueth, which hath ordeyned me, and ſet me on the ſeate of Dauid my father, ☞ and ☞ made me an houſe, as he promyſed, E Adonia ſhal dye thys daye. And kyng Salomon ſent by the hande of Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada, and he ſmote hym, that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the preſte, ſayde the kyng: get the to Anatoth vnto thyne awne feldes: for thou arte worthy of deeth: but I wyll not at this tyme kyll the, becauſe thou bareſt the arcke of yͤ Lorde God before Dauid my father, and becauſe thou haſt ſuffred wyth my father in all his affliciōs. And ſo Salomon put awaye Abiathar from being preſte vnto the Lorde: that he myght fulfill the wordes of the Lord which he ſpake ouer the houſe of Eli ĩ Silo. Then thydinges came alſo to Iacob: for Ioab had turned after o+ Adonia o+ though he turned not after Abſalom. And Ioab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lord, and caught holde on the hornes of the aultare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, howe that Ioab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and ſtode by the aultare. Then Salomon ſent Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada, ſayīge: go and fall vpon him.

And Banaiahu came into yͤ tabernacle of the Lord, and ſayde vnto him. Thus ſayeth the kynge: come out. And he ſayd: naye, but I wil dye euē here. And Banaiahu brought the kynge worde agayne, ſaying: thus ſayd Ioab, and thus he anſwered me.

And the kynge ſayd. Do euen as he hath ſayd: ſmyte hym, and burye hym, that thou mayeſt take awaye the bloude whych Ioab ſhed cauſeleſſe, from me, and from the houſe of my father. And the Lord ſhall bryng hys bloud vpō hys awne heed, for he ſmote two men right wyſer and better then he, and ſlue them with the ſwerde, my father Dauid not knowynge therof: euen Abner the ſonne of F Ner, captayne of the hooſt of Iſrael, and Amaſa the ſone of Iether captayne of yͤ hooſt of Iuda. Theyr bloude ſhall therfore returne vpon the heed of Ioab, and on the heed of his ſeed for euer. But vpon Dauid, and vpō hys ſeed, and vpon hys houſe, and vpon hys ſeate ſhall there be peace for euer of yͤ Lord. So Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada went vp, and ſmote hym, and ſlue hym, and buryed hym in hys awne houſe in the wylderneſſe. And the kyng put Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada in hys rowme ouer the hooſt and put Sadock the preſte in the rowme of Abiathar.

And the kynge ſente and called Semei, and ſayde vnto hym: buylde the an houſe in Ieruſalem, and dwell there: ād ſe that thou go not forth thence any whether. For be yͤ ſure, that the daye that thou goeſt out, and paſſeſt ouer the ryuer of Cedrō, thou ſhalte dye that daye, & thy bloude ſhalbe vpō thyne awne heade. And Semei ſayde vnto the kynge. This is a good thinge: as my Lord the kynge hathe ſayde: ſo wyll hys ſeruaunt do. And Semei dwelt in Ieruſalem many a daye. And it chaūced after thre yeres, that two of yͤ ſeruaūtes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis, ſonne of Maacha kīg of Geth. And they tolde Semei, ſayinge: behold, thy ſeruauntes be in Geth. And Semei ſtode vp, & ſadled hys aſſe, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to ſeke hys ſeruauntes, and returned, and brought hys ſeruauntes agayne from Geth.

And it was tolde Salomon, howe that G Semei had gone from Ieruſalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kynge ſent, and called Semei, & ſayde vnto hym: Dyd I not charge the by the Lorde with an othe, and teſtifyed vnto the, ſayinge: be ſure, that whenſoeuer thou goeſt out, and walkeſt abroade any whether, thou ſhalt dye yͤ deeth? And thou ſaydeſt vnto me: it is good tidynges that I haue heard. Why then haſt thou not kept the othe of the Lord and the commaundement that I charged the withall?

The kynge ſayde moreouer to Semei: *thou remēbreſt all the wyckedneſſe which thyne hert knoweth, and that thou dyddeſt to Dauid my father. The Lorde alſo ſhall brynge thy wyckedneſſe vpon thyne awne heed: and kyng Salomō ſhalbe bleſſed, and the ſeat of Dauid ſtablyſſhed before yͤ Lord for euer. So the kynge commaunded Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada: whych went out, and ſmote hym that he dyed. And the kyngdome was ſtabliſched in the hande of Salomon.

And in the wall of the houſe, he made chābers rounde about, (euē in the walles of the houſe) rounde about the temple ⁊ the queer, and made ſydes rounde a bout. The nethermoſt chamber was fyue cubites broade, and the myddle was ſyxe cubites broad, and the third was ſeuē cubites broad. The two dores alſo were of olyue tree, & he graued them wᵗ grauyng of Cherubs & paulme trees: & grauen flowres, & couered them wᵗ golde, & layde thynne plates of golde vpõ ẏ Cherubs & paulme trees. And ĩ lyke maner dyd he in the doore of the temple, ſauynge ẏ the poſtes were of olyue tre, foure ſquare.
The two dores were of fyrre tree, and ether dore with two folding leues, he graued theron Cherubs, paulme trees & flowres, and couered them with golde, which was layed thinne vpon the carued worke.

In the fourth yere, was the foũdacion of the houſe of the Lord layde: euen in the mo☞ neth zif: And ĩ the leuẽth yere ☞ in the moneth Bull (which is the eyght moneth) was ẏ houſe full finiſhed, thorow out all the partes therof, & accordyng to all the faſſhion of it. ¶ The. vii. Chapter.

A BUt Salomon was buyldynge hys awne houſe thirtene yere, and finiſſhed it all. And he buylt the houſe ☞ ☞ in the wood of Libanon, an hundred cubites long, and fyftye cubites broad, & .xxx. cubites hye. And (it ſtode) vpõ foure rowes of Cedar pillars, and Cedar beames (were layed) vpon the pillers. And the rouffe was Cedar aboue vpon the beames that laye on the pillers, euẽ .xlv. beames in fiftene rowes And there were windowes in thre rowes: & ẏ windowes were one agaynſt another thre folde. And the dores wᵗ the ſyde poſtes, & the vpper poſte, were foure ſquare, & had wyndowes one agaynſt another thre folde.

And he made a porch by the pillers (ẏ bare vp the houſe) fiftie cubytes long & .xxx. cubites broade: & ẏ porch was before thoſe & the other pillers: For there was ☞ a thick tre ☜ ſet before thẽ. Then he made a porch to ſyt and iudge in, ſyled with Cedar ☞ thorow ☜ out all the pauemẽtes. And his awne houſe (ẏ he kept reſidẽce in: & that was in another courte without the porch) was made of the ſame worcke. B And then Salomon made an houſe for Pharaos daughter* *iii.reg.iii.a (whõ he had takẽ to wyfe) lyke vnto ẏ faſſhiõ of ẏ porch

And all theſe were of ẏ beſt ſtones, hewed after a meaſure, & ſawed wᵗ ſawes, wythin & without, frõ ẏ foundacion vnto ẏ beames (ẏ laye aboue, after the meaſure) & euen ſo on the out ſide toward the great court. And the foundacyon was layed vpõ riche ſtones and ẏ verye great ſtones: wherof ſome were tẽ cubites, & ſome eight cubites. And aboue were good ſtones ſquared after a certain rule, & couered wᵗ Cedar. And the great court rounde about was wᵗ thre rowes of hewed ſtones, & one rowe of Cedar planckes, after the maner of the ynner court of the houſe of the Lord, & of the porch of the temple. *And ii para.ii.a. kyng Salomon ſent & fet one Hiram out of Tyre, a wydowes ſonne of ẏ trybe of Nephtalim, his father beĩg a mã of Tire. Which Hiram was a craftes man in braſſe full of *Exo.xxxi.a wiſdome, vnderſtandĩg & cõning: to worcke all maner of worcke in braſſe. And he cã to kyng Salomon, & wrought all his worcke. *Iere.lii.e i.para.xviii.b iiii.re.xxv.c For he caſt * two pillers of braſſe of .xviii. cubytes hye a pece, & a ſtryng of .xii. cubites C dyd cõpaſe ether of thẽ about. And he made two heed peces of molten braſſe (after ẏ faſſhion of a crowne) to ſet on the toppes of the pillers: The heigth of the one heed pece contayned fyue cubites, and the heygth of the other heed pece conteyned fyue cubites alſo, he made alſo net worck & garlãdes of cheyn worck, vpõ ẏ heed peces ẏ were on the topp of the pillers euen ſeuen (rowes) vpon the one heedpece, and ſeuen vpõ the other. And ſo he made the pillers, & two rowes rounde aboute, in the one wrethen worcke, to couer the heedpeces ẏ were vpon the põgranetes And thus dyd he alſo for the other heedpece And the heed peces ẏ were on the toppes of ẏ pillers, couered he aboue wᵗ a curioꝰ worck of roſes, toward ẏ palace by ẏ ſpace of .iiii. cubites. Likewiſe, vnder ẏ heed peces ĩ thoſe .ii. pillers beneth, ouer agaĩſt ẏ myddes & before ẏ net worke: And vpõ ẏ ſecõde heed pece were there two hũdred põgranates in two rowes rounde about. And he ſet vp the pyllers in the porch of the temple. And when he D had ſet vp ẏ ryght pyller, he called ẏ name therof * Jachin: and when he had ſet vp the lefte pyller, he called ẏ name therof * Boaz And in the toppe of ẏ pyllers was a worke of roſes, and ſo was ẏ workmanſhyp of the pyllers fynyſhed.

*Stedfaſtneſſe.
*Strength.

And he made a molten lauatorie, ten cubites wyde from brym to brym, rownde in compaſe, ⁊ fyue cubites hye. And a ſtryng of thyrtye cubites dyd cõpaſe it about, and vnder ẏ brym of it there were knoppes roũde about, ten in one cubyte: ⁊ they cõpaſſed the lauatory round aboute. And ẏ knoppes were caſt w̃ it, in two rowes, when it was caſt. And it ſtode on twelue oxen: of whych thre loked toward the north.iii. toward the weſt, thre toward the South ⁊ thre toward the Eaſt, ⁊ ẏ lauatorye ſtode vpon thẽ, and all their hinderpartes were inward. It was an hãd breadeth thicke, ⁊ ẏ brym wrought lyke the brym of a cup w̃ flowres of lylyes. ☞ And it cõtayned two thouſand ☞ Battes.

And he made ten ſokettes of braſſe, foure cubites lõg, and foure cubites brode a pece, and thre cubites hye. And the worcke of the ſokettes was on this maner: They had ſydes, and the ſydes were betwene the ledges. E And on the ſydes that were betwene ẏ ledges, were lyons, oxen ⁊ Cherubs. And lykewyſe vpon the ledges that were aboue: and beneth the lyons ⁊ oxen, were certayne addicyons made of thynne worke. And vnder euery ſoket were foure braſen wheles, and bordes of braſſe. And in ẏ foure corners therof, were vnderſetters (vnder ẏ lauatorye) caſt, eche ouer agaynſt his felow.

And the ſtalcke of ẏ lauatorye was in the myddle of it, * (where it is ſene on the out ſyde) one cubite hye, ⁊ a cubite and an halfe rounde, and in the heygth of it were grauen workes whoſe ſydes were made foure ſquare, ⁊ not rounde. And vnder ẏ ſydes were foure wheles, and the axeltrees ioyned faſt to the bottome. And the heygth of euery whele was a cubite and an halfe. And the worckmanſhyppe of the wheles was lyke the worcke of a charet whele. And ẏ axeltrees, the nauelles, ſpokes ⁊ ſhaftes were all moulten. And there were foure vnderſetters in the foure corners of one ſocket: and the vnderſetters were of the verye bottome ſelfe.

And in ẏ heygth of the botome was there a rounde compaſſe of halfe a cubite hye: and in that heygth of ẏ botome, there proceaded both ledges ⁊ ſydes out of the ſame: For in the bordes of the ledges ⁊ on ẏ ſydes he had grauen pictures of Cherubins, lyons ⁊ palmetrees, one by another roũde about. Thus made he the ten ſockettes after this maner: And they had all one faſſion of caſtyng: one meaſure, and one ſyſe. Then made he ten lauers of braſſe, one lauer contaynyng fourtye Bathes: ⁊ one lauer was foure cubites, and vpon euery one of the ten ſokettes he put one lauer. F And he put fyue of thoſe ſokettes on the ryght ſyde of ẏ houſe, and other fyue on the left: And he ſet the lauatorye on the ryght ſyde of the houſe Eaſtwarde ⁊ towarde the South.

And Hiram made pottes, ſhouelles ⁊ baſens, ⁊ ſo finiſhed all the worcke ẏ he made kyng Salomon for ẏ houſe of ẏ Lord: that is to ſaye, two pillers ⁊ two roũde heed peces ẏ were to be ſet on the toppes of the two pillers, ⁊ foure hundred pomegranates for ẏ two net workes, (euen two rowes of põgranates in one net worke) to couer ẏ two heed peſes ẏ were to be ſet on ẏ toppes of the pillers: And ẏ ten ſokettes, and ten lauers on ẏ ſokettes. The lauatorie, ⁊ twelue oxen vnder it, ⁊ pottes, ſhouelles ⁊ baſens. And all theſe veſſelles which Hirã made to kynge Salomon for ẏ houſe of ẏ Lord, were of bryght braſſe. In the playne of Jordan dyd the kynge caſt them: euen in the thick claye G betwene Socoh ⁊ zarthan. And Salomon left all the veſſelles vnwayed, becauſe they were ſo exceadyng manye, neyther found they out the weyght of the braſſe.

And ſo Salomon made all the veſſelles that pertayned vnto ẏ houſe of ẏ Lord: the golden aultare, ⁊ the golden table, wheron the ſhew bread was: And fyue cãdelſtickes, for ẏ ryght ſyde, ⁊ fyue for ẏ left, before the queer, of pure golde: w̃ flowres, lampes, and ſnoffers of goulde: ⁊ boulles, flat peces, baſons, ſpones ⁊ maſours of pure golde: and hyndges made he of gould both for ẏ dores of ẏ queer (the place moſt holye) and for the dores of the temple alſo.

And ſo was ended all the worke ẏ kynge Salomon made for the houſe of the Lorde. And * Salomõ brought in ẏ thinges which Dauid his father had dedicated: euen ẏ ſyluer, gould ⁊ veſſelles, ⁊ layed thẽ vp among the treaſures of the houſe of the Lorde.

And he geathered men vnto hym, and became

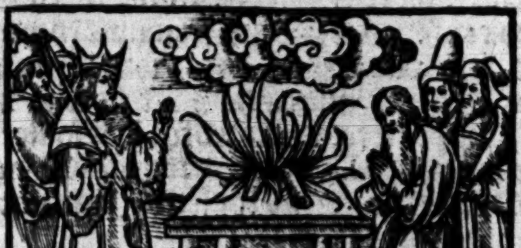
¶ Elia is ſent to Ahab. Obadia (otherwyſe called Abdia) hydeth an hũdred prophetes. Elia kylleth all Baals prophetes: and afterwarde obtayneth rayne.



A After proceſſe of many dayes yͤ worde of yͤ Lord came to Elia in the thyrde yeare, ſayinge: Go ſhewe thy ſelfe vnto Ahab, and *I wyll ſende rayne vpon the erth. And Elia went to ſhewe hym ſelfe vnto Ahab, ⁊ there was a great famyſhemẽt in Schomron. And Ahab called Obadia, whych was the gouerner of hys houſe: and Obadia feared God greatlye: For whẽ Iezabel deſtroyed yͤ prophetes of the Lord, he toke an hũdred prophetes ⁊ hyd them, fyftye men in one caue ⁊ fyftie in another, and prouyded bred ⁊ water for them. And Ahab ſayde vnto Obadia: Go into the lãde, vnto all fountaynes of water, ⁊ vnto all brokes, yf happelye we maye fynde graſſe, to ſaue yͤ horſes ⁊ yͤ mules, and yͭ we deſtroye not ſome of yͤ beaſtes. And ſo they deuyded yͤ lãde betwene them, to walke thorow it. Ahab went one waye by hym ſelfe, and Obadia went another waye by hym ſelfe.

B And it chaunced yͭ as Obadia was in the waye, Elia met hym. And Obadia knewe hym, ⁊ fell on his face, ⁊ ſayde: art not yͧ my Lord Elia? And he anſwered hym: I am he. Go ⁊ tell thy Lorde: beholde, Elia is here. He ſayde: what haue I ſynned, that yͧ woldeſt delyuer thy ſeruaũt into yͤ hãd of Ahab, to ſley me? As trulye as yͤ Lord thy God lyueth, there is no nacyon or kyngdome, whether my Lorde hath not ſent, to ſeke yͤ. And when they ſayde: he is not there, he toke an othe of yͤ kyngdome ⁊ nacyon, whã he foũde the not. And nowe thou ſayeſt: goo and tell thy Lorde, that Elia is here. And as ſone as I am gone from the, the ſprete of the Lord ſhall carye yͤ into ſome place that I do not knowe, and ſo when I come ⁊ tell Ahab, and he canne not fynde the, he ſhall ſley me. But C I thy ſeruaũt feare yͤ Lorde from my youth vp. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd when Iezabel ſlue the prophetes of yͤ Lorde howe I hydde an hundred men of yͤ Lordes prophetes, fyftie men in one caue, and fyftie in another, and prouyded them of breed and water? And nowe yͧ ſayeſt, goo thou nowe and ſhewe thy Lorde. Beholde, Elia is here, that he maye ſley me?

And Elia ſayde: as truly as the Lorde of Hoſtes lyueth, before whom I ſtãde, I wyll ſhewe my ſelfe vnto hym thys daye. So Obadia wẽt to mete Ahab, and tolde hym. And Ahab wẽt to mete Elia. And it fortuned yͭ whan Ahab ſawe Elia, he ſayde vnto hym art yͧ he yͭ troubleth Iſrael? He anſwered: it is not I yͭ haue troubled Iſrael, but thou, and thy fathers houſe, in that ye haue forſaken the cõmaundemẽtes of the Lorde, and yͧ haſt folowed Baal. Nowe therfore ſende ⁊ geather to me all Iſrael vnto moũt Carmel, and the prophetes of Baal *foure hũdred and fyftie, and the prophetes of the D groues foure hundred, whych eate of Iezabels table. So Ahab ſent vnto all the chyldren of Iſrael, and gathered the prophetes togeather vnto mount Carmel.

And Elia came vnto all yͤ people, ⁊ ſayde: howe longe halte ye betwene two oppynions? If the Lord be God, folowe him: but yf Baal be he, then go after hym. And the people anſwered him not one worde. Then ſayde Elia vnto the people agayne. I onely remayne a prophete of ẏ Lorde: but Baals prophetes are foure hundred and fyftie. E *i.Reg.ix.c. * And all ẏ people anſwered & ſayde, yt is well ſpoken. And Elia ſayd vnto ẏ prophetes of Baal: choſe you an oxe, & dreſſe hym fyrſt (for ye are many) and call on the name of your goddes, but put no fyre vnder. ⁋ The .xx. Chapter.

AND Bẽhadad the kyng of Syria gathered all hys hoſte together, hauynge .xxxii. kynges wᵗ hym, and horſes and charettes: ⁊ wẽt vp ⁊ beſieged Samaria, ⁊ warred agaynſt it. And he ſent meſſengers to Ahab kynge of Iſrael into ẏ cytie, ⁊ ſayde vnto hym: thus ſayeth Benhadad. Thy ſyluer ⁊ thy golde is myne, and ẏ fayreſt of thy wyues, ⁊ of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Iſrael anſwered ⁊ ſayde: My Lorde kynge accordynge to thy ſayeng, I am thyne ⁊ all that I haue.

And whan the meſſengers came agayne, they ſayd, thus ſayeth Benhadad. For as moche as I haue ſent vnto ẏ, ſayinge: thou ſhalt delyuer me thy ſyluer ⁊ thy golde, and thy wyues, ⁊ thy chyldren. I wyll therfore ſende my ſeruauntes vnto ẏ to morow this tyme: ⁊ they ſhall ſearche thyne houſe, ⁊ the houſes of thy ſeruauntes. And whatſoeuer is pleaſaũt in thyne eyes, they ſhall take it in theyr handes, ⁊ brynge it awaye. Then ẏ kyng of Iſrael ſent for all ẏ elders of ẏ lande, ⁊ ſayde: take hede I praye you ⁊ ſe, howe thys felow goeth about myſcheafe. For he ſent vnto me, for my wyues, for my childrẽ, for my ſyluer ⁊ for my golde: and I denyed hym not. And all the elders ⁊ all the people ſayde: herken not vnto hym, nor conſent.

Wherfore he ſayde vnto the meſſengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynge, all that thou dyddeſt ſend for to thy ſeruaũt at the fyrſt tyme, ẏ I wyll do, but thys thyng I maye not do. And ẏ meſſengers departed and brought anſwere agayne. And Benhadad ſent vnto hym agayne, and ſayd: thus and thus do ẏ goddes vnto me, yf ẏ duſt of Samaria be ynough for all the people ẏ folowe me, to take euery man an hãdfull. And the kynge of Iſrael anſwered, ⁊ ſayde: tell hym: let not hym ẏ putteth on hys harneſſe boſte hym ſelfe, as he ẏ putteth it of. And it fortuned, that when Benhadad hearde that tydynges, as he was with the kynges drynkyng wᵗin ẏ pauyllyons, he ſayde vnto hys ſeruauntes, put on your harneſſe. And they ſet them ſelues in araye agaynſt the cytie.

And beholde there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kynge of Iſrael, ſayinge: thus ſayeth the Lorde. Haſt ẏ ſene all this great multitude? beholde, I wyll delyuer it into thyne hãde thys daye, and thou ſhalt knowe, that I am ẏ Lorde. And Ahab ſayd: By whom? he ſayde: thus ſayth ẏ Lorde: euen by the ſeruaũtes of ẏ gouernoures of ẏ ſhyres. He ſayde agayne: Who ſhall ordre ẏ batayll? And he anſwered: thou. Then he nõbred ẏ ſeruaũtes of the gouernouers of ẏ ſhyres: and they were two hũdred and .xxxii. And after them alſo, he nombred all the people, all the chyldren of Iſrael, euen. vii. M. And they went out at none: but Bēhadad dyd dryncke tyll he was droncken in the pauyllyons both he and yͤ kynges: euen. xxxii. kynges, that holpe hym. And the ſeruauntes of the gouernours of the ſhyres went out fyrſt.

And Bēhadad ſent out, and they ſhewed hym, ſayēg: there are men come out of Samaria. He ſayde: Whether they be come out for peace, take them a lyue: or whether they be come out to fyght, take them yet a lyue. And ſo thoſe youge men of the gouernours D of yͤ ſhyres came out of the cytie, & the Hoſt after them, & they ſlue euery one his enemye that came in his waye. And yͤ Sirians fled, and they of Iſrael folowed after them. And Benhadad the kynge of Syria ſcaped on a horſſe, wᵗ his horſemen. And yͤ kynge of Iſrael wēt out, & ſmote yͤ horſſes & charettes, and wᵗ a great ſlaughter ſlue he yͤ Syrians.

And there came a Prophete to the kynge of Iſrael, and ſayde vnto him: go forth and playe the man, be wyſe and take hede what thou doeſt: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Syria wyll come vp agaynſt the. And yͤ ſeruaūtes of the kyng of Syria ſayd vnto hym. The goddes of yͤ hylles are their goddes, & therfore they had the better of vs: but let vs fyght agaynſt them in the playne, and for what ye wyll, we ſhall haue yͤ better of thē. And thys do: take yͤ kynges awaye euery man out of hys place, and put dukes in theyr rowmes. And do thou nōbre the an hoſte, lyke the hoſt that yͧ haſt loſte, ſoche horſes & ſoch charettes, and we wyll fyght agaynſt them in the playne, and thou ſhalt ſe vs get yͤ better of them. And he herkened vnto theyr voyce, and dyd euen ſo.

And it fortuned, that after the yere was gone aboute, Bēhadad nōbred the Syriās, E and wēt vp to Aphek to fyght agaynſt Iſrael. And the chyldren of Iſrael were nombred, and wᵗ theyr whole nombre went they agaynſt them, and yͤ chyldren of Iſrael pitched before them, lyke two lytel flockes of kyddes: but yͤ Syrians fylled yͤ countreye. And there came a man of God, & ſayde vnto the kyng of Iſrael: thus ſayth yͤ Lorde: Becauſe the Syriās haue ſayed: the Lorde is but God of yͤ hilles, and not God of yͤ valeys: therfore wyll I delyuer all thys great multitude into thine hāde, & ye ſhall knowe that I am the Lorde. And they pitched one ouer agaynſt yͤ other ſeuen dayes, & it came to paſſe, yͭ in the ſeuēth daye yͤ batayle was ioyned. And yͤ chyldren of Iſrael ſlue of the Syriās an hūdred thouſand fotemen in one daye. But yͤ reſt fled to Aphek into yͤ cytie, And there fell a walle vpō. xxvii. thouſand of yͤ men yͭ were lefte. And Benhadad fled & came into yͤ cytie, from chābre to chābre.

And his ſeruaūtes ſayde vnto hym. Beholde, we haue hearde ſaye, yͭ the kynges of the houſe of Iſrael are mercyfull kynges. We will therfore put ſacke cloth about our loynes & ropes about oure neckes, & go out to the kyng of Iſrael: yf happelye he wyll ſaue thy lyfe. And ſo they gyrded ſacke clothe aboute theyr loynes & put ropes aboute their heedes, & came to yͤ kyng of Iſrael, and ſayde. Thy ſeruaūt Bēhadad ſaith, I praye yͤ let me lyue. He ſayde: is he yet a lyue? he is F my brother. And they toke yͤ worde for good lucke & haſtely caught it out of hys mouth & ſayde: yee thy brother Bēhadad. He ſayd: go, bryng hym hyther. And Bēhadad came out vnto hym, & he cauſed hym to come vp into yͤ charet. And he ſayd vnto hym: the cyties which my father toke from thy father, I wyll reſtore agayne. And yͧ ſhalt make ſtreates for yͤ in Damaſco, as my father dyd in Samaria. ☞ And I wyll make an apoyntmēt wᵗ yͤ, & ſend yͤ awaye. ☞ And ſo he made an apoyntmēt wᵗ him, & ſent him awaye.

And there was a certen man of yͤ chyldrē of yͤ prophetes, which ſayde vnto his neyghboure in the worde of the Lorde: ſmyte me I praye the. And yͤ man wold not ſmyte him: Then ſayde he vnto hym. Becauſe yͧ haſt not herkened vnto yͤ voyce of the Lorde: beholde as ſoone as yͧ art departed from me, a lyon ſhall ſlaye the. And it came to paſſe, that as ſoone as he was departed frō him,* *iii.Re.xiii.e a Lyon founde hym, and ſlue hym. Then he founde another man and ſayde: ſmyte me I praye the. And the man ſmote hym, ſo that in ſmytinge he wounded hym. So the Prophete G wēt forth, & wayted for yͤ kyng by the waye, & put hym ſelfe out of knowledge wᵗ aſſhes, whych he layed vpon hys face. And whē yͤ kyng came by, he cryed vnto yͤ kyng, & ſayd: thy ſeruaūt went out in yͤ myddes of the battell. And beholde, there went awaye a man, whom another man brought vnto me, and ſayde: kepe thys man. And yf he be myſſed or loſt, thy lyfe ſhall go for his: or els thou ſhalte paye a talent of ſyluer. And as thy ſeruaunt had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kyng of Iſrael ſayde vnto hym: euen ſo ſhall thy iudgemēt be, as thou haſt defyned it thy ſelfe.

And he haſted, and toke yͤ aſſhes awaye from his face: and the kyng of Iſrael knewe hym, that he was of the Prophetes. And he ſayde vnto hym: thus ſayth yͤ Lorde: becauſe thou haſt let go a man that ☞ is in my ☞ curſſe, thy lyfe ſhall go for hys lyfe, and thy people for his people. And yͤ kyng of Iſrael went to his houſe, waywarde, & in diſpleaſure, and came to Samaria.

¶ The .iiii. Chapter. ✠

¶ God geueth a certen poore woman oyle and floure by Heliſeus. Heliſeus (whom the text calleth Eliſa) obteyneth of God a chylde for hys hoſteſſe: whiche dyeth & is after rayſed to life. He maketh ſwete the potage: and multiplyeth the loaues.

A ☞ AND there cryed a certen woman ☞ of the wyues of the prophetes vnto Eliſa, ſayinge: thy ſeruaunt my huſband is deed, and thou knoweſt, that thy ſeruaunt dyd feare the Lorde.

And the creditor is come, to fet my two ſonnes, to be his bondemen. Eliſa ſayde vnto her. Tell me what ſhall I do for ẏ? What haſt thou in thyne houſe? She ſayde, thyne handmayde hath nothinge at all in ẏ houſe, ſaue a pitcher with oyle. He ſayde vnto her: Go & borowe veſſel for the, of them that are wythout euen of all thy neyghbours, empty veſſelles and that not a fewe. And whẽ thou art com in, thou ſhalt ſhut the dore after the and after thy ſonnes, and powre out into all thoſe veſſelles, and ſet a ſyde ẏ which is full.

B And ſo the woman went from hym, and ſhut the dore after her and after her ſonnes. And they brought to her, & ſhe powred oute. And it came to paſſe, that whẽ the veſſelles were full, ſhe ſayde vnto her ſonne: brynge me yet a veſſel. And he ſaid vnto her: I haue no mo. And the oyle ceaſed. Then ſhe came, and tolde the man of God. And he ſayd: go & ſell the oyle, ãd paye thẽ that thou art in det vnto, but lyue ẏ and thy chyldrẽ of ẏ reſt.

And it fell on a daye that Eliſa came to Sunem, where was ☞ a great woman, ẏ ☞ toke him in, for to eate breed. Let vs make hym a chambre (I praye the) with walles, & let vs ſet him there a bed, & a table, a ſtole & a candelſtycke: that he maye turne in thyther when he commeth to vs.

And it fortuned on a daye, ẏ he came thyther & turned into the chambre, & laye there C in, and ſayde to Gehezi hys ſeruaũt: cal thys Sunamite. And whan he called her, ſhe preſented hyr ſelfe before hym. And agayne he ſayd vnto him: Tell her. Beholde, thou haſt bene carefull for vs, and haſt made all thys prouiſiõ. What ſhal we nowe do for ẏ? woldeſt thou be ſpoken for to the kyng, or to the captayne of the Hoſte? She anſwered ☞ I ☞ dwell amonge myne awne people. And he ſayde agayne, what is to be done for her? And when the chylde was growen, it fell on a daye, that he wẽt out to his father, and to the reapers. And he ſayd vnto his father, my heed, my heed. And he ſayd to a lad: Carye hym to his mother. ¶ The. v. Chapter. ✠

A Naaman, captayne of the hoſt of the

maſter: becauſe that by him ẏ lorde

he was a leper. And the Sirians had gone her lady: I wolde to God my lorde were he wolde delyuer hym of hys leproſye. And ☞ he went in, and tolde his lorde, ſayinge: ☞

thus and thus ſayde the mayde, that is of ẏ

Come and entre in, and I will ſende a letter

toke with him ten talentes of ſyluer and .vi. B thouſande peces of golde, and .x. chaunge of

of Iſraell contaynynge this tenoure: Nowe

And it fortuned, that when ẏ kynge
of Iſrael had redde the letter, he rent his clothes, and ſayde: *am I God, that I ſhulde *Deu xxxii.f

And ſo Naaman came wᵗ his horſſes and C

And he turned agayne to the man of God he and all his cōpany, and ſtode before hym, and ſayde: Beholde, I knowe now ẏ there is no God in all the worlde, but in Iſrael. ☞ Nowe therfore take ☞ a bleſſyng of thy ſeruaūt. *iii.re.xvii.a But he ſayde: * as ſurely as the Lorde E lyueth (before whom I ſtāde) I wyl receaue none. ¶ The. vi. Chapter.

The chyldrē of the prophetes ſayd vnto A Eliſa: Behold, the place where we dwell with the, is to lytle for vs. We wyll therfore go vnto Iordane, ⁊ take thēce euery mā a beame, and buylde vs a place, to dwel in. And when they came to Iordan, they cut downe wood. But it fortuned, that as one B was fellyng downe of a tre, the axe heed fell into the water. And he cryed, ⁊ ſayde: Alas maſter, it was lent me. But the kynge of Siria warred agaynſt Iſrael, ⁊ toke councell with his ſeruauntes, and ſayde: In yonder ſecret place ſhalbe my remaynynge. Therfore the kynge of Iſrael ſent to the place whych the man of God tolde hym, and warned hym of, and ſaued hym ſelfe from it, not once nor twyſe.

And the herte of the kynge of Syria was troubled for this thyng, and he called for his ſeruaūtes and ſayde vnto them: wyll ye not ſhewe me, which of oure men ○✱ (betrayeth me) to ✱○ the kynge of Iſrael? And when the ſeruaunt of the mā of God roſe vp early to go out: Beholde, there was an hoſt round about the towne with horſſes and charettes. And his ſeruaunt ſayde vnto him:

AND he beganne to raygne in the. vii. A yere of Jehu. xl. yeare raygned he in Jeruſalem: & his mothers name was Zebiah of Beerſeba. And he dyd that which was good in the ſyght of the Lord, as longe as Jehoiada the preſte enfourmed hym.

But yͤ hylaultars were not takē awaye, for the people offered and burnt incenſe yet vpon the hylaultars. And Jehoas ſayde to the preſtes: all the ſyluer of dedicat thinges that be brought to the houſe of the Lord in curraunt moneye, that is to ſaye, the money that euery man ☞ is ſet at, and all the money ☞ that euery man wyth a wylling hert geueth & bringeth into the houſe of the Lorde, let the preſtes take it to them, euery man of his aquayntaunce, to repayre yͤ broken places of the houſe, wheresoeuer any decaye is foūde. And ſo it came to paſſe, that vnto the xxiii. yere of kynge Jehoas, the preſtes had mended nothing, that was decayed in yͤ temple. Then kynge Jehoas called for Jehoiada B the byſſhop, and the preſtes, and ſayd vnto them: why repayre ye not the brokē places of the temple? Nowe therfore, ſe that ye receaue nomore money of your aquayntaūce, except ye delyuer it to repayre the tēple wythall. And the preſtes conſented to receaue nomore money of the people: except to repayre the decayed places of the temple.

But Jehoiada the preaſt toke a cheſt and bored an hoale in the lyd of it, & ſet it beſyde the altare on the ryght ſyde, as euery mā cōmeth into the temple of the Lorde. And the preeſtes yͤ kepte the veſſels, put therin all yͤ money yͤ was brought into the houſe of the Lorde. And it fortuned, that when they ſaw there was moche money i the cheſt, * yͤ kinges ſcribe and the hye preaſte came vp, and tolde the money that was foūde in the houſe of the Lorde, and put it into a bag. * iiii.re.xxii. a. C

And they gaue the money ſealed into the handes of them yͤ executed the worcke, and yͤ had the ouerſyght of the houſe of the Lorde: and they brought it out to the carpenters & buylders (that wrought vpon the houſe of the Lorde) and to maſons and hewers of ſtone: And they bought tymbre and fre ſtone, to repayre the decay in the houſe of yͤ Lorde and to all that went out to mende the temple: ☞ howbeit ☞ there was not made for yͤ houſe of the Lorde, bowles of ſyluer, ĩſtrumentes of Muſicke, baſens, trompettes or any veſſels of golde, or veſſels of ſyluer, of the money that was brought into the houſe of the Lorde: But they gaue that to yͤ worckemen, and repayred therwyth the houſe of yͤ Lorde. Moreouer, they rekened not with the men, into whoſe handes they delyuered that money to be beſtowed on worckemen: for they did theyr buſines faythfully. ☞ Howbeit ☞ treſpaſſe money and ſynne money was not brought in to the houſe of the Lorde, for it was the preaſtes.

Then came Hazael kynge of Siria vp, and fought agaynſt Geth and toke it, & Hazael ſet his face to go vp to Jeruſalem. And Jehoas kynge of Juda toke all yͤ halowed D thynges that Jehoſaphat, Jehorā and Haziahu his fathers kynges of Juda, had dedicat, and that he him ſelfe had dedicated, and all the golde that was founde in the treaſures of the houſe of the Lorde and in the kynges houſe, & ſent it to Hazael kynge of Siria: and ſo he departed from Jeruſalem.

The remnaunt of the wordes that cōcerne Jehoas and all that he dyd, are they not written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And hys awne ſeruauntes aroſe, and wrought treaſon, and ſlue Jehoas in yͤ houſe of Millo, whā he came downe to Silla. Jozabar the ſonne of Semeath and Jehozabad the ſonne of Somer his ſeruauntes, ſmote hym, and he dyed. And they buryed hym wyth hys fathers in the cytie of Dauid. And Amaziahu hys ſonne raygned in hys ſteade.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

¶ Jehoahaz the ſonne of Jehu, is delyuered into the handes of the Syriens, and dyeth. Joas hys ſonne raygneth in hys ſteade. Eliſa dyeth.

IN the.xxiii. yere of Joas the ſonne of Ahaziahu kynge of Juda, Jehoahaz the ſonne of Jehu beganne to raygne ouer Iſrael i Samaria ſeuētene yeare. A And he wrought that whych was euell in the ſyght of the Lorde, and folowed the ſynnes of Jeroboam the ſonne of Nabat whych made Iſrael to ſynne, and departed not ther frō. And the Lorde was angry wyth Iſrael, and delyuered them into the hand of Hazael kynge of Syria, and ĩto the hande of Benhadad the ſonne of Hazael all theyr dayes.

B And Jehoahaz beſought the Lorde, & the Lorde heard hym. For he cōſidred yͤ trouble of Iſrael, wherwith the kĩg of Siria troubled thē. And the Lorde gaue Iſrael a delyuerer, ſo that they went out from vnder the ſubieccyon of yͤ Siriās. And the children of Iſrael dwelt i theyr tentes as before tyme. Neuertheleſſe they departed not frō the ſynnes of the houſe of Jeroboam, whych made Iſrael ſynne, but walked in them.

And there remayned a groue ſtyll alſo in Samaria. Neither dyd he leaue of yͤ people to Jehoahaz, but fyftye horſmē, ten charettes, & ten thouſande fotemē * for yͤ kynge of Siria deſtroyed them, and made them lyke threſhed duſt. * iiii.re.viii. b. The reſt of the wordes that concerne Jehoahaz, and all that he did & hys power, are they not written in the boke of yͤ Chronycles of yͤ kynges of Iſrael? In the.xxxvii. yeare of Joas kynge of Juda, beganne Jehoas yͤ ſonne of Jehoahaz to raygne ouer Iſrael in Samaria ſyxtene yeare, & dyd that whych is euell in the ſyght of the Lorde, and departed not from al the ſynnes of Jeroboam the ſonne of Nabat, (that made Iſrael ſynne) for he walked therin.

C The remnaunt of the wordes that cōcerne Joas and all that he dyd, and hys power wherwith he fought againſt Amaziahu kĩg of Juda are they not wrytten in yͤ Chronycle boke of the kynges of Iſrael? And Joas ſlept wyth his fathers, and Jeroboam ſat vpon hys ſeate. And Joas was buryed in Samaria Amonge the kynges of Iſrael.

Whē Eliſa was fallen ſycke of his ſyckneſſe (wherof he dyed) Joas the kinge of Iſrael came downe vnto hym, & wepte before hym, & ſayd: * O my father, my father, yͤ charet of Iſrael, & the horſmen of the ſame. * iiii.re.ii.c. D Eliſa ſayd vnto hym: take bowe & arowes. And he toke vnto hī bowe & arowes. And he ſayd to the kyng of Iſrael: put thyne hād vpō the bowe, & he put his hāde vpō it. And Eliſa put his hādes vpon yͤ kinges hādes, & ſayde: open a windowe eaſtwarde: & whā he had opened it, Eliſa ſayd: ſhote, & he ſhotte.

And he ſayd: take ỹ arowes: & he toke thẽ.
And he ſayd vnto the kyng of Iſrael: ſmyte

becauſe of his appoyntement made with Abrahã, Iſaac, & Iacob, & wolde not deſtroye

Hoſea kynge of Iſraell is taken. And he and all hys realme brought to the Aſſyrians.

the kynge of Aſſyria founde treaſon in Hoſea:
for he had ſent meſſengers to So, kynge

that the chyldren of Iſraell ſynned agaynſt

there was lefte but the trybe of Iuda onely.
Neuertheles, Iuda alſo kept not the cōmaūdemētes of the Lord theyr God, but walked ī yͤ ceremonies of Iſrael, which they made.
And the Lorde caſt vp all the ſeed of Iſrael, D
and vexed them, and deliuered them into the out of hys ſyght. For Iſrael deuyded them

And Ieroboam ∘+ drewe Iſrael awaye (that they ſhulde not folowe the Lorde) and made them ſynne a great ſynne: For the childrē of Iſrael walked in all the ſynnes of Ieroboā

the Lorde put Iſrael awaye out of hys

And the kynge of Aſſyria brought men from Babylon, from Cutha, from Aua, frō Hanath, ād from Sepharnaim, and put thē
in the cyties of Samaria, in ſteade of yͤ childrē of Iſrael. And they poſſeſſed Samaria, E
and dwelt in the cyties therof. And it fortuned, that at the begynnynge of theyr dwellynge

Then the kynge of Aſſyria commaunded

And then one of the preſtes which they had caryed thence, came, and dwelt in Bethell, & taught them howe they ſhuld feare ỷ Lord.
How be it euery nacion made thē goddes of they dwelte. The men of Babylon made

And ỷ Sepharnites burnt theyr children

the goddes of Sepharnaim. And ſo they feared the Lorde, and made them Preaſtes of the houſes of the hyllaulters. And ſo they feared the Lorde, & ſerued theyr awne goddes after the maner of the people, whō they caryed thence.

And vnto this daye they do after the olde

So Hezekia receaued the letter of yͤ hande of the meſſengers, and red it: And Hezekia went vp into the houſe of the Lorde, & layde it abroade before the Lorde. *And it fortuned that on the morowe whẽ the Philiſtines came (to ſtripe the dead bodies) they founde Saul & his ſonnes ouer throwen in mount Gilboe. ¶ The.xii. Chapter.

¶ What they were that went with Dauid when he fled from Saul.

A These are they that came to Dauid to ziklag, whyle he yet kepte hym ſelfe cloſe, becauſe of Saul yͤ ſonne of Cis: and they were very ſtronge helpers in battell. They were weapened wyth bowes and coulde hurle ſtones wyth the ryght hande and wyth the lyft and ſhote arowes out of a bowe, and were Sauls brethren, euen of Beniamin. The cheſeſt were Ahiezer, and Joas the ſonnes of Simaa a Gibeonite, and Jeziel and Pelet the ſonnes of Aſmaneth. Beracah and Jehu of Anathoth. And Jſmaia a Gilbeonite a myghtye man amonge thyrtie, and more then yͤ thyrtie. Jeremiah, Jehaziel, Johanan and Joſabad of Gedor, Eleuſai, Jerimoth, Bealia, Semaria, and Seaphatia, the Haraphites. Elcana, Jeſia, Azarael, Joezer, Joſebeam Hakorim, Joela and zebadiah the ſonnes of Jeream of Gedud.

B And of the Gadites there ſeparated them ſelues, ſome vnto Dauid into the holde of yͤ wylderneſſe, men of myght, and men apte for warre, and yͤ coulde hãdle ſhylde ⁊ ſpeare whoſe faces were lyke the faces of Lions, ãd they were as ſwyfte as the Rocs in yͤ mountaynes: Ezer the fyrſt, Obdia the ſeconde, ⁊ Eliab the thyrde, Maſmana the fourth, Jeremia the fyft, Atthai the ſyxt, Eliel the ſeuenth, Johanan the eyght, Elſabath the nynth, Jeremia the tenth, and Machboanai the eleuenth. Theſe were the ſonnes of Gad, and were captaynes ouer the men of warre, the ſmall purſued an hundred, and the great a thouſande. Theſe are they that went ouer Jordan in the fyrſt moneth when he had fylled ouer all hys banckes. And they put to flyght all them of the valeye both towarde the Eaſt and Weſte.

C And there came of the chyldren of Beniamin and Juda to the hold vnto Dauid. And Dauid wẽt out to mete them and anſwered, and ſayde vnto thẽ: Yf ye be come peaſablye vnto me, to helpe me, myne hert ſhalbe knyt vnto you. But and yf you come to betraye me to myne aduerſaryes (ſeynge ther is no wyckednes in myne handes) the God of our fathers loke theron and rebuke it. And the ſpyrite came vpon Amaſai whyche was the chefe amonge thyrtye, and he ſayde, thyne are we Dauid, and on thy ſyde thou ſonne of Jeſai:: * Peace, peace be vnto the, and peace *Tob.xii.d be to thyne helpers, for thy God is thyne helpe: then Dauid receaued them, and made them heades of companyes of the men of warre.

D And there fell ſome of Manaſſe to Dauid when he came with the Philiſtines agaynſt Saul to battell, * but they helped them not. *i.reg.xxix. For the lordes of the Philiſtines toke aduyſement and ſent him awaye agayne, ſaying: he wyll fall to hys maſter Saul to the ieopardie of our heades. As he went to ziklag, there fell to hym of Manaſſeh: Adna Jozadad, Jediel, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu and zilthai, heades of the thouſandes that were of Manaſſe. And they holpe Dauid agaynſt the rouers. For they were al myghtye mẽ of warre, and captaynes in the hooſte. For at that tyme there came one or other to Dauid daye by daye to helpe hym: vntyll it was a greate hooſte, lyke the hooſte of God.

And thys is the nõbre of the chefe captaynes that were prepared to battell, and came to Dauid to Hebron, to turne the kyngdome of Saul of Saul to hym, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

E The chyldren of Iuda that bare ſhylde & ſpeare were ſyxe thouſande and eyght hundred ready prepared to ẏ warre. Of the chyldren of Simeon, men of myght to warre, ſeuen thouſande and one hundred. Of the chyldren of Leui, foure thouſande and ſyxe hundred. And Iehoiada was the chefe of thē of Aaron, and with him thre thouſande and ſeuen hūdred. And zadock a younge mā ſtrōge and valiaunt & of his fathers houſhold .xxii. captaynes. And of the chyldrē of Beniamin the brethren of Saul, thre thouſand. And a greate parte of them dyd (vnto that tyme) folowe the houſe of Saul.

And of the chyldrē of Ephraim .xx. thouſande & eyght hundred mightie men of warre and famous men in the houſholde of theyr fathers. And of the halfe trybe of Manaſſeh .xviii. thouſande, which were appoynted by F name, to come and make Dauid kynge. And of the chyldren of Iſacar, which were men ẏ had vnderſtandynge in the ryght tyme, to knowe (howe to cōmaunde) what Iſrael ought to do. The heades of them were two hūdred, and all their brethrē were at theyr wyl. And of zabulō that went out to the battayll and proceded forth to the warre, wͭ all maner of inſtrumentes of warre, fyfty thouſand that were prepared to the warre, wythout anye doublenes of hart. And of Nephthali a thouſande captaynes, and with them (with ſhyld & ſpeare) .xxxvii. thouſande. And of Dan prepared to battayl .xxviii. thouſand & ſyxe hūdred. And of Aſſer that went out to ẏ warre and kept the forefront of the battell, fourtye thouſand. And of ẏ other ſide of Iordan of ẏ G Rubenites ād Gaddites & of the halfe tribe of Manaſſe with all maner of inſtrumentes of warre, an hundred & twentye thouſande.

All theſe were men of warre, kepynge the forefront of the batell with perfect hart, and came to Hebron to make Dauid kynge ouer all Iſrael. And all the reſt of Iſrael was of one accorde, to make Dauid king. And there they were with Dauid thre dayes, eatynge and drincking: for theyr brethren had prepared for them. Moreouer they that were nye them, vntyll Iſacar, zabulō and Nephtali, brought breade on Aſſes, Camels, Mules, & oxen, and meate: floure, fygges, reaſynges, wyne and oyle, oxen, and ſhepe aboundātly. For there was ioye in Iſrael.

¶ The Arcke is brought agayne from Kariath Iarim to Ieruſalem. Uza (otherwyſe called Oſa) dyeth.

A AND Dauid counceled with ẏ captaynes of thouſandes and hundredes, and wyth all the Lordes, and ſayd vnto all the congregacyon of Iſrael: Yf it ſeme you good, and to be of the Lorde oure God, we wyll take and ſende vnto our brethren that are left in all the lāde of Iſrael, & with them alſo, to the preaſtes ād Leuites which are in their cytties & Suburbes, to gather thē together vnto vs. And we wyl brynge agayne ẏ Arcke of the Lorde to vs: for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the cōgregaciō was cōtent that he ſhuld do ſo, for the thynge ſemed good in ẏ eyes of all ẏ people.

B So Dauid gathered all Iſraell together from ☞ Sihor in Egypte, vnto ẏ entrynge of Hemath, to brynge the arcke of the Lorde frō Kyriath Iearim. And Dauid went vp & all Iſrael to an hye place towarde Kyriath Iearim, that was in Iuda, to fet thence the arcke of the Lord God, ẏ dwelleth betwene the Cherubes: where hys name is called on. And they caryed the Arcke of God in a new carte out of ẏ houſe of Abinadab. And Uza & hys brother gyded ẏ carte. And Dauid & C all Iſraell played before the arcke of God wͭ all theyr myght, with ſyngyng, and harpes, pſalteries, & tymbrelles & trompettes. And when they came vnto the threſhyng flowre of Chidon, Uza put forth his hande to holde the arcke, for the oxen (beynge a lytle wylde) ſtōbled. And the Lorde was wroth with Uza, and ſmote hym, becauſe he put hys hande to the arck. And there he dyed before God. And Dauid was out of quyete, becauſe the Lorde had rent a rent in Uza, & he called the name of ẏ place: the rēting of Uza vnto this daye. And Dauid was afrayde of God that daye D ſaying: howe ſhall I bringe the arck of God home to me? And ſo Dauid brought not the arcke home to him to ẏ cytie of Dauid: But caryed it into the houſe of Obed Edō a Gethite. And the arcke of God remayned with Obed Edom, euen in hys houſe, thre monethes. And the Lorde bleſſed ẏ houſe of Obed Edom and all that he had.

¶ The.xiiii.Chapter.

SO Hyram the kynge of Tyre ſent A meſſengers to Dauid ād tymbre of Cedar trees, with maſons and carpenters, to buylde hym an houſe. And Dauid perceaued, that the Lorde had confirmed hym kyng vpon Iſrael, and that hys kyngdome was lyfte vp on hye, becauſe of hys people Iſrael. And Dauid toke yet mo wyues at Ieruſalē, ād begat mo ſonnes and daughters. Theſe are the names of hys chyldren, whych were borne vnto him at Ieruſalem: Samua, Sobab Nathan and Salomon: Iibhar, Eliſua and Elipalet, Noga, Nepheg and Iaphia. Eliſama, Beeliada and Eliphalet.

And when the Philiſtines heard ẏ Dauid was anoynted kynge vpon all Iſrael, al the Philiſtines wẽt vp to ſeke Dauid. And Dauid heard of it, and went out agaynſt them. And the Philiſtines came in, ⁊ praũſed thorowe the valey of Rephaim. And Dauid aſked coũcel at God ſaying: ſhal I go againſt the Philiſtines, and wylt thou delyuer them C into myne hande? And the Lorde ſayd vnto him: go vp, for I wyl delyuer thẽ into thyne hãde. And ſo they cam vp to Baal Perazim ⁊ Dauid ſmote thẽ there. And Dauid ſayde: God hath deuided mine enemies with myne hande, as a man wolde deuyde water. And therfore they called the name of that place ☞ ☞ Baal Perazim. And whã they had lefte theyr goddes there, Dauid gaue a cõmaundement, and they were burnt wyth fyre.

D And the Philiſtines came together agayne ⁊ ruſhed into ẏ valley. And Dauid aſked agayne at God. And God ſayde to hym: go not vp after them, but turne awaye frõ thẽ, that thou mayeſt come vpon them ouer againſt the peretrees. And when thou heareſt a ſound go in the toppes of the peretrees, thẽ go out to battell: for God is gone forth before the, to ſmyte the hoſt of the Philiſtines. Dauid therfore dyd as God cõmaũded him: ⁊ they ſmote the hoſte of the Philiſtines, frõ Gibeon to Gazer. And the fame of Dauid went out into all landes, and the Lord made all nacyons feare hym.

¶The.xv.Chapter.

¶ The Leuites brynge the Arcke agayne. Dauid daunſynge before it, is deſpyſed of his wyfe Michol.

A AND Dauid made hym houſes in the citie of Dauid, and prepared a place for the arck of God, ⁊ pitched for it a tẽt. Then Dauid ſayd: the Arcke of God ought not to be caryed but of the Leuites. For thẽ hath the Lorde choſen to beare the Arcke of the Lorde, ãd to miniſter vnto hym for euer. And Dauid gathered all Iſrael together to Jeruſalem, to fetche the Arcke of the Lorde vnto hys place which he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought togeather the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the ſonnes of Cahath was Uriel the chefe, and of hys brethren there were an hundred and.xx. Of the chyldren of Merari: Aſaia the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred and.xx. Of the ſonnes of Gerſom: Joel the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Elizapan: Semaia the chefe, ãd of hys brethren two hundred. Of the ſonnes of Hebrõ: Eliel the chefe, and of hys brethren.lxxx. Of the ſonnes of Uziel: Aminadab the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and twelue.

B And Dauid called zadock and Abiathar the preaſtes, and the Leuites, Uziel, Aſaia Joel, Semaia, Eliel and Aminadab: ⁊ ſayd vnto them: ye that are the principal fathers of the Leuites, ſe that ye be holy with youre brethren, that ye maye bring in the Arcke of the Lorde God of Iſrael, unto the place that I haue prepared for it. For ☞ becauſe ye ☞ were not there at the fyrſt, ẏ Lorde our God made a rent amonge vs, for that we ſought hym not as the faſhion ought to be. So the preaſtes and the Leuites ſanctifyed thẽ ſelues, to fet the Arcke of the Lord God of Iſrael. And the children of the Leuites bare ẏ Arcke of God, vpon theyr ſhoulders wᵗ ſtaues theron, as Moſes commaunded accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

And Dauid ſpake to the cyefe heades of ẏ Leuites, that they ſhuld appoynte certayne of theyr brethren to ſynge with inſtrumẽtes of Muſyke, pſalteries, harpes and ſimbales that they might make a ſounde, and to ſyng on hye with ioyfulneſſe: And ẏ Leuites appoynted C Heman the ſonne of Joel: ãd (of his brethrẽ,) Aſaph the ſonne of Berechia: And of the ſonnes of Merari and of their brethrẽ Ethan the ſonnẽ of Cuſaiahu. And with thẽ their brethren of the ſecõde degree: zacharia, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiahu, Maaſias, Mathathiahu Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edõ, ⁊ Jaiel porters. So Hemã, Aſaph ⁊ Ethan the ſyngers made a ſoũde with ſymbales of braſſe. And zacharia, Aziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaſaiahu and Banaiahu played with pſalteries on ☞ an Alamoth. ☞ Mathatiahu Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah played vpon harpes an eyght aboue, with courage. And Chenaniahu the chefe of ẏ Leuites, was maſter of the ſonge, for he taught other to ſynge, becauſe he was a man of vnderſtandynge.

D Berechia ãd Elcana kepte the dore of the Arck. And Secaniahu, Jehoſaphat, Nethanael, Amaſai, zachariahu, Banaiahu ⁊ Eliezer the preaſtes dyd blowe wyth trõpettes before the Arcke of God. And Obed Edom and Jehia were kepers of ẏ dore of ẏ arcke.

*And Dauid and the elders of Iſrael and the captaynes ouer thouſandes, went to fet the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of the houſe of Obed Edom wyth gladnes. And whẽ God helped the Leuites, that bare the Arcke of the appoyntement of the Lorde, they offered ſeuen oxen, and ſeuen rammes. And Dauid had on hym a lynnen garmẽt, lyke as had alſo al the Leuites that bare the Arcke, and ſo had the ſyngers, and Chenania ẏ ruler of the ſonge, with the ſyngers. And Dauid had vpon hym an Ephod of lynnẽ. And all they of Iſrael brought the Arcke of the Lordes couenaunt wyth ſhowtynge, and blowyng of the ſhawme and trõpettes: makynge a noyſe wyth ſymbales, pſalteryes, and harpes.

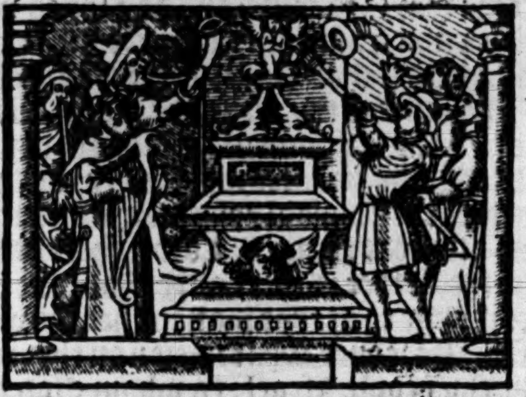
And as the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the cytie of Dauid, Michol

chol the daughter of Saul, lokynge out at a wyndowe, ſawe kyng Dauid daunſynge ād playinge, and ſhe deſpyſed hym in her herte.

¶ The .xvi. Chapter.

¶ Dauid ordeyneth Aſaph and hys brethren, to miniſter before the Lord. He hym ſelfe prayſeth the Lorde God of Iſrael.



A SO they brought in ẏ arcke of God, and ſet it in the myddes of the tent that Dauid pytched for it. And they offered burnt ſacrifyces & peace offerynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offerynge the burntofferynges and peaceofferynges, he bleſſed the people in the name of the Lorde. And he dealt to all Iſrael (bothe man and woman) a cracknel of bread, and a good pece of fleſhe, and a flacket of wyne.

And he appoynted certen of the Leuites to miniſtre before the Lorde, & to repete, & to thanke and prayſe the Lorde God of Iſrael. And Aſaph was the chefe, & next to hym zacharia, Jeiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Mathathia, Eliab, Benaia, *ii.Re.vi.b * Obed Edom, & Jeiel, with pſalteries & harpes. But Aſaph made a ſounde with ſymbales. Banaiahu & Jahaziel preaſtes blewe wt trōpettes continually before the Arcke of the coucnaunt of God.

And that ſame tyme Dauid did appoynte chefely to thanke the Lorde, by Aſaph & hys B brethren. *Pſa.ciiii.a Eſai.xii.b * O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, call vpon hys name, make hys actes knowē amonge the people.

Synge vnto him & playe vnto him: talke of all hys wonderfull dedes. Reioyce in hys holy name: let the hertes of thē that ſeke the Lorde, be glad. Seke the Lord & his ſtrēgth: Seke hys preſence alwaye.

Remembre his maruelles whych he dyd, and hys wonders, & the iudgementes of hys mouth. The ſeed of Iſrael are hys ſeruauntes: the chyldren of Jacob are hys choſen. He is the Lorde oure God: in all landes are hys iudgementes. Thynke on hys appoyntmēt for euer, (and on the worde whyche he commaūded to a thouſande generaciōs.) Which he made wyth Abraham, and of hys othe to Iſahac: whyche he ſet before Jacob for a decree, and to Iſrael for an euerlaſtynge couenaunt, ſayinge: to the wyll I geue the lande of Canaā, to be the porcion of youre enheritaunce. When you were fewe and ſmalle in nombre, and ſogeourners therin. And they walked from nacyon to nacyon, and frō one kyngdome to another people. He ſuffered no man to do them wronge: but rebuked, euen kynges for theyr ſakes. C Touche not myne anoynted, and do my prophetes no harme. *Pſal.xcv.a * Synge vnto the Lorde all the earthe, and ſhewe from daye to daye hys Saluacyon.

Tell of hys glory amōge the Heythē: his wonderfull dedes amonge all nacyons.

For greate is the Lorde, and worthye to be prayſed exceadyngly: he is to be feared aboue all goddes.

For all the goddes of the people are of no value: But the Lorde made heauen.

Prayſe and honoure are in hys preſence: ſtrength and gladneſſe are in hys place.

Aſcrybe vnto the Lorde ye kynredes of people. Aſcrybe to the Lorde, glory and domynion. Aſcrybe vnto the Lorde, the glory due vnto hys name: brynge ſacryfyces, and come before hym, and worſhyppe the Lorde with holy honoure.

☞ Let al the earth feare hym, al though ☜ the compaſe of the earth be ſo ſtabliſhed ẏ it cannot be moued: let the heauēs reioyſe, and let the earth be glad, ād let men tell amonge the nacions, that the Lorde is kynge.

Let the ſee thunder and the fulnes therof, let the feldes reioyſe, and all that is therin.

Then ſhall the trees of the wood reioyſe at the preſence of the Lorde, becauſe he commeth to iudge the erth. O geue thākes vnto D the Lorde, for he is good, for hys mercye endureth euer: and ſaye ye: ſaue vs (o God) of oure ſaluacion, geather vs together, and delyuer vs frō amonge the Hethen, ẏ we maye geue thankes to thy holy name, & triūphe in the prayſe of the. Bleſſed be ẏ Lorde God of Iſrael for euer and euer, & let al people ſaye Amen, and prayſe the Lorde.

And ſo, he lefte there before the arcke of ẏ Lordes coucnaunt, Aſaph & his brethren, to miniſtre before the Arcke cōtinually, in ſoch thynges as were to be done daye by daye, ☞ (and that by theyr courſes.) ☜ And Obed Edom & hys brethren, threſkore and eyght, ād Obed Edom the ſonne of Jedithun, and Hoſa were apoynted to be porters. And zadock ẏ preaſt and hys brethren the preaſtes, were before ẏ tabernacle of ẏ Lord, in the hye place ẏ was at Gibeō, to offer burntofferynges vnto the Lorde, vpō the burntoffering aultare perpetuallye, in the mornyng and euenyng, accordyng to al ẏ which is written in the lawe of the Lord, which he cōmaunded Iſrael. And with them were Heman & Jeduthun, & other that were choſē (whoſe names were expreſſed) to geue thankes to the Lorde, ẏ his mercye laſteth euer. And with them dyd Heman and Jeduthun, ſynge with the trompettes & ſymbales, ſimbales makinge a ſwete melody with inſtrumentes

of muſycke and goodly ſonges.
And the ſonnes of Ieduthun were porters.
And all the people departed, euerye man to ☞ his houſe, and Dauid retourned to ☞ bleſſe his houſe.

¶The.xvii.Chapter.

¶Dauid is forbydden to buylde an houſe vnto

A And it fortuned, yͭ whan Dauid dwelt

And the ſame nyght it fortuned, that the

And whereſoeuer I haue walked wyth

According to all theſe wordes, and accordynge

*ii.Reg.x.a.

A AFter this, it chaūced ẏ * Nahas the kynge of ẏ chyldren of Ammō dyed, ⁊ his ſonne raygned ī his ſtede. And Dauid ſayde, J will ſhewe kyndneſſe vnto Hanon the ſonne of Nahas, becauſe hys father dealt kyndelye wᵗ me: And Dauid ſent meſſengers to cōforte him ouer the deeth of hys father. And the ſeruauntes of Dauid came into the land of the chyldren of Ammon to Hanon, to conforte hym. But the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon ſayde to Hanon: thynkeſt thou ẏ Dauid doth honoure thy father in thy ſyght, ẏ he hath ſent cōforters vnto the? Are not hys ſeruauntes come to ſearche, to loke, and ſpye out the lande?

B Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids ſeruauntes (and polde them) and ſhaued them, and cut of theyr cootes harde by theyr buttokes, ⁊ ſent them awaye. And there went certayne and tolde Dauid, howe the mē were ſerued. And the kynge ſent to mete them (for ẏ men were exceadynglye aſhamed) and the kynge ſayde: tarye at Jericho, vntyll youre beardes be growen, and then returne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon ſawe that they ſtancke in the ſyght of Dauid Hanon and the chyldren of Ammō ſent a thouſande talentes of ſyluer to hyre thē charettes ⁊ horſemen, out of Meſopotamia, ⁊ out of Siria Maacha ⁊ out of zoba. And the chyldren of Ammō gathered them ſelues togeather from theyr cyties, and came to battel. C And whan Dauid heard of it, he ſent Joab and all ẏ hoſte of ſtronge men. And the children of Ammon came out, and put them ſelues in araye to battel before the gate of the cytie. And the kinges that were come kepte them by them ſelues backe in the felde.

When Joab alſo ſawe that ẏ frōte of the battell was agaynſt him before and behynde, he choſe out of all ẏ choſen men of Jſrael and put them in araye agaynſt the Siriās. And the reſt of the people he delyuered vnto the hande of Abiſai his brother, ⁊ they put them ſelues ī araye agaynſt the chyldren of Ammon. And he ſayde: Jf the Siriās be to ſtrong for me, thou ſhalt ſuccoure me, and yf the childrē of Ammō preuayle agaynſt ẏ, J will helpe the. Plucke vp thine hert, ⁊ let vs playe the mē, for oure peoples ſake ⁊ for the cyties of oure God, ⁊ ẏ Lord ſhal do ẏ which D is good in his awne ſyght. So Joab ⁊ ẏ people ẏ were wᵗ him, drue nye before ẏ Siriās vnto ẏ battayll, ⁊ they fled before him. And when ẏ children of Ammō ſawe that ẏ Syriens were fled, they ranne awaye lyke wiſe before Abiſai hys brother, and gat them into the cytie. And Joab came to Jeruſalem. And when the Siriās ſawe ẏ they were put to the worſe before Jſrael, they ſent meſſegers ⁊ fet out ẏ Siriēs ẏ were beyōd the ryuer, ⁊ Sophach ẏ captayne of ẏ Hoſt of Hadarezer went before them. And it was tolde Dauid, ⁊ he geathered all Jſrael, ⁊ went togeather ouer Jordan, and came, and ſet vpō them. And whan Dauid had put hym ſelfe in araye agaynſt the Siriens they fought with him. But ẏ Siriēs fled before Jſrael. And Dauid deſtroyed of the Siriens ſeuen thouſande charettes, ⁊ .xl. thouſād fote mē, and kylled Sephach ẏ captayne of ẏ hoſte. And when ẏ ſeruaūtes of Hadarezer, ſawe that they were put to the worſe before them of Jſrael, they made peace wᵗ Dauid, ⁊ became his ſeruauntes. And Joab anſwered: the Lorde make hys

So the Lord ſent peſtilence vpõ Iſrael,

A AND * when Salomon had made an ende of prayinge, ‡ there came downe fyre from heauen, and cõſumed the * burntofferinge and the ſacrifices. And the houſe was fylled with ỹ glorie of the Lorde, ⁊ the preaſtes coulde not go ito the houſe of the Lorde, becauſe the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes houſe. And whan all the chyldren of Jſraell ſawe howe the fyre, and the glorye of the Lorde came downe vpon the houſe, they fell downe flat vpõ their faces to the erthe vpon the pauement, and worſhypped and confeſſed vnto the Lorde, that he is gracious, and that hys mercye laſteth euer.

B And the kynge and all the people offered ſacrifyces before the Lorde. And kyng Salomon offered a ſacrifyce of.xxii. thouſande oxen, and an hundred ⁊ twentye thouſande ſhepe. And ſo the kynge and all the people ☞ ☞ dedicated the houſe of God. And ỹ preaſtes wayted on theyr offyces, and the Leuites had the inſtrumentes of muſycke of the Lorde, which kyng Dauid had made to confeſſe vnto the Lorde, that his mercye laſteth euer, playẽge a pſalme of Dauid with theyr hande. And the preaſtes blewe wipth trompetes before thẽ: and all they of Jſrael ſtode. Moreouer, Salomon halowed the myddle of the courte, that was before the Lorde: for there he offered burntoffrynges and the fatt of the peaceofferynges, becauſe the braſen aulter which Salomon had made, was not able to receaue the burntofferinges and the meate offerynges and the fatte.

C So at the ſame tyme Salomon kepte a *feaſt of ſeuen dayes, and all they of Jſrael with him, an exceadyng great cõgregacyon euen from the entrynge in of Hamath, vnto the ryuer of Egypte. And in the eyght daye they made a gatheryng. For they kepte the dedycacyon of the aulter ſeuen dayes, and ☞ the feaſt ſeuen dayes. ☞ And ỹ.xxiii. daye of the ſeuenth moneth, he lett the people departe into theyr tentes glad and merye in hert, for the goodneſſe that ỹ Lorde had ſhewed to Dauid, and to Salomon, and to Jſrael his people. * And ſo Salomon finiſhed the houſe of the Lord, and the kynges houſe: and all that came in hys hert to make in the houſe of the Lorde, and in hys awne houſe, went proſperouſlye forwarde. *iii.Re.ix.a.

¶ The .viii. Chapter.

¶ The cyties that Salomon buylded after that the houſe of God was fynyſhed.

A *iii.Re.ix.b. AND * it fortuned, that after .xx. yeare when Salomon had buylt the houſe of the Lorde and his awne houſe, he buylte the cyties that Hiram gaue him, and put of the chyldren of Iſraell in them. And Salomō went to Hamath zoba, and ſtrēgthed it. And he buylt Thadmor in the wylderneſſe, and repayred all the ſtore cyties which were in Hamath. And he buylt Beth horō the vpper, and Bethhoron the nether, ſtronge cyties, hauynge walles, gates and barres. And Baalah and all the ſtoare cyties B that Salomon had, & all the charet cyties, & the cyties of the horſemen, and euery pleaſaunt place, that Salomon had luſt to buylde in Ieruſalem and Libanon, and thorowe out all the lande of hys domynyon.

And all the people that were lefte of the Hethites, Amorites, Phereſytes, Heuites & Iebuſites, which were not of the chyldren of Iſrael: but were the children of them, which were lefte after them in the lande, and were not conſumed of the children of Iſrael, them dyd Salomon make to paye trybute vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Iſrael dyd Salomon make no bondmē for his worke: but they were men of warre and rulers and great Lordes with hym, ād captaynes ouer hys charettes and horſemen. And kyng Salomons offycers that ouerſawe and ruled the people, were two hundred aud fyftye.

C And Salomon brought the daughter of Pharao oute of the cytie of Dauid, into the houſe that he had buylded for her. For he ſayd: my wyfe ſhall not dwel in the houſe of Dauid kyng of Iſrael, for it is holy, becauſe that the Arcke of the Lorde is come vnto it.

Then Salomon offered burnt offeringes vnto the Lorde, on the aulter of the Lorde which he had buylt before the porche, doyng euery thynge in hys due tyme and offerynge accordyng to the commaundement of Moſes, in the ſabbothes, newmoones, and ſolempne feaſtes, *Exo.xxiii.c Deuter.xvi.c * thre tymes in the yeare, that is to ſaye, in the feaſt of ſwete bread, in the feaſt of weakes, and in the feaſt of tabernacles.

And Salomon ſet the ſortes of preaſtes to theyr offyces, as Dauid his father had ordered thē, and the Leuites in theyr watches for to prayſe & myniſtre before the preaſtes daye by daye, and the porters by courſe at euery gate. * For ſo had Dauid the man of *i.para.ix.d D God commaunded. And they omytted not the commaundement of the kynge vnto the preaſtes and the Leuytes, concernynge eny maner of thynge, and concernynge the treaſures. For Salomon made prouiſyō for the charges, from the fyrſt daye that the foundacyon of the houſe of the Lorde was layde: tyll it was fynyſhed, that the houſe of the Lorde was perfecte. Then went kyng Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to Eloth at the * (reed) ſee ſyde in the lande of Edom. E And Hiram ſent him by the hande of his ſeruauntes, ſhyppes & ſeruauntes that had knowledge of the ſee: and they came wyth the ſeruauntes of Salomon to Ophir, and caryed thence foure hundred and fyftye talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

¶ The cōmunicacyon of Salomon with the quene of Saba, & the giftes ẏ the one gaue the other. The deeth of Salomon, after whom ſucceadeth Rehoboam.

A *iii.reg.x.a. Mat.xii.d Luke.xi.d. AND * whan the quene of Saba hearde of the fame of Salomon, ſhe came to proue hym in harde queſtyons at Ieruſalem, wyth a very great company with camelles that bare ſpices & plentye of golde and precyouſe ſtones. And when ſhe was come to Salomō, ſhe commoned wyth hym of all that ſhe had in her herte. And Salomon ſoyled her all her queſtions, and there was not one worde hyd from Salomon, whych he tolde her not.

And whē the quene of Saba had ſene the wyſdome of Salomō and the houſe that he had buylte, and the meate of hys table, the ſyttynge of his ſeruaūtes, and the ſtanding of his wayters, theyr apparell, hys buttelars, theyr apparell, hys goynge vp, by the whych he went into the houſe of the Lorde, there was nomore ſprite in her.

B And ſhe ſayde to the kynge: the ſayenge which I hearde in myne awne lāde, of thyne actes, & of thy wyſdome, is true. I beleued not ẏ wordes of thē, vntyll I came, & myne eyes had ſene it. And beholde, the one halfe of thy wyſdome was not tolde me: for thou exceadeſt ẏ fame that I hearde. Happye are thy men, and happy are theſe thy ſeruaūtes which ſtande before the alwaye, & heare thy wyſedome. Bleſſed be the Lorde thy God, which had luſt to the, to ſet the kynge on his ſeat, that thou myghteſt be kyng, ordeyned by the Lorde thy God. Becauſe thy God loueth Iſraell, and hath delyte to make them contynue euer, therfore made he the kynge ouer them to do ryght and equyte.

And ſhe gaue the kyng an hundred ⁊.xx. talentes of golde, and of ſpyces exceadynge great aboũdaunce and preciouſe ſtones, nether was there any more ſoche ſpyce, as the quene of Saba gaue kynge Salomon. And the ſeruauntes of Hiram and the ſeruaũtes of Salomon which brought golde from Ophir, brought alſo ☞ Algume wood ãd preciouſe ſtones. ☞ And the kyng made of the Algume wood, ſteyres in the houſe of the Lord ⁊ in the kynges palace, and harpes and pſalteries for ſyngers. And there was no ſoche wood ſene before in the lande of Juda. And kynge Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba euery pleaſaunte thynge that ſhe aſked, but not ſo moche as ſhe broughte vnto the kyng. And ſo ſhe turned and went awaye to her awne lande with her ſeruauntes.

D The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was ſyxe hundred.lxvi. talentes of golde, beſides that which chapmen and marchauntes brought: and all the kynges of Arabia and rulers of that countrey, brought gold and ſyluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, and.vi. hundred ſycles of beaten gold were ſpent vpõ one bucklar: and thre hundred ſhyldes made he of beaten gold, and one ſhylde coſt thre hundred peces of gold, and the kyng put them in the houſe that was in the foreſt of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great ſeat of Iuorie, ⁊ ouerlayde it with pure gold. And there were ſyxe ſteppes to the ſeate wyth a foteſtole of golde faſtened to the ſeate: and pomelles on eche ſyde of the ſyttynge place, ãd two lyons ſtandynge by the pomelles. E And xii. lyons ſtode on the one ſyde and on the other: vpõ the ſyxe ſteppes, ſo that there was no ſoche worcke made in any kyngdome.

And all the drynckinge veſſelles of kyng Salomon were of golde, and all the veſſels of the houſe that was in the foreſt of Libanon, were of precious golde: for ſyluer was counted nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the kynges ſhyppes wente to Tharſis wyth the ſeruauntes of Hiram: euery thre yeare once came the ſhyppes to Tharſis, and brought golde, ſyluer, Iuorie, and apes and pecockes.

F *iii.Reg.x.d * And kyng Salomon paſſed all the kynges of the earth in richeſſe and wyſedome. And all the kynges of the earth ſought the preſence of Salomõ, to heare hys wyſdome that God had put in hys herte. And they brought euery man hys preſent: veſſelles of ſyluer, and veſſelles of golde, rayment, harneſſes, ſpyces, horſes and mules, and whatſoeuer myght be gotten, yeare by yeare.

*iii.re.iiii.d * And Salomon had foure thouſande ſtalles for horſes and charettes, ⁊ twelue thouſande horſemen, whom he beſtowed in the charet cyties, ⁊ ſome were with the kyng at Jeruſalẽ. And he raygned ouer all the kynges that were frõ Euphrates vnto the lãde of the Philiſtines, ⁊ to the border of Egypt. G *iii.Reg.x.d ii.Parali.i.d * And the kynge made ſyluer in Jeruſalem as plenteous as ſtones, and Cedar trees as plenteous, as the mulbery trees that growe in ẏ valleyes. And they brought vnto Salomõ horſes out of Egypt, ⁊ out of al lãdes.

*iii.reg.xi.g * The reſt of the actes of kyng Salomon, fyrſt and laſt, are they not wryttẽ in the ſayenges of Nathan the Prophete, and in the propheſye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the viſions of Jedo the ſear of viſions, agaynſt Jeroboam the ſonne of Nabat? And Salomon raygned in Jeruſalem vpon all Iſrael fourtye yeares. And Salomon ſlepte wyth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his ſonne raygned in hys ſteade.

¶The.x.Chapter.

A *iii.Re.xii.a AND * Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Iſrael come together, to make hym kynge. And when Jeroboam the ſonne of Nabat (which *iii.Re.xi.g * was fled into Egypte from the preſence of Salomon the kynge) hearde it, he returned out of Egypte. And they ſent ⁊ called hym. And ſo Jeroboã and all they of Iſrael came and comoned wyth Rehoboam, ſayenge. Thy father layed a greuouſe yocke vpon vs: nowe therfore remytte thou ſomewhat of the greuouſe ſeruyce of thy father and of hys heuye yocke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll ſerue the. And he ſayde to thẽ: come agayne vnto me after thre dayes. And the people departed.

B And kynge Rehoboam counſayled wyth the elders that had ſtande before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and he ſayde: what councell geue ye me, to anſwere thys people agayne? And they tolde him, ſaying: If thou be kynde to thys people, and ſhewe thy ſelfe lowely to thẽ, and ſpeake louynge wordes to thẽ, they wyll be thy ſeruauntes for euer. But he left the councell whiche the elders gaue hym, ãd toke councell wyth the yonge men, that were growẽ vp wyth him and that ſtode in hys preſence. And he ſayde vnto thẽ: what aduiſe geue ye, that we may anſwere thys people, whych haue cõmoned wyth me, ſayinge: Abate ſome what of the yocke, whych thy father dyd put vpon vs.

C And ẏ yonge men that were growen vp wyth hym, ſpake vnto hym, ſayinge: Thus ſhalt thou anſwere the people that ſpake to the, ſayinge: Thy father made oure yocke heuye: but make thou it ſome what lyghter for vs. Thus ſhalt thou ſaye vnto thẽ, my lytle fynger ſhalbe heuyer then my fathers

And yͤ kynge anſwered thẽ cruelly: & kyng

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

¶ Rehoboam is forbydden to fyght agaynſt Ieroboam, He hath .xviii. wyues, and .lx. concubynes, and by them .xxviii. ſonnes, and .lx. daughters.

A AND whan Rehoboam was come to
*iii.Re.xii.e. Ieruſalem, *he gathered of the houſe of Iuda & Beiamin, nyne ſcore thouſande
choſen men of warre to fight againſt Iſrael, & to brynge yͤ kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam. And the word of the Lorde came to Semeiahu the man of God, ſaying:
ſpeake vnto Rehoboam the ſonne of Salomon
kynge of Iuda, & to all them of Iſrael that are in Iuda & Beniamin, & ſaye: thus ſayeth yͤ Lorde. Ye ſhall not go vp nor fight agaynſt your brethren: returne euery man
to hys houſe, for thys thynge is done of me.
And they obeyed yͤ wordes of yͤ Lorde, and returned from goynge agaynſt Ieroboam.

B And Rehoboam dwelt in Ieruſalem, and buylt ſtrõge cyties in Iuda. He buylded vp Bethleem, and Etham, and Theko: Bethzur, Socho and Adullam: Gath, and Mareſa:
and ziph Adurahym, Lachis and Aſecha:
zorea Aialon and Hebron, whych is in

repayred yͤ ſtronge holdes & put captaynes

And in all cyties he put ſhyldes & ſpeares,
and made them exceadynge ſtrõge, hauynge

And the preſtes and yͤ leuites that were C in all Iſrael, reſorted to hym out of all their

And ſo they ſtrengthed the kyngdome

thre yere they walked in yͤ waye of Dauid

And Rehoboam toke hym Mahalath yͤ D

for he toke eyghtene wyues and thre

and ſcatered all hys chyldren thorowe

¶ The.xii. Chapter.

kynge Rehoboã, Seſac yͤ kynge of Egypte

Then came Semeia yͤ prophete to Rehoboam & to yͤ Lordes of Juda, that were gathered together within Jeruſalem for Seſac, & ſayd vnto them: thus ſayth the Lord, B ye haue left me, and therfore haue I alſo left you in the handes of Seſac. Wherupon the lordes of Iſrael, and yͤ kynge hūbled them ſelues, and ſayde, the Lorde is ryghteous. And whan yͤ Lorde ſawe that they ſubmitted them ſelues, the worde of the Lorde cam to Semeia, ſayinge: They ſubmitte them ſelues, therfore I wyll not deſtroye them. But I wyll delyuer them ſomwhat, & my wrath ſhall not burne vpon Jeruſalem by the hāde of Seſac. Neuertheleſſe, they ſhalbe hys ſeruauntes, to knowe what differēce is betwene my ſeruice, and yͤ ſeruice of the kyngdomes of the worlde.

C And ſo Seſac kynge of Egypte came to Jeruſalem, and toke awaye the treaſures of the houſe of the Lorde, and the treaſures of yͤ kynges houſe: he toke euen all. And he *iii.Reg.x.a. caryed awaye the ſhyldes of golde, *which Salomon made. In ſteade of which, kynge Rehoboam made ſhyldes of braſſe, and cōmytted them to the hādes of the captaynes which had yͤ ouerſyght of the fotemen, and that kept the entraunce of yͤ kynges houſe. And it came to paſſe, that when the kynge entred into yͤ houſe of the Lorde, the garde came & fet them, and brought them agayne vnto the garde chambre. And when he humbled hym ſelfe, the wrath of the Lorde turned frō hym, that he wolde not deſtroye all together. And in Juda all was well.

D And ſo kyng Rehoboam waxed myghty and raygned in Jeruſalē. And Rehoboam was.xli. yere olde, whē he began to raygne, & he raygned.xvii. yeres in Jeruſalem, the cytie whych the Lorde had choſen out of all the trybes of Iſrael to put hys name there. And Abia ſtode vp vpō Zemaraim an hill whych is in mount Ephraim, & ſayd: heare me yͤ Jeroboam and all Iſrael. And Abia and his people ſlue a great ſlaughter of thē: there fel downe wouded of Iſrael .v.C.M. choſen men. And ſo the chyldren of Iſrael were brought vnder, at that tyme, & the chyldren of Iuda preuayled: becauſe they leaned vnto yͤ Lorde God of their fathers. And Abia folowed after Ieroboam, & toke cyties from him, Bethel wͭ the townes belongyng therto, Ieſana with yͤ townes that longed therto, & Ephron wͭ her townes. And Ieroboam recouered no ſtrength agayne in yͤ dayes of Abia. And yͤ Lorde plaged him, & he dyed.

But Abia waxed myghtye, and maryed .xiiii. wyues, and begat .xxii. ſones, and .xvi. daughters. The reſt of yͤ actes of Abia, hys cuſtomes and hys ſayinges are wrytten in the ſtorye of the prophet Iddo.

¶ The .xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Of Aſa kyng of Iuda.

A SO Abia ſlepte wͭ hys fathers, and they buryed hym in yͤ cytie of Dauid, and * Aſa hys ſonne raygned in hys ſteade. In whoſe dayes the lande was in quyetnes ten yere. *Mat.i.b.

*iii.Re.xv.a. And * Aſa dyd that was good and ryght in the eyes of yͤ Lorde his God: for he toke awaye ſtraunge aultars & the hyllaultars, and brake downe yͤ ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Iuda to ſeke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe & commaundemēt. And he put awaye out of all yͤ cyties of Iuda yͤ hylaultars & yͤ ymages: and yͤ kyngdome was quyet before hym. And he buylte ſtrōge cyties in Iuda: becauſe the land was in reſt, and he had no warre in thoſe yeares. For the Lorde had geuen him reſt.

B Therfore he ſayde to Iuda: let vs buyld theſe cyties, and make about them walles, towres, gates & barres, for the lande is yet in reſt before vs, becauſe we haue ſought yͤ Lorde oure God: we haue ſought hym, and he hath geuen vs reſt on euery ſyde: & ſo they buylt and it proſpered with them. And Aſa had an armye of men that bare ſhyldes and ſpeares, out of Iuda, thre hūdred thouſand: and out of Beniamin that bare ſhyldes and drue bowes, two hundred and foure ſkore thouſande, all theſe were valeaunt men.

C And there came out agaynſt them zarah the black morian * with an hooſt of ten hūdred thouſande, and thre hūdred charettes, & came as farre as Mareſa. And Aſa went out before hym, and they ioyned yͤ battayll in yͤ valey of zephata beſyde Mareſa. And Aſa cryed vnto yͤ Lorde hys God, & ſayde: Lorde, * it is no harde thynge wͭ yͤ to helpe ether many, or them yͤ haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O Lorde our God, for we truſt to the, and in thy name we go agaynſt thys multytude. Thou arte the Lorde oure God, and no man ſhall preuayle agaynſt the.

*ii.Para.xvi.c.

*i.Re.xiiii.b

D So the Lorde ſmote the blacke mores before Aſa and Iuda, and yͤ blacke mores fled. And Aſa & the people that was wyth hym, folowed after them vnto Gerar. And the blacke mores hooſt was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them lefte, but were deſtroyed before yͤ Lorde and before hys hoſt. And they caryed away a myghtye greate praye. And they ſmote all the cyties rounde about Gerar. For the feare of the Lorde came vpon them. And they ſpoyled all the cyties & there was exceadynge moche ſpoyle in them. They ſmote alſo the tentes of catell, and caryed awaye plentye of ſhepe and camels, ād returned to Ieruſalem.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

A AND the ſprete of God came on Azaria the ſonne of Oded. And he wēt out to mete Aſa, and ſayde vnto hym: heare me Aſa, and all Iuda, and Beniamin. The Lorde is with you, whyle ye be wyth hym, and when ye ſeke hym, he wyll be founde of you: and agayne, when ye forſake hym, he alſo wyll forſake you. And truly, for a lōge ſeaſon in Iſrael no man ſought yͤ true God, no man regarded yͤ preſt that taught them, no man cared for the lawe. And when any man in hys trouble dyd turne vnto yͤ Lord God of Iſrael, and ſought him, he was foūde of them. And in that tyme there was no peace to hym, that dyd goo out and in: but greate ſedycyon was there amonge all the inhabiters of the earth. And nacyon was deſtroyed of nacyon, and cytie of cytie: for God dyd moue all aduerſytie amōge them. Playe ye therfore the men, and let not youre handes ſlacke, for youre worke ſhalbe rewarded.

B And when Aſa hearde thoſe wordes, and the propheſye of Azaria the ſonne of Oded the prophete, he toke courage, & put awaye the abhominable ydols out of all yͤ lande of Iuda & Bēiamin, & out of the cyties whych he wanne in mount Ephraim, & renued the aultar of the Lorde, yͤ was before the porch of the Lorde. And he gathered all Iuda and Beniamin, & the ſtraungers with them out of Ephraim, Manaſſe & Symeon. For there fell many to him out of Iſrael, whē they ſawe that the Lorde hys God was wͭ hym. So they aſſembled at Ieruſalem the thyrde monethe, the fyftenth yeare of the raygne of Aſa. And they offered vnto yͤ Lord yͤ ſame tyme of the ſpoyle which they had brought vii.C. oxen. and. vii. thouſande ſhepe.

And they made a couenaunt to ſeke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, wyth all theyr hert & all theyr ſoule. And whoſoeuer wolde not ſeke the Lorde God of Iſrael, ſhulde dye for it: whether he were ſmall or great, ☞ man or woman. And ☞ they ſware vnto yͤ Lorde with a lowde voyce, ſhowtynge and D blowyng wͭ trõpettes & ſhawmes. And all they in Juda reioyced at yͤ oth, for they had ſworne vnto the Lorde, with all their herte, and ſought hym wyth all theyr luſt, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them reſt rounde about on euery ſyde.

And kynge Aſa put Maacha his mother out of auctorite, becauſe ſhe had made an ☞ abhominable ydoll ☞(of Priapus) in a groue: and Aſa brake downe her ydoll, & ſtãped it, and burnt it at the broke Cedron. But all the hilaulters were not taken awaye out of Iſrael: though the hert of Aſa was perfecte all hys dayes. And he brought into yͤ houſe of God the thynges that hys father had dedicat, and that he hym ſelfe had dedicate: euen ſyluer, and golde, and Jewelles. And *Judi.iii.b. ther was nomore warre vnto the * xxxv. yere of the raygne of Aſa.

A *iii.Re.xv.c. IN the.xxxvi. yere of yͤ raygne of Aſa came * Baaſa kyng of Iſrael vp agaynſt Juda, and buylt Rama, to the entent that he wolde let none paſſe out or in ☞(ſafely) to Aſa kynge of Juda. And Aſa fet out golde & ſyluer, out of yͤ treaſures of the houſe of the Lorde, and of the kynges houſe and ſent to Benhadad kyng of Syria that ☞ dwelt at ☞ Darmeſec, and ſayd: There is a confederacyon betwene me & the, betwene my father & thyne. Beholde, I haue ſent the ſyluer & golde, that thou wylt come & breake thyne appoyntment wͭ Baaſa kynge of B Iſrael, that he maye departe from me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kynge Aſa, and ſent to yͤ captaynes of hys armye to the cyties of Iſrael. And they ſmote Jion, Dan, and Abelmaim, and the ſtrong cyties of Nephthali. And when Baaſa hearde thys, he left buyldynge of Rama, & let hys worcke ceaſe. And then Aſa yͤ kyng toke all Juda, and caryed awaye the ſtones and tymbre of Rama, wherwith Baaſa was a buyldyng, C and he buylt therwith Geba & Mizpa.

At that ſame tyme, Hanani yͤ ſear came to Aſa kyng of Juda, & ſayde vnto hym: becauſe yͧ haſt truſted in the kynge of Syria, and not rather put thy truſt in yͤ Lorde thy God, therfore is the hoſt of yͤ kynge of Syria *ii.Para. xiiii.c. eſcaped out of thyne hãde. * Had not the ☞ blacke mores, and ☞ Lubim an exceadynge great hooſt wͭ many charettes and horſemen? And yet becauſe thou truſtedeſt in the Lorde, he delyuered them into thyne hande. For the eyes of yͤ Lorde beholde all the erth, to ſtrength them that are of perfecte hert towarde hym. * Herin thou haſt done foly- *Ge.xxxi.b. i.Re.xiii.c. ſhly, and therfore from henſforth thou ſhalt haue warre. And Aſa was wroth with the D ſear, and put him into a preſon houſe, for he was dyſpleaſed wyth hym becauſe of thys thynge. And Aſa deſtroyed certayne of the people the ſame ceaſon.

And beholde, theſe dedes of Aſa, fyrſt and laſt, are wrytten in yͤ boke of yͤ kyngs of Juda & Iſrael. And Aſa in yͤ.xxxix. yere of hys raygne fell ſycke in hys fete, and that hys dyſeaſe continued very longe. And * in hys *Eccle. xxxviii.a. ſycknes he ſought not the Lord, but phyſycons. And Aſa ſlept wͭ his fathers, and dyed in the.xli. yere of hys raygne. And they buryed hym in hys awne ſepulchre, whych he had made for hym ſelfe in yͤ cytie of Dauid, and layed hym in yͤ bed which he had fylled wͭ dyuerſe kyndes of ſpices & ſwete odours, made by yͤ craft of yͤ potecaryes. And they burnt very moch ſpice about hym.

AND * Jehoſaphat hys ſonne raygned A in hys ſteade, and preuayled agaynſt *Mat.i.b. Iſrael. And he put ſouldyers in all the ſtronge cyties of Juda, and ſet rulers in the lande of Juda & in yͤ cyties of Ephraim, which Aſa hys father had wonne. And the Lorde was wͭ Jehoſaphat, becauſe he walked in the olde wayes of hys father Dauid, and ſought not Baalim. But ſought yͤ Lorde God of hys father, and walked in hys cõmaundmẽtes: and not after the doynges of Iſrael. And the Lord ſtablyſhed the kyngdome in hys hande, and all they that were in Juda, brought hym preſentes, ſo that he had aboundãce of riches & honoure. And he B lyft vp his hert vnto the wayes of the Lorde, and he put downe yet more of yͤ hylaulters & groues out of Juda.

In the thyrde yere of hys raygne he ſent to hys lordes, euen to Benhail, Obadia, zacharia, Nethanel & to Michaahu, that they ſhulde teach in the cyties of Juda, and with them he ſent leuites: euen Semeiahu, Nethaniahu, zabadiahu, Aſahel, Semiramoth, Jehonathan, Adoniahu, Tobiahu, and Tubadonia, and with them Eliſamah and Jehoram preſtes. And they taught in Juda, and had the boke of the lawe of God wyth them, and went about thorowout all the cyties of Juda, and taught the people.

And the feare of yͤ Lorde fell vpon all the C kyngdomes of the landes that were rounde about Juda, & they fought not agaynſt Jehoſaphat, & ſome of the philiſtines brought Jehoſaphat gyftes, & trybute ſyluer. And

¶ The, xx. Chapter.

¶ The meruelouſe victory that the Lord gaue Jehoſaphat kynge of Juda agaynſt the Moabytes, and the chyldren of Ammon, and them of Seyr.

A AFter thys alſo, it fortuned ẏ the chyldren of Moab & the chyldren of Ammon, and wᵗ them other of ẏ Ammonites came agaynſt Jehoſaphat to battayll. And there came ſome ẏ tolde Jehoſaphat ſayinge: there commeth a greate multitude agaynſt ẏ from the other ſyde of ẏ ſee, & out of Syria. And beholde, they be in Haſaſon Thamar, which is Engadi. And Jehoſaphat feared, & ſet him ſelfe to ſeke the Lord, & proclaymed faſtyng thorowout all Juda. And they ẏ were in Juda, gathered them ſelues together, to aſke councell of ẏ Lord. And they came out of all ẏ cyties of Juda, to make interceſſyon to the Lorde. And Jehoſaphat ſtode betwene the cõgregacyon of Juda & Jeruſalem in the houſe of the Lorde B before the newe courte, and ſayde: O Lorde God of our fathers, art not thou God in heuen, & raygneſt not thou on all the kyngdomes of the hethen? And in thyne hande is power & myght, and there is no man that is able to withſtande the. Art not thou oure God, whych dydeſt caſt out ẏ inhabyters of thys lãde before thy people Jſrael, and gaueſt it to ẏ ſeede of Abraham thy louer for euer? And they dwelt therin, & haue buylt the a temple therin for thy name, ſayinge: * ii. Para.vi.b. C Yf euell come vpon vs, as ẏ ſwerde of iudgemẽt, peſtilence or hõgre: then, yf we ſtand before this houſe in thy preſence, for thy name is in this houſe, and crye vnto the in our tribulacyon, heare thou, and helpe.

And nowe behold, ẏ chyldren of Ammon, & Moab, & mõut Seir, by whom ẏ woldeſt not let thẽ of Jſrael go, whẽ they came out of ẏ lãde of Egypte: but they departed from them, & deſtroyed them not. O our God, wylt ẏ not iudge them: for we haue no myght agaynſt this great cõpanye that cõmeth agaynſt vs. Nether wote we what to do: but oure eyes be vnto the.

And all Juda ſtode before ỹ Lorde with their yonge ones, their wyues & their chyldren: & ther was Jehaſiel ỹ ſonne of zacharia ỹ ſonne of Banaia ỹ ſonne of Jehiel the ſonne of Mathania, a leuite of the ſonnes of Aſaph, & vpon hym came ỹ ſprete of the Lorde, euen in ỹ myddes of ỹ cõgregacyon. To morowe go out agaynſt them: for ỹ Lorde wyl be wᵗ you.

And Jehoſaphat bowed hys face to the erth, & all Juda & the enhabiters of Jeruſalem fell before the Lorde worſhippynge the Lorde. And al the chyldrẽ of Iſrael returned euery mã to his poſſeſſions & to their awne cyties.

And Hezekia appoynted ſondrye companies of the preaſtes ãd Leuites after the dyuerſyte of their miniſtracions, euery mã accordynge to his office: both preaſtes and Leuites, for the burntofferinge & peace offeringes, to miniſtre, & to geue thankes & prayſe in the gates of the hoſt of the Lorde. And the kynges porcion of his ſubſtaunce ẏ he gaue, were dayly burntofferinges in the mornyng and euening, & burntofferinges for the Saboth dayes, newmones, & ſolempne feaſtes, accordynge *as it is wrytten in the lawe of *nu.xxviii.b B the Lorde. And he bade ẏ people that dwelt in Jeruſalẽ, geue the parte to the preaſtes & Leuites, that they might ſubſtancially applye thẽſelues to the lawe of the Lord. And as ſone as the kynges cõmaundement came abroad, the childrẽ of Iſrael brought aboũdaunce of fyrſt frutes, of corne, wyne, oyle, honye, & of all maner of frutes of the felde, & the tythes of all maner of thynges brought they in plenteouſly. And ẏ chyldrẽ of Iſrael and Juda that dwelt in the cyties of Juda, they alſo brought in the tythes of oxen and ſhepe, and other holy tythes whych were cõſecrate vnto the Lorde theyr God, they dyd offre, ãd brought them all by heapes. In the thyrd moneth they beganne to laye the heapes (in maner of a foundacion) and finiſhed them in the ſeuenth moneth.

And when Hezekia and the Lordes came and ſawe the heapes, they bleſſed ẏ Lorde & hys people Iſrael. And Hezekia queſtioned with the preaſtes & the Leuites concerninge the heapes. And Azaria the chefe preaſte of the houſe of zadock, anſwered hym, & ſayde: ſenſe the people beganne to bryng the heaue offerynges into the houſe of the Lord, we al- C ſo haue had ynough to eate, there remayned ſo moch: for the Lord hath bleſſed his people and this heape is left. And Hezekia bad prepare the chambres in the houſe of the Lord. And they dyd prepare them, & caryed in the fyrſt frutes, the tythes, and the dedicat thynges, faythfully.

Ouer whyche Chonaniahu the Leuite had the rule, and Semei hys brother next to hym. And Jehiel, Aſaziahu, Nahath, Aſael Jerimoth, Joſabad, Eliel, Jeſmachiahu, Mahath and Banaiahu were ouerſears ordeyned by Chonaniahu, and Semei his brother was an offycer of Hezekia the kynge, and Azaria was the ruler of ẏ houſe of God D (vnto whom all theſe thynges belonged) And Chore the ſõne of Jimna the Leuite & porter of the Eaſt dore, had the ouerſyght of the thynges that were offred of a frewyl vnto God (and were geuẽ in maner ſeuerally vnto ẏ Lorde) and ouer the thynges moſt holy. And vnder his hand were Eden, Miniamin, Jeſua, Semeiahu, Amariahu, and Sechaniahu in the cities of the preaſtes appoynted of theyr fydelyte to geue to theyr brethren theyr porcions, as wel to the ſmall as to the greate.

Except that to the males that were reckened from thre yere & aboue (amonge all that D went into the houſe of the Lorde) they ſhuld geue daye by daye, for theyr miniſtracion, & for theyr geuyng attẽdaunce, & for theyr diuerſe waytinges by courſe. And to the preaſtes & Leuites thorowe out the houſholde of theyr fathers, from twentye yere & aboue to wayte when their courſes came. And to the families of all their babes, wyues, ſonnes & daughters thorowe all the cõgregaciõ. For vpon the fydelyte of them were ☞ the holy ☞ thynges beſtowed. And to the chyldren of Aaron, the preaſtes, whyche were in the feldes & ſuburbes of their cyties, cytie by cytie the mẽ (whoſe names were expreſſed afore) ſhulde geue porcions, euen to all the males amonge the preaſtes, and to all the Leuites accordynge to theyr nombre.

And of thys maner dyd Hezekia thorowe out all Juda, & wrought it that is good, and ryght and true, before the Lorde hys God. And in all the worckes ẏ he beganne for the ſeruyce of the houſe of God, for the lawe, and for the cõmaundemẽtes, he ſought his God, & that dyd he wyth all hys hert, & proſpered.

¶ Manaſſe is taken preſoner, and after that he cõmeth out, he deſtroyed the Idoles. He dyeth, & after hym ſucceadeth Amon, whych is kylled of hys awne people, and Joſias his ſonne raygneth in his ſteade.

A *iiii.re.xxi.a Manaſſe was.xii. yeare olde * whẽ he beganne to raygne, & he raygned.lv. yeare ĩ Jeruſalẽ: But did euell in the syght of yͤ Lorde, lyke vnto the abhominacyõs of the heathẽ, whõ the Lorde caſt out before the chyldren of Iſrael. For he went to, & buylt the hylaulters, *iiii.re.xviii a. * which Hezekia hys father had broken downe. And he rered vp aulters for Baalim, and made groues, and worſhypped all the hooſt of heauen, and ſerued them.

And he buylt aulters in the houſe of the Lorde where as the Lorde yet had ſayd: *ii.re.vii.b. ii. Para.vi.a and.vii.c * in Jeruſalem ſhall my name be foreuer. And he buylded aulters for all the hooſt of heauẽ in the two courtes of the houſe of the Lord. And he burnt hys chyldren in fyre, in yͤ valley of the ſonne of Hinnõ. He was a ſorcerer he regarded the cryenge of byrdes, vſed inchauntementes, & mayntened workers wt ſpretes, and ſears of fortunes: and wrought moch euell in the syght of the Lorde, to angre hym wyth all.

And he put the kerued ymage & an Idole whych he had made, in the houſe of God. Of B whych houſe, God had ſayde to Dauid & to Salomon hys ſonne: in thys houſe & in Jeruſalem whych I haue choſen afore all the *ii.reg.vii.b iii. If ſo be that they will be diligent and do all that I haue cõmaunded them in all the lawe, and ſtatutes, & ordinaunces by the hande of Moſes. And ſo manaſſe made Juda and the enhabiters of Jeruſalem to erre, and to do worſe then the heathen, whom the Lorde deſtroyed before the children of Iſraell. And the Lord ſpake to Manaſſe & to hys people, but they wolde not regarde.

Wherfore, yͤ Lord brought vpon thẽ the C captaynes of the hoſt of yͤ kynge of the Aſſirians, whych toke Manaſſe in holde, and bounde hym with chaynes, and caryed hym to Babylon. And when he was in trybulaciõ, he beſought the Lord hys God, & hũbled hym ſelfe exceadyngly before the God of his fathers, and made interceſſion to hym and God was entreated of hym, and hearde hys prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jeruſalem vnto his kyngdome. And then Manaſſe knewe, that the Lorde was God.

After this he buylt a wall wythout yͤ cytie of Dauid on the weſt ſyde of Gion in the valley as they came to yͤ fiſh gate, & rounde about ☞ Ophel, & brought it vp of a very ☞ great heygth, & put captaynes of warre in all the ſtrong cyties of Juda. The reſt of the actes of Manaſſe, ãd hys D prayer vnto hys God, & the wordes of the ſears and of them that ſpake to hym in the name of the Lorde God of Iſraell, beholde, they are wryten in the ſayenges of yͤ kinges of Iſrael. And Manaſſe ſlepte wyth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in hys awne houſe: and Amõ hys ſonne raygned ĩ hys rowme. Amõ was two and twenty yeare olde, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned two yeare ĩ Jeruſalẽ. But he dyd euell in the syght of yͤ Lorde, lyke as dyd Manaſſe his father, for Amõ ſacrifyed to all yͤ kerued ymages whych Manaſſe his father had made, and ſerued them, and ſubmitted not him ſelfe before yͤ Lorde as Manaſſe hys father had mekened hym ſelfe. But Amõ treſpaſſed greatly. And his awne ſeruaũtes cõſpired againſt him & ſlue him in his awne houſe. But yͤ people of the land ſlue all them yͭ had conſpyred agaynſt kynge Amõ. And yͤ ſame people of the lande made Joſia his ſonne kynge in hys rowme.

¶ The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Joſia deſtroyeth the Idoles, and reſtoreth the temple, in whych is founde the boke of the lawe. He ſendeth to Hulda the propheteſſe for councell.

A *iiii.Re.xxii a. Joſia was eyght yeare olde whan he began to raygne, * ãd he raygned ĩ Jeruſalem thyrtye and one yere. In yͤ.viii. yere of his raygne (whẽ he was yet a childe) he beganne to ſeke after the God of Dauid his father. And in the twelueth yeare he beganne to pourge Juda and Jeruſalem from hylaulters, groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall: and they brake downe the aulters of Baalim euen in his preſence: and other ymages that were in greater honoure B then they, he cauſed to be deſtroyed. And the groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall

he brake and made duſt of them, and ſtrawed it vpō the graues of them that had offered to them. And he burnt the bones of the preaſtes vpon the aulters of them, and clenſed Juda and Jeruſalem. And euen ſo

Simeon, vnto Nephthali. And in the wylderneſſes of them rounde about, he plucked

beate them and ſtampte them to powdre, ⁊

In the eyghtene yere of hys raygne when

And they put in the hādes of yͤ worckemen,

whych the kynges of Juda had deſtroyed:
And the men dyd the worcke faythfully.

And the ouerſears of them to courage thē

And whan they brought out the money

And then Saphan the ſcribe ſhewed yͤ

And it fortuned, that when the kynge had

and Aſaia a ſeruaunt of the kynges, ſaying
go ⁊ enquire of the Lord for me and for thē

great is the wrath of the Lorde that is fallen

And Helkia and they that the kynge had E

And when he came thither, he dyd eate

Marche.

A IT fortuned, that in the moneth * Niſan in the twentyeth yeare of kyng Arthaxerſes, the wyne ſtode before hym, and I toke vp the wyne, and gaue it vnto the kynge. And I was heuy in hys preſence. And the kynge ſayde vnto me: why lokeſt thou ſo ſadly, whā thou art not ſycke? it is nothynge els, but ẏ thou art heuy herted. And I was ſore afrayed, and ſayd vnto the kyng: God ſaue the kynges lyfe for euer. Howe ſhulde I not loke ſadly, whan ẏ cytie and place of my fathers buryall lyeth waſte, ād the gates therof are conſumed with fyre? And the kynge ſayde vnto me: what is then thy requeſt? I made my prayer alſo to the God of heauen, & ſayde vnto the kyng: yf it pleaſe the kyng, and yf thy ſeruaunt haue founde fauoure in thy ſyghte, ſende me into Juda vnto the cytie of my fathers buryall, that I maye buylde it.

B And the kynge ſayde vnto me (the quene his wyfe ſytting by him) howe lōge ſhal thy iourney continue, and whē wylt thou come agayne? And it pleaſed ẏ kynge to ſende me, and I ſet hym a tyme, & ſayde vnto ẏ kyng: yf it pleaſe the king, let him geue me letters to the captaynes which are beyonde the water, that they maye conuaye me ouer, tyll I come into Juda: ād letters vnto Aſaph the Lord of ẏ kynges wood, that he maye geue ☞ me tymber to make beames ☞ for the gates of the palace (which is harde by ẏ houſe) & for the walles of the cytie, and for ẏ houſe that I ſhall entre into. And the kynge gaue me according to the hāde of my God, which was good vpon me. And whē I came to the captaynes beyonde the water, I gaue them the kynges letters. And the kynge had ſent captaynes and horſemen wyth me.

C Sanabalat alſo the Horonite and Tobia a ſeruaūt (the Ammonite) hearde of it, and it greued them ſore, that there was come a man which ſoughte the welth of the chyldrē of Iſrael. And I came to Jeruſalem, & was there thre dayes, & I gat me vp in the nyght ſeaſon, and a fewe men with me: nether tolde I anye man, what God had geuen me in my hert to do at Jeruſalem: and there was not one beaſt with me, ſaue it ẏ I rode vpon And I departed in the nyghte by the valley porte, before ẏ Dragon well, & to the Donge porte, and conſidered the walles of Jeruſalem, howe they were broken downe, & the portes therof conſumed wyth the fyre. And I went ouer vnto the wellporte, and to the kynges condyte, and there was no rowme for the beaſt ẏ was vnder me, to paſſe. Then wente I on in the nyght by the brooke ſyde and conſydered the wall, and turned backe, and came home agayne by the valley porte.

D And ẏ rulers knewe not whither I wēte or what I dyd: neyther dyd I as yet tell it vnto the Jewes, to the Preaſtes, to the noblemen, to the rulers, and to the other that laboured in the worcke. Then ſayde I vnto them: ye ſe the myſerye that we are in, howe Jeruſalem lyeth waſte, and howe the gates therof are brent wyth fyre: come therfore ẏ we maye buyld vp the wall of Jeruſalem, & ẏ we be no more a rebuke. ¶ The .iiii. Chapter.

BUt whan Sanabalat heard that A
we buylded ẏ wall, he was wroth
in him ſelfe, & toke greate indignacion, and mocked the Jewes, and ſayde before his brethren and the ſouldyers of Samaria: what do theſe impotēt Jewes?
wyll the hethen ſuffre them? ſhall they offre?
ſhall they perfourme it ī one daye? ſhall
they make the ſtones whole agayne that are the Ammonite was beſyde hym, and ſayde:

Though they buylde, yet yf a foxe go vp, he

(O thou oure God) for we are deſpyſed,

And ſo buylded we the wall, ād it was ioyned
whole together, vnto ẏ half heyght therof.
And the people were mynded to laboure.

B And it fortuned, that when Sanabalat, and Tobiah, & the Arabians, Ammonites, and Aſdodites heard, ẏ the walles of Jeruſalē were made vp, & that ẏ gappes beganne to be ſtopped; they were very wroth, & cōſpired all together to come, & fight agaynſt Jeruſalem, and to make ẏ people an hynderaunce therin. Neuertheles, we made our prayer vnto our God, & ſet watchmen by them, which buylded daye and nyght ouer agaynſt them. And Juda ſayd: the ſtrength of ẏ bearers is to feble, & there is yet moch more morter, & we are not able to buyld on the wall. And our aduerſaries ſayd: they ſhall not knowe nether ſe, tyll we come in ẏ myddes amōge them, & ſlaye them, & hynder the worcke. But it fortuned ẏ when the Jewes (whych dwelt beſyde them) came, they tolde vs as good as ten tymes, ẏ in all places where ye go vnto, they are appointed to fal vpon vs. Therfore ſet J ẏ people after C their kynredes wᵗ their ſwerdes, ſpeares ād bowes beneth in ẏ lowe places behynd the wal, & J loked, & gat me vp, & ſayd vnto the chefe men, to ẏ rulers, & to ẏ other people, be not ye afrayed of them, *ii.Eſd.i.b. and.ix.f. *but thincke rather vpon ẏ greate Lord, which ought to be feared, & fyght for your brethren, your ſonnes, your daughters, your wiues, & your houſes. Neuertheles, it chaūced that when our enemyes hearde, ẏ we had gotten worde of it. God brought their coūcell to naught, & we turned all agayne to ẏ wall, euery one vnto his labour. And frō ẏ tyme forth it came to paſſe ẏ the half parte of ẏ yōg men dyd ẏ laboure, & the other half parte of thē helde the ſpeares, ſhyldes, bowes & breaſtplates: and the rulers ſtode behynde all ẏ houſe of Juda wyich buylded on the wall, & bare burthens from thoſe ẏ laded them. Wyth one hande dyd euery one worke, & wᵗ the other helde he D his weapen. And euery one ẏ buylded, had his ſwerd, gyrde by his thyghe, and ſo buylded they. And ẏ trompet blewe beſyde me.

And J ſayd vnto ẏ principal men, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worke is great & large, and we are ſeparated vpō the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place therfore ye heare ẏ noyſe of ẏ trōpet, *Exo.xiiii.c. reſorte ye thyther vnto vs, *and our God ſhall fyght for vs, & we wyll be labouryng in ẏ worcke. And ẏ halfe part of them helde the ſpeares from the mornyng ſpryng, tyll the ſtarres came forth. And at ẏ ſame tyme ſayd J vnto ẏ people: euery one abyde with hys ſeruaunt at Jeruſalem, that in ẏ nyght ſeaſon we maye watch, & labour on the daye tyme. As for me & my brethren, my ſeruaūtes, and the men of ẏ watch (which were behynde me) we put neuer of oure clothes, nomore then the other dyd their harneſſe, ſaue onely becauſe of the water.

A And there aroſe a great complaynte of the people, & of theyr wyues agaynſt theyr brethren the Jewes. But ſome there were that ſayde: let vs borowe money for the kynges tribute & that vpon our landes & vyneyardes. Behold, oure bodyes as the bodyes of oure brethren, and oure chyldren as theyr chyldren: elles ſhulde we ſubdue our ſonnes and daughters vnto bondage, & ſome of oure daughters are ſubdued vnto bondage all ready, and no ſtrength is there in oure handes, and other men haue our landes and vyneyardes.

And when J heard theyr cōplaynte and ſoch wordes, it diſpleaſed me ſore, & J aduiſed ſo in my mynde, that J rebuked ẏ councelers, and ẏ rulers, and ſayde vnto them: B Euery one of you is to chargeable vnto his brother. And J brought a greate congregacion agaynſt them, and ſayd vnto them: we (after oure abilite) haue bought our brethren the Jewes, which were ſolde vnto the heathen. And wyll ye ſell your brethren agayne vnto ẏ heathen, after ẏ they haue bene ſolde vnto vs? Thē helde they theyr peace, & coulde fynde nothynge to anſwere.

And Nehemia ſayde: It is not good ẏ ye do. Ought ye not to walke in the feare of God, becauſe of ẏ rebuke of ẏ heathen that are our enemyes? J and my brethren, & my ſeruauntes do lend them money and corne: but as for vſurye, let vs leaue it. Therfore, thys ſame daye J pray you ſe ẏ ye reſtore them theyr landes agayne, theyr vineyardes, oyle gardēs, & theyr houſes, & remytte the hūdred part of ẏ money, of ẏ corne, wyne and oyle that ye haue wonne of them. Then ſayd they: we wyll reſtore thē agayne, and C wyll requyre nothyng of thē, & wyll do as ẏ haſt ſpoken. And J called ẏ preſtes, & toke an oth of them, that they ſhuld do ſo. ¶ Eſdras geathereth together the people and readeth to them the lawe. They kepe the feaſt of tabernacles or bothes.

And ✠ all * the people geathered them ſelues together as one man in ẏ ſtrete that was before the watergate, and they ſayde vnto Eſdras the ſcrybe, that he ſhulde fetch * the boke of ẏ lawe of Moſes, whych the Lorde commaunded to Iſrael. And Eſdras the preaſt brought ẏ lawe before the congregacyon both of men and wemen, & all that coulde vnderſtande dyd herken vnto it, vpon ẏ fyrſt daye of ẏ ſeuenth moneth, and he red therin in the ſtrete that was before the watergate (from the mornynge vntyll ẏ noone daye) before men and wemen that dyd herken to it: and the eares of all the people were inclined vnto ẏ booke of the lawe. And Eſdras the ſcrybe ſtode vpō an hye pulpit of wood, whych they had made for ẏ preachynge, and beſyde hym ſtode Mathatia, Sema, Anania, Vriah, Helkia and Maaſeia, on hys ryght hande: and on hys lefte hande ſtode Pedaia, Miſael, Malchia, Haſum, Haſebadana, zachary and Meſulam.

B And Eſdras opened the booke before all the people, for he ſtode aboue all the people. And when he opened it, all the people ſtode vp. And Eſdras prayſed the Lorde ẏ greate God. And all ẏ people anſwered, Amen, Amen, wyth theyr handes vp, and bowed them ſelues, and worſhypped the Lorde, fallynge downe vpon their faces to the grounde. And Ieſua, Baam, Serabiah, Iamin, Acub, Sebathai, Hodaia, Maaſia, Celita, Azaria, Iozabad, Hanan, Pelaia: and the Leuites cauſed the people to geue hede vnto the lawe, and ẏ people ſtode in theyr place. And they red in the boke of the lawe of God diſtinctly & playnly, ſo that men vnderſtode the thynge that was red. And Nehemiah (which is Hathirſatha) and Eſdras the preſt & ſcrybe, and the Leuites that cauſed ẏ people to take hede, ſayd vnto all the people: thys daye is holy vnto the Lorde youre God: be not ye ſory, & wepe not. For all the people wepte, when they herde the wordes of the lawe.

*iii.Eſd.ix.g C

And he ſayde vnto thē: * go youre waye, and eate ẏ fat, and dryncke ẏ ſwete, & ſende parte vnto them alſo ẏ haue not prepared them ſelues: for this daye is holy vnto oure Lorde, be not ye ſory therfore: for the ioye of the Lorde is youre ſtrength. ✠ And the Leuites ſtylled all ẏ people, and ſayd: holde youre peace, for the daye is holy, vexe not ye youre ſelues. And all the people wente theyr waye to eate & dryncke, and to ſende parte vnto other, & to make greate myrth, becauſe they had vnderſtand ẏ wordes that were declared vnto them.

*Leui.xxiii.f Nu.xxix.b. ii.Macha.i.c.

And on ẏ nexte daye were geathered together the chefe fathers amōge all the people & the preaſtes & Leuites, vnto Eſdras the ſcrybe, that they myght vnderſtand the wordes of ẏ lawe. And they foūde wrytten in the lawe * (whych the Lorde had cōmaunded by Moſes) that the chyldren of Iſrael ſhulde dwell in bothes in ẏ feaſt of ẏ ſeuenth moneth: and that they ſhulde cauſe it to be declared and proclamed in all theyr cyties, and thorowout Ieruſalem, ſayēge: go forth vnto ẏ mount, and fetch Olyue braunches, Pyne braunches, Myrbraunches, Palmebraunches, and braunches of thycke trees, to make bothes, as it is wrytten. D

And ſo ẏ people wēt forth, and fet them, & made them bothes, euery one vpon ẏ rofe of hys houſe,, & in theyr courtes, & in ẏ courtes of the houſe of God, and in the ſtrete by the watergate, and in the ſtrete by porte Ephraim. And al the cōgregacyon of them that were come agayne out of ẏ captyuyte, made bothes, and ſat vnder the bothes: for ſence ẏ tyme of Ioſua ẏ ſonne of Nun vnto thys daye, had not ẏ chyldren of Iſrael done ſo, and ther was very greate gladneſſe. And euery daye from ẏ fyrſt daye vnto the laſt, red Eſdras in ẏ boke of ẏ lawe of God. And ſeuen dayes helde they ẏ feaſt, and on the eyght daye, they geathered together, accordynge vnto the maner.
